THE MAIDEN'S FIRST LOVE.

BY WM. H. CAREW.
[See our last Number, page 11, for the first part.]
He takes my hand within his own, it will never let me go,
And holds it to his heart, and whispers I am due to him,
Like sunshine o'er the sky—
The thoughts thus there transfix themselves.
Within the mind's sphere,
Comparing with the early loves,
That were but dim, dim, dim.
And oh! if all the eloquence,
Were to be used, to make her pure and bright,
She here so heavenly pure and bright,
What must it be to me?
Ah! never felt I still more love than here,
My spirit's side so high;
What canst thou love transfix,
'Neath heaven's approving eye.

Is so very dear to me,
I'm and when he's away,
They say I think too much of him,
That he is vain and gay;
That "handsome" don't last long,
Or that he's not a man of sense,
That makes the world to turn,
And while his lips to mine are pressed.
I know that he hath many faults
Of impulse more than will;
And while he's in his kind and true,
'Twill not be long, for he hath pledged
His heart to me alone;
'Twill not be wrong to pray for him,
And bless him when he's gone.

And when his arm encircles me,
It is the arm of the priest;
I feel it would be very strong,
To hold him to me; but I have no power
To move him; And while his lips to mine are pressed,
I'm sure it would be very rude
Reproving him at all.

GIRLS.—Have you a father, have you a mother? Do you love them? Girls, do you know the value of your mother, if you have not lost her? Nobody loves you, nobody will love you as she does. Do not be ungrateful for that love; do not repay it with coldness, or a curse of coldness will rest upon you, which you never can shake off. Unloved and unloving, you will live and die, if you do not love and honor your father, and mother.

One thing, never call either "old man" or "old woman." It is quite a habit in this country for young people to name their parents thus. This is rude, impudent and undutiful. Any aged person is an old man or an old woman. There should be something sacred, something peculiar in the word that designates parents. The tone of voice in which they are addressed should be affectionate and respectful. A short answer from a child to a parent falls very hardly on the ear of a person who has any idea of filial duty. The more, girls, that you each win for yourselves the name of a dutiful daughter. It is so easy to win, that you should be with it. It is much easier to be a dutiful daughter than a good wife and mother. A child's heart can much more easily be formed than a parent's; so that she who is a good daughter may fall easier than a good wife; but she who fails in this first, most simple duty, need never hope to fill another well. Be sure, then, that you are a good daughter. It is the best preparation for every other station, and will be its own reward. The more you do not tell her, is a dangerous secret, and one that will be likely to bring you sorrow. The hours you spend with her will not bring you regret; and you should never feel disappointed or out of humor, for not being permitted to go to some place to which you wish to go. You should love her so well, that it would not be felt a punishment to give up the gayest party to remain with her.

Nothing is more beautiful than to see a girl take off her things, and sit smiling down with her mother, because she wishes it. Go and kiss mother, as you used to do when a child, and never grow too large or wise to be a child, at her side.

The REFINER OF SILVER.—A SCRIPTURAL ANECDOTE.

Sometime ago a few Indians, who met together in the city of Dublin, to read the Scriptures, and make them the subject of conversation, were reading the 3d chapter of Malachi; one of the Indians gave it as his opinion, that the fuller's soap, and the refiner of silver, were the same image, and both intended to convey the same view of the sanctifying influence of the grace of Christ; while another observed, there is something remarkable in the third verse: "He shall alt arise, a refiner and purifier of silver." They agreed that probably it was so; and one of them promised to call on a silversmith, and report to them what he said on the subject. She went accordingly, and, without telling the object of her errand, begged from him the process of refining silver, which he fully described to her. But, said she, do you sit while the work of refining is going on? "Oh, yes, madam," replied the silversmith, "I must sit with my eye steadily fixed on the furnace, for if the time necessary for refining be exceeded, in the slightest degree, the silver is sure to be injured." At once she saw the beauty and the comfort of the expression. "He shall alt arise, a refiner and purifier of silver." Christ sees it, useful to any his children turned into the furnace, but he is not in it; his eye steadily intent on the work in purifying; and his quadrant of love is both engaged in the furnace for them. Their trials do not come at random. The many trials of their lives, are like the furnace, where the work of refining is going on; and he had still further testimony, that he only knew when the process of refining was complete, by seeing his own image reflected in the silver. Beautiful figure when Christ sees his own image in his people, his work of purifying is accomplished.

The DOOM of our WORLD.—What this change is to be we dare not even conjecture, but we see in the heavens some trace of destructive power. The progeny of hidden planets—the descent of meteoric stones upon our globe—wheeling comets welding their horrid materials at the solar furnace—the volcanic eruptions of our own satellites—the appearance of new stars, and the disappearance of others—are all forebodings of judgment, and destruction, to which the coming of the Son of Man is a signal. This is placed in a place which is to be buried up, and under ground, which are far away; there finding it to be, we, on the matter of God's creation open the door of former world, let us learn the lesson of humility and wisdom. If we have not already been taught in the school of revelation.—North British Review.

He who wants for need of money to live is destined to die in poverty. No man has the right to expect a good fortune unless he goes to work and deserves it.

Dobbs says this is this disadvantage about plain trousers—every time you get up, you will roll him over and give checkered bottoms.

STEWARD.—W. THOMPSON, TRUMAN.

THIS Institution has been opened and in successful operation upwards of eight years. The manner in which it was founded and established, the principles enunciated at its opening as those upon which it should be conducted, and the arrangements which were made for carrying out its design in all its departments, in both school and family, were such as to secure for it, from its very commencement, a very high place in the public estimation. And the Committee of Education and Board of Trustees, upon whom the direction of its affairs, the Governors have been encouraged and stimulated by its propriety to continue efforts to render it increasingly efficient. Every year in its history, however, marked by important additions to its Educational facilities, and of Parents and Guardians of Youth, is, therefore, confidently invited to it as an Institution, at least, equal in every respect, for the purposes for which it was founded, to any in British America.

THE next Term will begin on Thursday, the 7th August, and continuing sixteen weeks, and on Wednesday, the 17th December. EXTRAS.—For Board, Washing, Fuel, Light, &c. and Tuition in Primary Department, £25, New Brunswick currency, per annum.

In the higher Departments, from £25 to £30 per annum. The Principal will give any further information which may be desired, to any person who will apply to him, (if by letter, post paid.)
