CURRENT TRADE CONDITIONS.

ONTARIO.

The past week has been an uneventful one in lumber circles. There has been less activity in shipments and fewer inquiries. The outlook for fall trade is not altogether promising, although taken in conjunction with the quantity of lumber for sale the conditions cannot be called unsatisfactory. So much of the season's production has already been contracted for that manufacturers are not seriously concerned as to the disposal of the balance. There is little doubt that the demand will absorb the supply before the cut for next season is ready for the market. It may be said that there is an entire absence of uneasiness in respect to white pine lumber, for the market for that lumber has so expanded within the past year or two that it is more a question of where the supply can be obtained than how the production can be disposed of. As to immediate demand, buyers appear to think that lumber is about as high as it will get and that nothing can be lost by holding off. On the other hand, the fact that prices are ruling firm shows the confidence the manufacturers and wholesalers have in the future of the market. In the Ottawa district pine shorts are firmer. A car shortage is again feared this fall and a few dealers are aiming to forestall the shortage by placing orders for their fall and winter requirements earlier than usual. This would seem to be a wise policy.

Reports from the Georgian Bay are that the drives are making splendid progress and that very few logs are likely to be hung up. There is a great scarcity of men for operations in the woods, which may again curtail the production.

QUEBEC AND NEW BRUNSWICK.

The strong position of spruce in the Eastern States has done much to help out the situation in the Maritime Provinces. It has been possible to dispose of all good lumber to advantage and manufacturers have been largely independent of the British market. It must not be supposed, however, that the European trade has been neglected, as considerable shipments have been made to France and Spain as well as to Great Britain. There is an urgent demand for wide spruce and persons having such stock for sale find no difficulty in obtaining a slight advance
