readings in the Legislature yesterday ships.

London will be made a "Little London' in a provincial way in order to keep East Middlesex a Conservative seat, and hundreds who are residents of this city will have absolutely no voice in the affairs of London in proncial matters. In case of a clash between the views of the country ricts and the cities the residents of the annexed districts would be powerless to have their franchises of any avail in supporting the city of London.

Made No Protest. Sir Adam Beck, London's member in he Provincial House, allowed the bill to be read without a protest, although practically disfranchised hundreds of citizens of London, which he is supposed to represent. First of all a polician, Sir Adam was anxious that East Middlesex should be made secure for
