They write on the or fourth letter all they said in the first. Members who have just come to Westminster never had to deal with such an avalanche of correspondence as now descends upon them, and certainly they never had so many lady correspondents. Naturally the experience is proving irksome; but in time they will become accustomed to it, and as the months go by will cease to grumble. They will discover, too, that it is useless to attempt to stem the torrent by ignoring it. The ladies, at least, will continue to remind their Parliamentary representatives that they are still awaiting a reply-until they get it.

STANDARD SKIRTS.

Disappointment is in store for those ladies who have been expecting a plentiful supply of "standard" skirts at controlled prices to be available shortly. The Department of Wool Textile Production intended to provide 1,150,000 yards ~ material at 7s. 3d. ($1.78) a yard, from which "standard" costumes, coat frocks, and unlined skirts were to be made for sale to the wearer at the respective prices of 75s. 9d. ($18.92) 69s. 9d. ($17.42) and 25s. 9d. ($6.42) for other than extra out sizes. In addition, 1,-300,000 yards of a cheaper eloth were allocated for "standard" skirts only, to be sold at 22s. 6d. ($5.60) lined and 15s. 11d. ($3.97) unlined for normal figures. The Department now, however, has come to the conclusion that the latter material is of too poor a quality for the purpose intended, and consummation. the crossing while a given airplane factor between success and failure is external conditions. In the case of the weather. True, weather conditions have been mentioned freely in connection with the efforts now being made to win that $50,000 but they have been mentioned in a wholly insufficient way. If the weather on as face is bad, the aviator will keep out of the air: if the weather looks as though it might be favorable, he will start, and trust to a benevolent Providence to see him safely across. This does not constitute adequate discussion of a determining factor.

Weather is a complex of temperature, humidity, pressure, wind direction and velocity, precipitation. On all these heads there is much to be said with regard to the difference between conditions at the surface and above it, between conditions over land and over water. There is much to be said, much even to be learned, with regard to average and extreme values under each head mentioned, with regard to seasonal and local and casual variations, with regard to probable values at a given time and place, with regard to the effect of each of these factors upon the functioning of plane and pilot. There are special ramifications to be discussed with regard to fog, its altitude, duration and extent. and with regard to other items of equally special nature.

A compilation of what we know and what we hope to find out under each of these heads is essential to flight across the ocean on any basis other than that of a sporting proposition with death. Accordingly, the United States Weather Bureau has assigned one of its meteorologists to investigate the subject; and among his duties is that of being present at the starting point of trans-Atlantic flight to advise the aviators upon weather conditions. Further than this, he has prepared a statement showing just what bearing the meteorological conditions known and suspected to exist along the probable routes of flight may have upon the success of the venture. This state ment considers the various questions which we have suggested, and disposes of them so far as it is possible to do so.—Scientific American.

N fact, they often sow the seed which, in adult life, develops into disorders of the heart and blood vessels and degenerative diseases of the kidneys.

So if children escape any child's disease they are the gainers in general health by just that much. It may be that years are added to their lives or chronic invalidism avoided. Then there is the enormous risk which every child runs who has measles, whooping cough, scarlet fever, or other diseases.

Perhaps this does not agree with your idea of letting your children have these ailments when young, with the belief that they must have them some time. This old idea has cost many thousands of lives. It is time to forget it, and to put forth an effort to save the children from these ailments.

All these children's diseases are known as germ diseases, and germs are harmless to a body strong enough to fight them.

Children whose blood becomes thin and watery are helpless before an attack of measles, scarlet fever, whooping cough, or other contagious disease. They seem to "catch" everything that is going. They are always "catching" cold. Their resisting force is nil.

But their young bodies soon respond to the nourishing, invigorating influence of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. As their blood is enriched they become healthy, robust and rollicking-they enjoy their foodtheir play-their work at school, and grow into strong, healthy men and women.
