Little Mike McCarthy, aged 8, is a peculiar waif. His parents are in jail. The other day Ald. Baxter sent him to the newsboys' lodging, but he would not remain. On several other occasions he took French leave from similar institutions. He has got the reputation of being able to crawl through a key-hole. He looks as though he could. Last night a policeman found him away up Yonge street and brought him to No. 2 police station. Another attempt will be made to locate him to-day.

The City Property Committee.

Ald. Irwin presided at the property committee vesterday afternoon when Ald. Steiner, Carlyle, Blevins, Walker, Saunders and Leslie were present. A Mr. McGregor stated when he leased a lot on Huron street from the city it was to have been a certain size but when surveyed it was found to be narrower by several feet. The chairman, Ald. Baxter and the commissioner were appointed a sub-committee to look into the matter. Some discussion took place regarding the proposal of the harbor trust to allow the city to dump the dirt wherever wished at the Island if the corporation furnishes the scows and paid the cost of unloading. The contractor would do all the towing. The commissioner said the corporation was not in a position to do this, as they had but four

One Hundred Year's Old.

The congratulations that were heaped upon Mr. John M. Tinsley of 89 Agnes street on the occasion of his 100th birthday yesterday were numerous and happy. Mr. Tinsley says that he was born in Richmond, Va, on July 4, 1783, his father at the time of his birth being Capt. John Tinsley of the American army, who did good service in the wars jagainst the aborigines and Lord Cornwallis. The centennarian settled in Toronto in 1842 and by his thrifty habits has amassed considerable property in St. John's ward. Mr. Tinsley has living 33 grand-children, 12 great-grand-children and five great-great-grand-children. Since his distributions and our rights to property were in danger; and we may be a since the ammesty whose were defending our secretary of state at Ottawa had ne right to come from the imperial government. The secretary of state at Ottawa had ne right to grant it. I do not, however, deny that the ammesty has done good, because it kept the people quiet and set at rest the difficulties of 1869. But if you look at it from the point of view of principle, it was illegal, nay, it was an insult to me and the population. I may have acted contrary to the good pleasure of the queen. In defending our rights, we may have done things that were displeasing to the supreme authority. But Canada was not that supreme authority. But Canada was herself the party who did not were displeasing to the supreme authority. But Canada was herself the party who did not were displeasing to the supreme authority. The long standing account of $711 for the rubber valves supplied the department by Mr. T. McIlroy of the Gutta Percha and Rubber company was ordered to be paid. Ald. Maughan has repeatedly had this account referred back on the ground that there was an overcharge. Mr. McIlroy wrote the committee that his company would positively make no reductions in their bill. The valves had been ordered by the department, and the price sied was the regular quotation. At a former meeting Mr. Vennebles, superintendant of the pumping house, told the committee that the valves were the best the department ever had. The long delay in the payment of the account long delay in the payment of the account might have easily been dispensed with, for, as a matter of fact, none of the members of the committee appear to be able to tell good valves from inferior opes.

LOUIS RIEL.

An Interview With the Leader of the Pro visional Government. From the Winnipeg Times.

In a few minutes the reporter found himself in the presence of the man who thirteen years ago created such a commotion throughout Canada. His appearance was something of a surprise to one who had expected to see a rather desperate looking character. He is a man of medium size and powerful build. His features are prepossessing and almost handsome-aqualine possessing and almost handsome—aqualine nose, large dark expressive eyes, and a high and drew on the blackboard a parallelogram. forehead-while his general expression is which he divided into five spaces, one for On several other occasions he took French | mild and thoughtful. His hair is thick. curly and brown, and he wears a full beard of a reddish brown hue. Throughout the whole interview his tone was subdued and the serious expression of his face was only ccasionally relieved by a pensive smile. "How long have you been away from the province?" asked the reporter.

"Ten years."
"And what have you been doing all the

And what have you been doing all the time?"

"Trying to earn my living honestly," said Riel quietly, but with dignity. "I have been living in Montana and Dakota, and am now settled in the former place, earning my bread by hard manual labor."

"Do you intend to go back?"

"Oh, yes. I am only here on business and will return as soon as it is transacted. Then of course I am glad to have a chance to see my dear old mother and the family. There has been a great change in the province since I left it, and the reports which I have heard of its marvellous developments are not at all exaggerated.

"Have you any objection to saying what you think of the justice of your sentence of banishment?"

Riel paused a moment, and then said.

Riel paused a moment, and then said, Riel paused a moment, and then said, "Before entering on a discussion of that question I must say that I respect all the public men with whom I had to deal. I admire them for their ability and their character. But I think that both parties have made great mistakes. Now, when I come to their public acts I say that sentence of bankshapet was a wrong, was an injustice. banishment was wrong—was an injustice. And the amnesty which was granted did not

James' Hall.

The Pall Mail Gazette gives the following thought-reader, at the St. James hall, London; The easy chair set apart for Mr. Labouchere was unoccupied. The £1000 promised was not tabled. But the experiment could be tried in Mr. Labouchere's absence, and Mr. Bishop was willing to stake his £1000 with no other set-off than the romise, willingly given, that the sudience would demand that if he guessed the num ber right Mr. Labouchere should hand over the £1000 to the Victoria hospital for child. ren. Mr. Charles Russell here introduced a diversion which kept the meeting in an uproar for nearly an hour. He sent word from the body of the hall-for he had refrom the body of the hall—for he had fresult of join the committee—that he had inclosed a £5 note in an envelope and given it into the keeping of Prof. Ray Lankester, who was also in the andience and who alone knew its number. He challenged Mr. Bishop to read in the mind of Mr. Ray Lankester the number of that note. If successful, the note should go to the hospital. Mr. Waddy asked Mr. Bishop if he accepted the challenge. Mr. Bishop if he accepted the challenge. Mr. Bishop demurred. He had experimented before with Prof. Lankester and found him a hard subject. The chances he evidently seemed to think were ten to one against his success with Mr. Lankester. To give him a fair chance, he thought he ought to try with someone with whom he had not experimented before. He had, for instance, experimented with Mr. Waddy, and if he were selected as medium the chances were ten to one that he would be successful. It would be fairer to reject all whose capacity for being read had been tested beforehand, and confine the experiment to a new subject, to be freely selected by the audience. Prof. Lankester did not deny the reasonable nature of this suggestion, but a large proportion of the audience roared their disapproval. A heated and violent wrangle ensued, in the course of which Mr. Bishop was freely denounced as a shuffler.

At last an old gentleman with stentorian lungs proposed that the chairman should nominate a medium. Mr. Lane Fox was fused to join the committee—that he had lungs proposed that the chairman should nominate a medium, Mr. Lane Fox was suggested and negatived. A Mr. Lees was also rejected, and at last, amid great cheering, Col. Stratham of the 20th Lancashire rifle volunteers, consented to submit to the experiment. A truitless attempt was made to induce Dr. Lankester to impart the number of Mr. Russel's note to Col. Stratham for the purpose of the experiment, and then Col. Trench, to whose high character the Hon. Edward Stanhope bore emphatic testi-mony, and who declared that he had never seen at the Mr. Richen or Col. Stratham he mony, and who declared that he had never seen either Mr. Bishop or Col. Strathim be-fore, produced a £5 note, the number of which he did not know, and handed it to the chairman. A large blackboard was then introduced, on which Mr. Bishop was to introduced, on which Mr. Bishop was to wrive the as yet unknown number of the note. In presence of all the audience, closely scrutinized by the committee and the chairman, while standing some yards distant from Mr. Bushop, Col. Stratham unfolded the note far enough to master its number. No one else could see it, nor did anyone else in the hall know it but himself. Mr. Bishop then took his stand headed. of the note. He then blind. folded himself and, grasping a piece of chalk, began to "read" the mind of his com-

When he reached the last figure he hesitated for a moment, clutched Col. Statham's hand, and then wrote down "4." No one hand, and then wrote down "4." No one who saw the impassive countenance of the volunteer colonel could tell whether Mr. Bishop had succeeded or failed. "I have two guesses," he said, "by the terms of Mr. Labouchere's challenge. Have I read the number rightly?" Col. Statham opened the note, glanced at it, and then handed it to the chairman. Mr. Bishop had won his wager. The numbers were right, and the meeting burst into a roar of enthusiastic cheering, which was again renewed. Out. mager. The numbers were right, and the meeting burst into a roar of enthus/astic cheering, which was again renewed. Outside a great crowd was waiting to see the baloon ascent which was to announce the success or failure of the test. As it mounted in the air, displaying not the "furid red" color of failure, but the bright white light typical of success, the crowd cheered lustily. Inside the hall, when a mament's silence had been secured, Mr. Bishop said: "I appeal to this audience of three thousand Englishmen to demand of Mr. Henry Labouchere that he shall hand over to the Victoria hospital at Chelsea the £1000 he offered to stake that I could not read the note. I have met his challenge on every point. Will you demand the money?" A great shout of assent, followed by long and continued cheering, mingled with a few cries of "No!" brought the meeting to a close. On questioning Col. Statham afterward, he said that when Mr. Bishop had reached the last figure he (Col. Statham) forgot whether it was 4 or 0. It was when he was trying to recall that Mr. Bishop hesitated and grasped his hand. He then decided for the 4, which Mr. Bishop then wrote down.

P. STANCLIFFE, Montreal, General Manager, Canada CONFEDERATION LIFE

ASSOCIATION. RESIDENT-SIR W. P. HOWLAND, C.B.

Referring to the advertisement of this association in The World of Tu sday last, it may be explained that the much larger sum called for by the valuation made by Professor Cherriman, under the government standard for Canada, than is required by the valuation made by Mr. Homans on the standard for the State of New York, arises solely from the greater severity of the Mortality Table of the Institute of Actuaries of Great Britain as compared with the "American Experience" Table of Mortality, as the same rate of interest was used in each case.

The reason why the valuation made by this Association's own actuary of LLE FOR A STILL LARGER RESERVE than even that required by Professor Cherriman's valuation arises from the fact that the directors consider That SECURITY TO THE FOLICY-HOLDERS is the FURST thing, and, therefore, not content to provide simply as in other companies, they add an additional TEN per cent. to the liability under all BONUS ADDITIONS and PAID UP ASSURANCES AS WALLD.
