THE STRIKE

CHICAGO, July 14.— President Debs has declared the trike off for the present, but e price of Pullman cars and ure may possibly be affected by the recent troubles. Mattresses and Bed-Springs are particularly cheap. Lord the Furniture Man of Brockville, the best authority on the subject, says that furniture will never be so cheap again during the present century, and the buyers ought to take advantage of it.

MR. FREDERICK JACKSON.

young and active Englishman who strikes one as being admirably suited for the difficult task he is about to undertake. He is a tall, powerfully built man of some 30 years of age, and is filled with zeal and enthusiasm. He has traveled much; in 1882 he was bush-ranging in Queensland; three years later he was to be found on the coast of the Gulf of Mexico, and in 1887 he was in the Arctic regions. Only a few months ago, Mr. Jackson returned to England from an expedition to the Yalmal Perinsula and a portion of the Nova Zembla group.

insula and a portion of the Nova Zembla group.

Briefly, Mr. Jackson's plan is to proceed to Archangel, thence to the southern shore of Franz Josef Land. A spot somewhere between 50 and 60 degrees E. longitude will be cinosen; a storehouse and depot will be built; all will be made snug for the winter, and next spring the Poleward march will begin. Depots will be established at intervals of about forty miles, and Mr. Jackson hopes to be able to return to his base on the coast in about three years.

The Windward, which is to convey Mr. The Windward, which is to convey Mr. Jackson and his party to Franz Josef Land is a well-known Arctic boat, about 15 years old, strongly and specially built for rice work. She is 140 feet long and is very wide, having as much as thirty feet beam. The Windward, which is a three-masted barque-rigad vessel, carries heavy sail and has auxiliary steam power, enabling her to make five or six knots an hour. She was commanded for some years by Captain Lavid Gray, the noted Peterhead whaling captain. Before leaving the Thames she was fitted with a deckhouse. Below the 'tween decks are thirty-two iron tanks which will be used for storing provisions.

Mr. Jackson is taking stores for four years. The quantity of coal to be carried Air. Jackson is taking stores for four years. The quantity of coal to be carried on the Windward has not yet been settled. A supply will be sent to Archangel to be picked up on the way to Franz Josef Land.

The tent to be used on the expedition is The tent to be used on the expedition is lined with double offives stretched on ash ribs, and is constructed so that it will fold up like a Chinese lantern. Each of these tents, of which four will be taken, is capable of holding six men. They weigh thirty-four pounds, and are ten feet in diameter and six feet in height.

Mr. Jackson considers these tents to be the best he has seen for Arctic work. They can be opened and erected in thirty seconds, and they can be so well closed that it is almost impossible to tell where the entrance is. There is, therefore, very little chance of snow being blown in. This form of tent is quite new, and has never

An accompaning cut shows one of five specially constructed collapsible houses which will be used as a base depot on the Franz Josef Land coast, whence the party will start in the spring of 1895 for the Pole. The walls are specially constructed of weatherboard, cauvas, and felt, each euclosed in an air spade. They were designed by Mr. Jackson and Mr. Berthon as the result of many experiments and much consultation. The five houses will form quite a little colony—and a British colony too—on the solitary coast of Franz Josef Land. A word regarding the boats. One will be of copper with canvas gunwales, weighing under 200 pounds, and will be 18 feet long, and 5 feet wide. Another will be of alumnium, carefully coated with non-corrodible paint to protect the surface from the action of the salt water. Mr. Jackson has also had built a very light pine Norwegian boat on the lines of the ordinary fjord boat, weighing 180 pounds with a length of 16 feet. It is possible that two other boats of similar build but smaller in size, so as to fit one in the other, will also re taken. They will be collapsible with canvas gunwales. Mr. Jackson has also constructed some Mr. Jackson has also constructed some stoves and spirit-lamps of alumnium, each of which can cook for four men, and weighs only 6½ pounds. The impediments of the expedition includes 15 sledges, which are being built in Norway, a large supply of firearms, and a number of union-jacks 30 inches by 24 inches, fitted on 9 feet bamboo poles. These will be planted along the route of the expedition to mark depots, etc.; and if energy, perseverance, and pluck go for anything, one will perhaps be planted on the Pole itself. Let us hope so!

The Soldiers of the Sun, Along the margin of the world They march with their bright ban They march with their brig furled; Until, in line of battle drawn, They reach the boundsries of o

They cross the seas and rivers deen,
They climb the mountains high and steep,
And hurry on until in sight
Of their black enemy—the Night. Then madly rush into the fray These armies of the Night and Day. Swiftly the shining arrows go, While bugling Winds their warnings blow.

Strive as He will, the Night is pressed. Farther and farther down the west. With golden spear and gleaming lance. The cohorts of the Day advance.

Thus, daily, is the battle won By the brave soldiers of the Sun!

FOUR YEARS SERIOUS SEARCH IN-

Once during the Iron Duke's cahpaign in the Fyrenees, it happened that General Picton's dispositions for receiving the assent of Marshal South displeased him. The danger threatened from in front, and the difficulty lay in delaying the attack until Wellington could effect the change he wished. He was, as usual, equal to the occasion.
Waving his hat in the air, he galloped to the front of a regiment as if he meant to order a charge. The whole of Picton's line cheered tremendously, and as the roar died away, Wellington was heard to remark half to himself.
"Soult is a cautious commander and will not attack in force without ascertaining the meaning of these cheers.
That will leave time for the sixth division to come up, and we shall beat him."
This was exactly what happened, and Soult sustained a bloody repulse where he might have won an easy victory.

When Grant's army crossed the Rappahannock, Lee's veterans felt sure of sending it back as "tattered and torn" as ever it had been under the new general's numerous predecessors. After the crossing, the first prisoners caught by Mosby were asked many questions by curious Confederates. "What has become of your pontoon train" said one such inquirer. "We haven't got any," answered the prisoner. "How do you appect to get over the river when you go back?" "Oh," said the Yankee, "we are not going back. Grant says that all the men he sends back can cross on a log."

Turenne, one day, observing that at each volley from a certain battery some of his soldiers ducked their heads, but drew themselves up again immediately, lest they should be reprimanded, exclaimed: "My children, there is no harm in what you do; such visitors well deserve an obeisance." This reminds one of the French officer's politeness when he saw a bomb approaching.
Leaping aside as it approached, he took i'l never dispute precedence with gentlemen of your family."

During the battle of Lexington the bullets flew thick and fast. A ball struck General Sterling Price's saddle,
