CONFERENCE PROGRESS

Progress at the Imperial Conference does not seem to be reported and the Premier is to make a statement early in the session on the work of the Canadian delegation this year. Some of the legislation left over from last year will likely be re-introduced and this may form part of this year's program from the throne. In some quarters it is predicted that the speech will announce a new policy for the year. There is still quite a lot of the old to dispose of.

An American has introduced the hiasbua, a new hair style in Paris, but the hair on one side of the head and short on the other is difficult to cut.

DUNCAN REPORT MEASURES IN THRONE SPEECH

Formal Opening of Canadian Parliament on Friday

OTTAWA, Dec. 7.—When Premier Mackenzie King returns from Europe tomorrow, he will find preparations complete for the opening of Parliament. The Speech from the Throne is practically complete, but it will probably be thoroughly overhauled at tomorrow's meeting of the cabinet. It is likely that a council will be called again on Thursday to whip into shape the government's declaration of policy for the session. While the Commons assemblies on Thursday from the Throne will not be actually read until Friday afternoon when the Governor-General formally opens Parliament. The speech is expected to indicate the government's plan to carry out the recommendations contained in the report of the Duncan Commission on the Maritime situation.

DUNCAN REPORT MEASURES IN THRONE SPEECH

The usual speculation is going forward as to the contents of the speech. Immigration, the fuel problem, railway extension and financing, including the Hudson Bay Railway, are likely subjects to be touched upon. The government's plan for the carrying out of all or part of the recommendations of the commission which last spring investigated the claims of the Maritime Provinces is another almost certain matter for discussion. The report of the commission has not been published, but the Prime Minister has promised that it will be tabled in the House as soon as Parliament assembles.

World News In Short Metre

LONDON—J. Dunkerly, a Sheffield merchant, has a cat which doesn't know which of its tail to wag. The feline freak, born recently, has two heads, six perfect legs, and two tails, in addition of course, to the usual nine.

World News In Short Metre

ROME—King Victor Emmanuel of Italy has a sense of humor. Chattering with Mussolini recently, the king dropped his handkerchief. The dictator picked it up and asked if he might keep it as a souvenir. "No," said the king. "It is now his own thing, which you let me put my nose into."

World News In Short Metre

RACINE, Wis.—Frank Revela of Racine was listed as killed in the World War. Instead he was alive but had lost his memory through shell shock. He wandered about Italy for years, but recently recovered his memory. Now he's on his way home again.
