A CHAT WITH CARLYLE, He Gives Kootenay Credit for Increased Mineral Output.

"Judging from what I have been able to learn so far," said W. A. Carlyle, the provincial mineralogist to a MINER reporter last evening, "the production of precious metals in Kootenay during the past year was close to $8,000,000, double the output to 1896. The mineral protection of th duction of the entire province was $11,- foreign countries. 000,000, which is about $4,000,000 more than the previous year. The increase is due almost entirely to the development of Kootenay. "Although the Klondike excitement may effect operations here, I am sure that in the long run it will be of great assistance to Rossland, since by reducing the prices at which properties are being held it will lead investors to take up those that are meritorious. I anticipate greater development than ever in act," Mr. Carlyle concluded, "I hope that the coming legislature will amend it so as to require the prospector to do his assessment work before recording the claim. This provision, which is in force in Colorado and Montana, is necessary to prevent the indiscriminate location of land by men who have no intention of developing it."
