SUNDAY SCHOOL

LESSON

By William T. Ellis.

The International Sunday School Lesson for June 8 is, "Obedience."— Matt. 23:23.

It is remarkable what a ghastly separation people often manage to make between their religion and their life. Not in the persons of hypocritical intent in whose thought and life duty is divorced from devotion. There are many who make much of their religion, put it as crowded and dotted into the corner, leaving all the rest of their lives empty and unfilled by it. Many there are also who would live enough religion to keep them classed among "the religious" and yet not enough to make real demands upon their time and attention enough to save for them the life eternal, but not enough in any wise to affect the life temporal.

Then there are, undoubtedly those who wear their religion as a mask. Jesus had seen such among the religious classes of his day—the scribes, the Pharisees and the teachers of the Law. He said they looked well outwardly, but inwardly—"They were like whitened sepulchres, which are beautiful without, but within are full of dead men's bones and all uncleanness."

In the sermon on the Mount the great Teacher makes it plain that religion is eminently practical. It is not mere doctrine, it is duty. "God-liness is profitable unto all things, having promise of the life that now is,
and of that which is to come.

Obedience is the price of life.
Jesus declared: "Not everyone that saith unto me, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven." The clear visioned Christ, the great searcher of the heart will distinguish. Not all the clamorous and self-complacent professors of orthodoxy shall enter, however repeatedly, loudly and familiarly they call "Lord, Lord."

The confession "Lord, Lord" is symbolic of a sound creed, as well as a religious profession. It is as much to say that there are many who have an unhesitating belief in the doctrine of grace and of God, who nevertheless are not true disciples of Jesus. He demands a profession of his name, but those who offer only this, he will exclude and reject.
Faithfulness as well as faith, is necessary to secure entrance into that realm of bliss where his servants serve him with no divided affections.

It will be sold to him as standard. He had no zeal to conform to their type of correctness, for he measured himself—said this down as a principle for all his disciples—by the unchanging will of the Father, and by revelation of the great day of clear vision.

As Jesus lived his own life servantly, so he taught that there is a day coming when all men's characters shall be discovered, and their judgment settled. Doubtless there will be great consternation among many of the lowly professors of Christ. Astonished and incredulous they will cry: "Lord, Lord, have we not stood among the people as thy representatives in the world, preachers of the gospel?
Have we not cast out demons in thy name, and in thy name done many wonderful works?"

Up from the depths of a city's slums by way of a rescue mission, occasionally comes a dramatic story of one whose life had in its time stood high and shining, but who, for one cause or another, had become a castaway. Of the thousands who appeared in the Bowery Branch of the New York Y. M. C. A. for relief work last year twenty per cent. were college men. Some leaders of movement were to be lifted out of the gutter. How vividly illustrate the Master's teaching that no man is saved by his standing. Position in life, reputation, diplomas, usefulness—none of these are sufficient to save in the crises of life, or in that grand before his Maker for judgment.

It is then that the thoughts of the heart must chord with the outward seeming in loving fidelity to the two worlds. The thought is startling, but fully warranted, that those from whom men might vote as the most religious, may be found among the rejected before the Searcher of hearts.

In the book of Matthew the Judgement day is depicted for us in the imagery of Christ seated upon the throne dividing the sheep from the goats. The sheep he places on his right hand and the goats upon his left. To those on his right hand he says: "Come ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world." "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto me." To those on his left hand he says: "Depart from me ye cursed, into everlasting fire prepared for the devil and his angels." "Inasmuch as ye did it not unto one of the least of these ye did it not unto me."

The great final test of religion is not religiousness, but a relation; not what have I done, not what have I believed, not what have I achieved, but what is my relation to Christ?
So the great Teacher makes it plain that he will openly declare that he never knew these Jews who profess to know him with the simple command: "Depart from me ye workers of iniquity." As unbeliever departs from the presence of God, so the unbeliever must forever depart from the presence of God, and from the glory of his power, "outcast."

A Parable of Foundation and Floods.

This whole mountainside sermon concludes with one of those exquisite parables whose pictorial beauty and spiritual insight always remarkable are in this case elevated into a strain of solemn grandeur and awful impressiveness. Jesus compared the persons who hear and do his
