THE man who lives for himself alone lives for a mean fellow.

If you are a wise man you will treat the world as the moon treats it. Show it only one side of yourself, seldom show yourself too much at a time, and let what you show be calm, cool and polished. But look at every side of this world.

GEN. SMITH, in Congress, while delivering one of the long, dreary speeches for which he was noted, said to Henry Clay, "You speak, sir, for the present generation, but I speak for posterity."

"Yes," replied the great Kentuckian, "and it seems you are resolved to speak till your audience arrives."

"I'll take two children, if you have them, cheap," said a tall countryman on entering an oyster cellar in one of the down-town streets the other day. "Two children? what two children?" said the astonished proprietor. "Well, I ain't got none myself, and don't your wife," replied the other.

"Oh! we mean families supplied with oysters," said the proprietor.

"Why in thunder don't you say so, then?" and the family seeker hastily evacuated the premises.
