FRENCHMEN FIGHT PERFECT ACTION

Capture of Saddle Before Verdun Proves Brilliant Planning.

London, July 19.—(Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—The correspondent of Reuter's at French headquarters sends the first description of the French success of July 17, between Hill 304 and Avocourt Wood, on the right bank of the Meuse. He says: "It was a brilliant example of a perfectly staged infantry operation in which every possibility was provided for, and its success was due not only to the meticulous preparation, but to exact knowledge of the position and value of every piece in the enemy's game. The French objective was the capture of the saddle of the ridge between Hill 304 and the heights of Avocourt Wood, which were captured by the Germans on the 28th of June, after a short but fierce bombardment in which five hundred guns were suddenly turned on to a mile and a half of French trenches.

WAR SUMMARY

THE DAY'S EVENTS REVIEWED

THE Germans, in eastern Galicia, have massed a force in which their vaunted shock troops appear, and have begun an offensive against the Russians in the region of Zlochov. Berlin says that the attack is being conducted on a wide front. It is also claimed that German corps have pierced the Russian positions. The French, who are sending them into the battle against the Russians. One striking thing is the remarkable rapidity of the enemy's preparations for an offensive, if it is really a serious effort. It is, of course, unknown yet what weight the enemy will put into his eastern blows. He has shown in the west, especially in Flanders, that he is copying the British tactical methods. He may be able to make a superior force for the east, but the Russians have more guns than last year. His offensive has not developed sufficiently to permit of an estimate of its formidability. He showed last year that he could disregard the allies in the west to fight Rumania. He may attempt the same manoeuvre against Russia this year.

The British in Mesopotamia, altho stifling weather still forbids prolonged exertions, have contrived to make an advance of twelve miles on the Euphrates River in the past ten days. A column engaged a Turkish force in the direction of Ramadiya and inflicted a considerable loss on the Turks. The extreme heat then compelled the halting of the advance. This news shows that General Maude is still alive to the advantages of rapid action and the offensive.

The British beat off another heavy German attack in the region of Lombardeyde early yesterday morning. The enemy advanced under heavy bombardment and reached the British line at a few points. The German who entered British trenches had soon to get out when the British counter-attacked. The enemy attempted a raid west of Cherlay during the night, but he pressed his attack with great determination under a strong artillery support, the British infantry repelling the raiding parties with rifle and machine gun fire, so that they failed to reach the British line at any point. Visitors to the western front describe the British army as in splendid fettle to give battle, and they speak of the success at Messines as insignificant as compared with what is going to come.

The Germans made another determined effort against the French front between Craonne and Hurbelise yesterday, in an effort to regain a few precious high ground for observation purposes. Their attack completely failed on both flanks, while in the centre they reached only a few elements of the French first line trenches. Whenever the enemy does gain a footing in a French position, he almost at once has to go by reason of his inability to make headway, or to withstand the French counter-attacks.

The Russian Provisional Government, taking hold of affairs with a firm hand, has restored tranquillity in Petrograd. The anarchists have slunk away to their dens and the loyalist military men dominate the situation. Russian public opinion is getting ready to make a stern example of these hire. It is significant that anarchist unrest coincides with a German attempt to assume the offensive against Russia.

PLAN TO FINANCE OVERSEAS TRADE

Ottawa, Ont., July 19.—The special committee of the senate appointed to consider the best method of conserving and increasing domestic and overseas trade, that properly may not unduly suffer from the stimulus resulting from munitions orders is reported today to the senate. It first recommended the securing of the Canadian government's share in the incorporation of a Canadian trade corporation bank to finance the overseas contracts. The committee stated that the Canadian government and some of the leading industrial and commercial companies and individuals of Canada are willing to undertake the organization and operation of a Canadian corporation similar to the British organization, to conserve and extend Canada's trade after the war. It is noted that while the British were subjected to scrutiny and the organization, to conserve and extend Canada's trade after the war. MRS. CASSELMAN IS THE RIGHTFUL HEIR

High Court at Cornwall Dismisses Action Brought by Defendant's Uncle. Cornwall, July 19.—The adjourned sittings of the high court were concluded today before Sir Glenholme Falconbridge, chief justice. A few minor cases were disposed of, but the most important case of the day was that of Mrs. Cassemann vs. Cassemann. This was an action of great interest owing to the fact that it involved the question of heirship of the defendant. The plaintiff alleged that the defendant was the lawful heir and child of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Pruner, and that the letters of administration granted to the estate of her father, Pruner, by the surrogate court of York, in favor of the defendant, was void and should be revoked. The case was heard by the high court, and judgment was delivered, dismissing the action of the plaintiff, and calling on the defendant's counsel to the evidence finding that upon the general evidence, without taking into consideration the evidence of witnesses present at the birth of the defendant, it was absolutely beyond question that she was the lawful heir and only child and, in consequence, the plaintiff's claim was untenable. The plaintiff, Zeman Pruner, formerly of Morburg, is a brother of the late Herbert Pruner, and is now a resident of Salem, Oregon. Herbert Pruner at the time of his death was a resident of Cornwall, and was the father of the defendant, and the wife of Lorne Cassemann and resides in Ottawa.
