

1771.
 April.

taken from some part or property of a Martin; such as, the White Martin, the Black Martin, the Summer Martin, the Martin's Head, the Martin's Foot, the Martin's Heart, the Martin's Tail, &c. *

23d.

On the twenty-third, as I hinted above, we began to move forward, and to shape our course nearly North; but the weather was in general so hot, and so much snow had, in consequence, been melted, as made it bad walking in snow-shoes, and such exceeding heavy hauling, that it was the third of May before we could arrive at Clowey, though the distance was not above eighty-five miles from Thelwey-aza-yeth. In our way we crossed part of two small Lakes, called Tittameg Lake and Searack Lake; neither of which are of any note, though both abound with fine fish.

May
 3d.

* Matonabbee had eight wives, and they were all called Martins.