Music and Drama

Open Evenings.

"Mutt and Jeff" For Three Nights. "Just as funny as the pictures," doesn't half do justice to Gus Hill's simply die with laughter, so Mr. Hill has introduced some pretty musical numbers. "Mutt and Jeff" is coming to the Grand tonight for an engagement of three nights.

Geo. M. Cohan's comedy success, 'Get Rick Quick Wallingford," comes to the Grand twice next Saturday after a run of two years in New York and a year in Chicago. The reason why this play has broken all records for long runs and huge attendance in the east and west is simply because it is the brightest and best comedy ever presented on the American stage. This has been the verdict of the leading pro- critics, and many people from this city who had occasion to see the play either in New York or Chicago during the past two years have returned with such glowing reports of its qualities that local playgoers are preparing for

Miss Eleanor Henry as Annamirl, the real spring maid, has a very sweet voice, and with care will prove a star.

Leo Stark, as Roland, the tragedian, is a comedian of ability, but he was badly handicapped with old lines and commonplace situations. Arthur Wooley was good when he assumed the role of "Aunty." His smile was worth going miles to see.
