

HOT WEATHER FOG

No Vim, No Snap, No Energy, Exertion Drained and Work Shunned.

"Fagged right out," is an appropriate way to describe the feeling of many people during the hot summer months. No strength, no vigor, no map, no ambition, too weary to work and too languid to take any pleasure in life. You need a tonic for this summer fog and the very best summer tonic in the world is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

You can get the pills from any dealer in medicine or they will be sent paid at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, by writing to Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. Be sure you get the genuine with the Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People on the wrapper around the box.

AUSTRALIA AGAIN HARD-UP

Antipodean Governments Seeking to borrow £8,000,000 More.

The course of the British money market is being watched with intense interest by those responsible for the finances of Australia, says the London Daily Mail.

The need of all the borrowers is New South Wales, whose Government is now seeking to borrow no less than £20,000,000 of borrowed money in a little over four years.

Victoria needs £2,100,000 immediately, and must shortly obtain a further £5,547,000, which will mature on January 1, 1934.

Queensland is now of all the Australian States the most heavily indebted, with a total of £10,000,000, which has just placed at home a loan of £4,750,000, but the other Australian States are not likely to be able to follow her example, for, as a Victorian Minister recently remarked to a departmental committee of the question to think of borrowing £5,000,000 in Victoria.

Recent analyses of the various Australian debts show that the dead-weight debt, making deductions for productive works, is now as much per head as the national debt of England.

Another unfavorable symptom is that the population of Victoria has actually declined in the year 1932. Until gross economies are effected in the Government and administration, and public works cease the prospect for the British investor cannot be considered rosy.

CHOLERA INFANTUM

Cholera infantum is one of the most dreaded diseases of infancy. It is prevalent during the summer in spite of all the care mothers may take to guard against it.

It is sometimes progressive, and death occurs in a few hours no matter what care is given the child. The first thing to do is to give the child a few drops of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

My doctor advised me to try Baby's Own Tablets and in twenty-four hours baby was better; the vomiting and purging ceased and he regained strength rapidly.

Keep the Tablets in the house—their prompt use may save your little one's life. Sold by medicine dealers or sent postpaid at 25 cents a box by writing to Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

ZERO AN ANCIENT TERM

Was In Use by the Babylonians 3,600 Years Ago.

The term zero, which is used to designate a cipher and in meteorology the entire absence of wind in the atmosphere, was, according to a mathematical historian, Moritz Cantor, used by the Babylonians about the year 1700 B. C. This, however, is merely a supposition. It has not been definitely established that zero was in use any earlier than 400 A. D.

It is interesting to note that the Arabs began to employ it. Through the Arabs it was generally known to Europe until several centuries later, notwithstanding its great advantages. For a considerable time there were two parties among the European scholars. One party, known as the algorists, favored the adoption of the Hindu system of notation (falsely called Arabic), with its position values, while the other, known as the abacists, favored the Roman notation without zero or position value.

The general adoption of the Hindu system was greatly facilitated by the facts that it was explained in most of the calendars for more than a century, beginning in 1360, and that the medieval universities frequently offered courses devoted to the use of this notation.

AMENDED PROVERBS

First be sure you're right, then back up. All the world's a stage, but many of the actors are only understudies. A man is known by the company he keeps for.

All's well that ends the way you want to have it. It is more blind to give than to have to pay for your own gifts. Easy lies the head that thinks it knows it all.

Many are called, but few like to get up, especially if it is a cold morning.

In Peace and War Or, The End of It All

CHAPTER XXV.—(Continued.)

There was a strange, hard ring in the young warator's tone as he echoed the forbidding words and turned gravely away. The sound seemed to strike some sympathetic chord in the good lady's heart, for she, too, looked almost mournful.

"I would give a good deal to have you safe back again," murmured Mrs. Wylie in an undertone. The remark was hardly addressed to him, and he allowed it to pass unnoticed.

"My appetite has been very variable, my nerves unstrung and I often feel a complete indisposition to work. After trying several medicines without benefit, I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and after taking a few boxes I felt better than I had been for months, and equal to any exertion. I don't know anything to equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills when one feels fagged out."

"You can get the pills from any dealer in medicine or they will be sent paid at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, by writing to Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. Be sure you get the genuine with the Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People on the wrapper around the box."

CHAPTER XXV.—(Continued.)

which is characteristic of our English summer days, and has its equal in no other land, over no other sea. The yellow sun was high in the heavens, with nothing more formidable to obstruct its rays than a slight shimmering haze. The air was light and balmy indeed, in earth and sea there was a subtle buoyancy which tells of coming spring, and creates in men's hearts a brave contemplation of life.

It was, I think, a dangerous hour for two young people away together, and the memory of the greater events has passed in our hearts long after the danger, and we are both self-contained and resolute, but no human being is immune from the influence of outward things.

For some time the two young people spoke in a scrappy way, of indifferent topics. The narrow path only allowed one to pass at a time, and the moor was so broken that the conversation was broken up by the almost impossible. After a while, the Mizen Heath Coastguard Station had been left behind, and the precipitous slope descended, and sea-walk afforded better walking, and the conversation assumed a more personal vein.

"Tell me," said Brenda pleasantly, "your plans in the future, and how absolutely nothing of your proposed movements."

"I know nothing myself, except in a very general way. Of course we shall be guided by circumstances."

"Yes, I take two men with me. The campaign will be on too large a scale for one man to watch unaided. These two fellows act as my lieutenants. I have chosen them myself. One is a future barrister, and a taste for sport and literature, and the other is a soldier, twenty years older than myself. We shall be a funny trio, but I think it will be successful, for we mean to make it."

"The two men are full of energy and hard headed, and I think our mission as voluminous and as comprehensive as Motke's. It will be a great war, and we intend our history to be the only one worth reading. The old soldier is a Frenchman, so we shall talk our story in two languages simultaneously."

Brenda was not listening with the attention she usually accorded to Theodore Trist, whatever the subject of his discourse might happen to be, and he knew it. She rarely failed to interrupt him with a string of remarks, and he knew it. He was a Turk into a trench with a packet of cigarettes, a little food, rifle, and a sackful of cartridges, and it will take a considerable number of Russians to get him out."

"I hope it will be a long war," she said, before passing on to another subject.

He answered without deliberation, as if he had already pondered over the question at leisure with a declamatory air.

"I think so. It will go on all through the summer and autumn. As things get on the coast, I will probably pull herself together. It is a way she has. It may even continue actively right on to the winter. The Turks will be on the defensive, which suits them exactly. Put a Turk into a trench with a packet of cigarettes, a little food, rifle, and a sackful of cartridges, and it will take a considerable number of Russians to get him out."

"I hope it will be a long war," she said, before passing on to another subject.

He closed the door and walked slowly back toward the bow-window. As things got on the coast, I will probably pull herself together. It is a way she has. It may even continue actively right on to the winter. The Turks will be on the defensive, which suits them exactly. Put a Turk into a trench with a packet of cigarettes, a little food, rifle, and a sackful of cartridges, and it will take a considerable number of Russians to get him out."

"I hope it will be a long war," she said, before passing on to another subject.

He closed the door and walked slowly back toward the bow-window. As things got on the coast, I will probably pull herself together. It is a way she has. It may even continue actively right on to the winter. The Turks will be on the defensive, which suits them exactly. Put a Turk into a trench with a packet of cigarettes, a little food, rifle, and a sackful of cartridges, and it will take a considerable number of Russians to get him out."

"I hope it will be a long war," she said, before passing on to another subject.

He closed the door and walked slowly back toward the bow-window. As things got on the coast, I will probably pull herself together. It is a way she has. It may even continue actively right on to the winter. The Turks will be on the defensive, which suits them exactly. Put a Turk into a trench with a packet of cigarettes, a little food, rifle, and a sackful of cartridges, and it will take a considerable number of Russians to get him out."

"I hope it will be a long war," she said, before passing on to another subject.

He closed the door and walked slowly back toward the bow-window. As things got on the coast, I will probably pull herself together. It is a way she has. It may even continue actively right on to the winter. The Turks will be on the defensive, which suits them exactly. Put a Turk into a trench with a packet of cigarettes, a little food, rifle, and a sackful of cartridges, and it will take a considerable number of Russians to get him out."

Results from common soaps: eczema, coarse hands, ragged clothes, shrunken flannels.

SUNLIGHT SOAP REDUCES EXPENSE

Ask for the Octopus Mark certain time, or be in a certain place, there is a 'D.' understood, indicating the difference between the course of a man and that of a woman."

"No—naturally not. But what can you understand by your power of facing the two possibilities—or, at the least, the latter—with apparent indifference. Is that the difference that exists between the course of a man and that of a woman?"

"No—naturally not. But what can you understand by your power of facing the two possibilities—or, at the least, the latter—with apparent indifference. Is that the difference that exists between the course of a man and that of a woman?"

"No—naturally not. But what can you understand by your power of facing the two possibilities—or, at the least, the latter—with apparent indifference. Is that the difference that exists between the course of a man and that of a woman?"

"No—naturally not. But what can you understand by your power of facing the two possibilities—or, at the least, the latter—with apparent indifference. Is that the difference that exists between the course of a man and that of a woman?"

"No—naturally not. But what can you understand by your power of facing the two possibilities—or, at the least, the latter—with apparent indifference. Is that the difference that exists between the course of a man and that of a woman?"

"No—naturally not. But what can you understand by your power of facing the two possibilities—or, at the least, the latter—with apparent indifference. Is that the difference that exists between the course of a man and that of a woman?"

"No—naturally not. But what can you understand by your power of facing the two possibilities—or, at the least, the latter—with apparent indifference. Is that the difference that exists between the course of a man and that of a woman?"

"No—naturally not. But what can you understand by your power of facing the two possibilities—or, at the least, the latter—with apparent indifference. Is that the difference that exists between the course of a man and that of a woman?"

"No—naturally not. But what can you understand by your power of facing the two possibilities—or, at the least, the latter—with apparent indifference. Is that the difference that exists between the course of a man and that of a woman?"

"No—naturally not. But what can you understand by your power of facing the two possibilities—or, at the least, the latter—with apparent indifference. Is that the difference that exists between the course of a man and that of a woman?"

"No—naturally not. But what can you understand by your power of facing the two possibilities—or, at the least, the latter—with apparent indifference. Is that the difference that exists between the course of a man and that of a woman?"

"No—naturally not. But what can you understand by your power of facing the two possibilities—or, at the least, the latter—with apparent indifference. Is that the difference that exists between the course of a man and that of a woman?"

"No—naturally not. But what can you understand by your power of facing the two possibilities—or, at the least, the latter—with apparent indifference. Is that the difference that exists between the course of a man and that of a woman?"

"No—naturally not. But what can you understand by your power of facing the two possibilities—or, at the least, the latter—with apparent indifference. Is that the difference that exists between the course of a man and that of a woman?"

"No—naturally not. But what can you understand by your power of facing the two possibilities—or, at the least, the latter—with apparent indifference. Is that the difference that exists between the course of a man and that of a woman?"

"No—naturally not. But what can you understand by your power of facing the two possibilities—or, at the least, the latter—with apparent indifference. Is that the difference that exists between the course of a man and that of a woman?"

"No—naturally not. But what can you understand by your power of facing the two possibilities—or, at the least, the latter—with apparent indifference. Is that the difference that exists between the course of a man and that of a woman?"

"No—naturally not. But what can you understand by your power of facing the two possibilities—or, at the least, the latter—with apparent indifference. Is that the difference that exists between the course of a man and that of a woman?"

"No—naturally not. But what can you understand by your power of facing the two possibilities—or, at the least, the latter—with apparent indifference. Is that the difference that exists between the course of a man and that of a woman?"

"No—naturally not. But what can you understand by your power of facing the two possibilities—or, at the least, the latter—with apparent indifference. Is that the difference that exists between the course of a man and that of a woman?"

"No—naturally not. But what can you understand by your power of facing the two possibilities—or, at the least, the latter—with apparent indifference. Is that the difference that exists between the course of a man and that of a woman?"

"No—naturally not. But what can you understand by your power of facing the two possibilities—or, at the least, the latter—with apparent indifference. Is that the difference that exists between the course of a man and that of a woman?"

"No—naturally not. But what can you understand by your power of facing the two possibilities—or, at the least, the latter—with apparent indifference. Is that the difference that exists between the course of a man and that of a woman?"

PERSONAL POINTERS.

Notes of Interest About Some Well-Known People.

Lord Roberts is a clever chess-player, but dislikes all card-games. Chess, indeed, may be called his favorite recreation.

The new Premier of Tasmania, the Hon. W. B. Propping, is only forty-two, and has been successively a boy worker in a flour-mill, a watchman, a school-teacher, and a barrister.

Mr. Joseph Chamberlain is not, as is often averred, devoted only to orchids; he is exceedingly fond of roses, and the rose is his favorite flower to see. Mrs. Chamberlain's favorite flower is the violet, and on their island is a singularly beautiful variety of the violet.

His three sisters, the late Cardinal Vaughan was the eldest member of one of the most remarkable families which have ever lived in Great Britain.

Mr. Choate, the United States Ambassador to Great Britain, is the reputation of being the cleverest, wittiest, and most successful American lawyer in London.

Prince Ferdinand of Bulgaria entertains a number of prejudices of a superstitious character. He has an aversion against Fridays and the number thirteen. This peculiarity is not shared by his Ministers. But on the occasion of the recent opening of the harbor of Bourgas, the minister of Public Works found himself confronted by the necessity of referring in his speech to the construction of a railway from Jambouli to Bourgas on May 18 (old style), 1890—exactly thirteen years ago.

He recalled to him one night after a German victory, when four French prisoners, all noblemen, were in their prison in Paris under escort. They stood at a deserted window, and gazed cheerfully over the prospect of supper. A prince was standing by, laughing, although they would have brained him had he made three steps toward the door.

He recalled to him one night after a German victory, when four French prisoners, all noblemen, were in their prison in Paris under escort. They stood at a deserted window, and gazed cheerfully over the prospect of supper. A prince was standing by, laughing, although they would have brained him had he made three steps toward the door.

He recalled to him one night after a German victory, when four French prisoners, all noblemen, were in their prison in Paris under escort. They stood at a deserted window, and gazed cheerfully over the prospect of supper. A prince was standing by, laughing, although they would have brained him had he made three steps toward the door.

He recalled to him one night after a German victory, when four French prisoners, all noblemen, were in their prison in Paris under escort. They stood at a deserted window, and gazed cheerfully over the prospect of supper. A prince was standing by, laughing, although they would have brained him had he made three steps toward the door.

He recalled to him one night after a German victory, when four French prisoners, all noblemen, were in their prison in Paris under escort. They stood at a deserted window, and gazed cheerfully over the prospect of supper. A prince was standing by, laughing, although they would have brained him had he made three steps toward the door.

He recalled to him one night after a German victory, when four French prisoners, all noblemen, were in their prison in Paris under escort. They stood at a deserted window, and gazed cheerfully over the prospect of supper. A prince was standing by, laughing, although they would have brained him had he made three steps toward the door.

He recalled to him one night after a German victory, when four French prisoners, all noblemen, were in their prison in Paris under escort. They stood at a deserted window, and gazed cheerfully over the prospect of supper. A prince was standing by, laughing, although they would have brained him had he made three steps toward the door.

He recalled to him one night after a German victory, when four French prisoners, all noblemen, were in their prison in Paris under escort. They stood at a deserted window, and gazed cheerfully over the prospect of supper. A prince was standing by, laughing, although they would have brained him had he made three steps toward the door.

He recalled to him one night after a German victory, when four French prisoners, all noblemen, were in their prison in Paris under escort. They stood at a deserted window, and gazed cheerfully over the prospect of supper. A prince was standing by, laughing, although they would have brained him had he made three steps toward the door.

He recalled to him one night after a German victory, when four French prisoners, all noblemen, were in their prison in Paris under escort. They stood at a deserted window, and gazed cheerfully over the prospect of supper. A prince was standing by, laughing, although they would have brained him had he made three steps toward the door.

He recalled to him one night after a German victory, when four French prisoners, all noblemen, were in their prison in Paris under escort. They stood at a deserted window, and gazed cheerfully over the prospect of supper. A prince was standing by, laughing, although they would have brained him had he made three steps toward the door.

He recalled to him one night after a German victory, when four French prisoners, all noblemen, were in their prison in Paris under escort. They stood at a deserted window, and gazed cheerfully over the prospect of supper. A prince was standing by, laughing, although they would have brained him had he made three steps toward the door.

He recalled to him one night after a German victory, when four French prisoners, all noblemen, were in their prison in Paris under escort. They stood at a deserted window, and gazed cheerfully over the prospect of supper. A prince was standing by, laughing, although they would have brained him had he made three steps toward the door.

He recalled to him one night after a German victory, when four French prisoners, all noblemen, were in their prison in Paris under escort. They stood at a deserted window, and gazed cheerfully over the prospect of supper. A prince was standing by, laughing, although they would have brained him had he made three steps toward the door.

He recalled to him one night after a German victory, when four French prisoners, all noblemen, were in their prison in Paris under escort. They stood at a deserted window, and gazed cheerfully over the prospect of supper. A prince was standing by, laughing, although they would have brained him had he made three steps toward the door.

He recalled to him one night after a German victory, when four French prisoners, all noblemen, were in their prison in Paris under escort. They stood at a deserted window, and gazed cheerfully over the prospect of supper. A prince was standing by, laughing, although they would have brained him had he made three steps toward the door.

He recalled to him one night after a German victory, when four French prisoners, all noblemen, were in their prison in Paris under escort. They stood at a deserted window, and gazed cheerfully over the prospect of supper. A prince was standing by, laughing, although they would have brained him had he made three steps toward the door.

He recalled to him one night after a German victory, when four French prisoners, all noblemen, were in their prison in Paris under escort. They stood at a deserted window, and gazed cheerfully over the prospect of supper. A prince was standing by, laughing, although they would have brained him had he made three steps toward the door.

He recalled to him one night after a German victory, when four French prisoners, all noblemen, were in their prison in Paris under escort. They stood at a deserted window, and gazed cheerfully over the prospect of supper. A prince was standing by, laughing, although they would have brained him had he made three steps toward the door.

He recalled to him one night after a German victory, when four French prisoners, all noblemen, were in their prison in Paris under escort. They stood at a deserted window, and gazed cheerfully over the prospect of supper. A prince was standing by, laughing, although they would have brained him had he made three steps toward the door.

Each chest of Blue Ribbon Tea is lined with lead—the tea poured in and a sheet of lead placed on top and soldered down. No air or moisture can possibly reach

Blue Ribbon Ceylon Tea

The taste and aroma are retained absolutely unimpaired. The richness, delicacy and creamy taste are all there to cheer and solace every moment if you want.

Black Mixed Ceylon Green Forty Cents Should be Fifty Ask for the Red Label

REMINISCENCE OF WAR. Connected With the Entry of the German Army Into Paris.

A German officer is quoted in the London Outlook as telling this story of the position of the German Army in Paris. It was a magnificent spectacle. Four columns were riding ahead, and the band was playing Schubert's wonderful march. Yet in memory the German officer confessed that through the glare of trumpets and beating of drums he heard one lesser sound which made his heart sick with the dreary pathos of war.

He recalled to him one night after a German victory, when four French prisoners, all noblemen, were in their prison in Paris under escort. They stood at a deserted window, and gazed cheerfully over the prospect of supper. A prince was standing by, laughing, although they would have brained him had he made three steps toward the door.

He recalled to him one night after a German victory, when four French prisoners, all noblemen, were in their prison in Paris under escort. They stood at a deserted window, and gazed cheerfully over the prospect of supper. A prince was standing by, laughing, although they would have brained him had he made three steps toward the door.

He recalled to him one night after a German victory, when four French prisoners, all noblemen, were in their prison in Paris under escort. They stood at a deserted window, and gazed cheerfully over the prospect of supper. A prince was standing by, laughing, although they would have brained him had he made three steps toward the door.

He recalled to him one night after a German victory, when four French prisoners, all noblemen, were in their prison in Paris under escort. They stood at a deserted window, and gazed cheerfully over the prospect of supper. A prince was standing by, laughing, although they would have brained him had he made three steps toward the door.

He recalled to him one night after a German victory, when four French prisoners, all noblemen, were in their prison in Paris under escort. They stood at a deserted window, and gazed cheerfully over the prospect of supper. A prince was standing by, laughing, although they would have brained him had he made three steps toward the door.

He recalled to him one night after a German victory, when four French prisoners, all noblemen, were in their prison in Paris under escort. They stood at a deserted window, and gazed cheerfully over the prospect of supper. A prince was standing by, laughing, although they would have brained him had he made three steps toward the door.

He recalled to him one night after a German victory, when four French prisoners, all noblemen, were in their prison in Paris under escort. They stood at a deserted window, and gazed cheerfully over the prospect of supper. A prince was standing by, laughing, although they would have brained him had he made three steps toward the door.

He recalled to him one night after a German victory, when four French prisoners, all noblemen, were in their prison in Paris under escort. They stood at a deserted window, and gazed cheerfully over the prospect of supper. A prince was standing by, laughing, although they would have brained him had he made three steps toward the door.

He recalled to him one night after a German victory, when four French prisoners, all noblemen, were in their prison in Paris under escort. They stood at a deserted window, and gazed cheerfully over the prospect of supper. A prince was standing by, laughing, although they would have brained him had he made three steps toward the door.

He recalled to him one night after a German victory, when four French prisoners, all noblemen, were in their prison in Paris under escort. They stood at a deserted window, and gazed cheerfully over the prospect of supper. A prince was standing by, laughing, although they would have brained him had he made three steps toward the door.

He recalled to him one night after a German victory, when four French prisoners, all noblemen, were in their prison in Paris under escort. They stood at a deserted window, and gazed cheerfully over the prospect of supper. A prince was standing by, laughing, although they would have brained him had he made three steps toward the door.

He recalled to him one night after a German victory, when four French prisoners, all noblemen, were in their prison in Paris under escort. They stood at a deserted window, and gazed cheerfully over the prospect of supper. A prince was standing by, laughing, although they would have brained him had he made three steps toward the door.

He recalled to him one night after a German victory, when four French prisoners, all noblemen, were in their prison in Paris under escort. They stood at a deserted window, and gazed cheerfully over the prospect of supper. A prince was standing by, laughing, although they would have brained him had he made three steps toward the door.

He recalled to him one night after a German victory, when four French prisoners, all noblemen, were in their prison in Paris under escort. They stood at a deserted window, and gazed cheerfully over the prospect of supper. A prince was standing by, laughing, although they would have brained him had he made three steps toward the door.

He recalled to him one night after a German victory, when four French prisoners, all noblemen, were in their prison in Paris under escort. They stood at a deserted window, and gazed cheerfully over the prospect of supper. A prince was standing by, laughing, although they would have brained him had he made three steps toward the door.

He recalled to him one night after a German victory, when four French prisoners, all noblemen, were in their prison in Paris under escort. They stood at a deserted window, and gazed cheerfully over the prospect of supper. A prince was standing by, laughing, although they would have brained him had he made three steps toward the door.

He recalled to him one night after a German victory, when four French prisoners, all noblemen, were in their prison in Paris under escort. They stood at a deserted window, and gazed cheerfully over the prospect of supper. A prince was standing by, laughing, although they would have brained him had he made three steps toward the door.

He recalled to him one night after a German victory, when four French prisoners, all noblemen, were in their prison in Paris under escort. They stood at a deserted window, and gazed cheerfully over the prospect of supper. A prince was standing by, laughing, although they would have brained him had he made three steps toward the door.

He recalled to him one night after a German victory, when four French prisoners, all noblemen, were in their prison in Paris under escort. They stood at a deserted window, and gazed cheerfully over the prospect of supper. A prince was standing by, laughing, although they would have brained him had he made three steps toward the door.

BOECKH'S Scrubbing Brushes. Take the Backache out of Cleaning. They are absolutely the best brushes money can buy—the best made—backache does not fall out of Boeckh's Scrubbing Brushes. None Genuine Without Name "Boeckh" on back of Brush.

OUR BRANDS: King Edward, Headlight, Eagle, Victoria, Little Comet. Don't Experiment with other inferior brands. USE EDDY'S. NULL CANADA.

Dyeing! Cleaning! For the very best and most economical "BRITISH AMERICAN DYING CO." each for goods in your own or send direct. Montreal, Toronto, Ottawa, Quebec.

PATENTS IN ALL COUNTRIES. RIDOUT & MAYBEE. 103 Bay St. TORONTO.

ORANGES LEMONS. WE HAVE THE BEST BANANAS. Carload every week. All the above at market prices. We can also handle Butter, Eggs, Poultry, Maple Syrup and other produce to advantage for you.

INFANTS' DELIGHT Toilet Soap. Best for Big Folks & Little Folks. JOHN TAYLOR & CO. Perfumers and Soap Makers TORONTO.

Minard's Liniment Lumberman's Friend. I was cured of painful Gout by MINARD'S LINIMENT. CHATHAM, ONT. I was cured of Inflammation of MINARD'S LINIMENT. WASH, ONT. I was cured of Facial Neuralgia by MINARD'S LINIMENT. PARKDALE, ONT.

Good Things to Eat on the Lawn. Libby, McNeill & Libby, Chicago. ISSUE NO. 32-03

Jim Dumps asserted, "Too much meat is summer cause too much heat. What shall we eat all summer long. That, without meat, shall keep us strong. And in the best of summer trim? Why, 'Force,' of course," laughed "Sunny Jim."

Force. The strength of meat without the heat. Excludes Chops and Steaks. 'Force' is a regular breakfast food in my family to the exclusion of steak or chops the old standard. A. GRANOV.

IT READS LIKE A MIRACLO

ONLY DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS ARE DOING STUNNING RESULTS DAILY.

Reuben Dr