Catholic High School

Closing Exercises.

On Tuesday evening last the Catholic High School held its closing exercises and the distribution of premiums to the successful boys took place. His Lordship Mr. Justice Curran occupied the chair, and the front seats were filled by Rev. Fathers McShane, McGrath and McKenna; Messrs. C. F. Smith, M. Egan, J. H. Semple, Catholic School Commissioner, B. Tansey and many others. The hall was crowded to its utmost capacity by parents of the pupils and friend of the institution. The following was the programme of the evening:

Chorus, "Happy Old School Days," choir; character song, "Hats of '98," the Glee Club; elocution class, W. Wall, A. Kilkery, F. Doran, C. Wright; musical drill, elementary and preparatory; song, "The Cobbler," juniors; dialogue, "Teacher Wanted," J. Halpin, M. Kilkery, W. Wall, W. Innes, R. Lynch, G. Anderson, F. Doran; character song, "A Soldier I Will Be," juniors; dialogue, "The Haunted House," W. Wall, E. Doran, C. Duffy.

The admirable manner in which each number was rendered, eliciting the heartiest applause, gave evidence of the excellent training at the school.

The Chairman then requested the Rev. Father McShane, chaplain of the school, to say a few parting words.

The rev. gentleman was enthusiastically received, and spoke with visible emotion. He said he need pronounce no eulogy on the work done by the professors, as the results spoke for themselves.

One feature about the school work that commended itself to educators was that the education imparted should do more than train pupils in worldly knowledge and commercial education, the schools should be an addition or an annex to the home training.

A school to be successful must turn out gentlemen in the real sense of the word. Parents must not think that because their boys were polite they became little girls. On the contrary, the boy who was cultured, who showed genteel speech and good manners was the most boyish boy and became the most manly man. Besides his chances of success were increased, for an employer would always prefer the polite, cultured boy to one who did not possess these qualities.

The reverend gentleman referred to the rumors of changes; he did not know what would happen, but if he were allowed a word of advice, he would say to parents that in the interest of their children they should keep them under professors who make them young gentlemen as well as good scholars. The cultured polite boy was seen to attract the attention of those who were seeking the proper material for positions worth having. He gave his own experience with the choice of sanctuary boys, and his words seemed to impress the audience in a marked manner. Those brought up in this school would one day be a credit to themselves and their parents. He would most probably under the new arrangements, sever his connection with these youths, whom he had learned to love and cherish; but he would always watch their future careers with an affectionate interest and keep a fond eye on the school itself whatever might be in store for it.

Mr. Justice Curran then spoke. He said, the admirable address of Father McShane relieved him from the necessity of eulogizing the principal and professors of the school. It also made it unnecessary to say again what had been so admirably said about the evident progress of the pupils, in all that goes to give a guarantee of future success in life. The parents must feel happy. The boys who had worked hard and had obtained the reward of their assiduity, were deserving of congratulation. They would be the leading citizens of the future, the pride and joy of their parents, and of all who are interested in what is best for our country. It remained for him to say a few words, regarding the school, in view of the many reports that had been put in circulation concerning it. It had been stated that this school was in financial difficulties. He could assure them that no such financial difficulties existed. The Governors of the school, in the course they were adopting, wished to avoid financial difficulties. They had no creditors, no mortgages, they had not disposed of their fixtures, nor had they done any of the numerous fictions, that had been circulated far and near. The found-

THOMAS LIGGETT, EMPIRE BUILDING,

2474 and 2476 ST. CATHERINE STREET

ation of this Catholic High School had occupied the mind of our great pastor, the late Rev. Father Dowd. He had carried out many other heavy projects, and crowned them with success. He had left to other heavy projects, and crowned task of building a High School, which was of paramount importance for the people. Father Quinlivan, having embellished St. Patrick's Church, having put its grounds and surroundings in a condition to elicit universal praise, having done many other things that were pressing; although suffering from a malady that occasioned him the most excruciating pain, nevertheless, hoped that God would spare him for a few years longer, he undertook the laborious task of securing the High School, for the good of the rising generation. The corporation of the High School had no existence, so the land, upon which the present edifice is now erected, was purchased by him in the name of the St. Bridget's Refuge, at a cost of $40,000. Later he gathered together another sum of $40,000, and with that money, raised by his own zeal and indefatigable labor, the building was erected. It was paid for to the last dollar. The land belongs to the Refuge, the building belongs to us. Just as this building was nearing completion, and when we needed our pastor more than ever, he was stricken down and had to go to the hospital. It was unnecessary to rehearse the painful story. Father O'Donnell, one of our most zealous
