IT PAYS TO KNOW.

A woman I know who is a splendid housekeeper has never taught her two girls cooking or any of the household arts. The reason she gives is this: "I don't propose to let my girls tied down to housework their lives the way I have been. I want them to do something better. I had myself and I'm a good singer and I guess they can earn their own living if they don't know how to cook." But suppose they marry? I asked.

Irma and Eleanor, if they marry, will not be called upon to do their own work for a time at least. But suppose they did marry men who could manage to afford service from the first, or suppose they themselves were able to keep on earning enough money to cover the cost of service, even so, that would not free them from the need to know how things are done if they are to get the best service. The woman who knows just how things should be done is the woman who will command the best service from a helper. I know a woman who has a dinner perfect both in cooking and service. I said to her husband that she was lucky to get such a jewel in these days.

Don't Be a Slave.

"It isn't the maid," he said, "it's my wife. All her maids are like that after she has had them a while. The person who had this maid before we did, didn't think much of her. My wife knows how things should be done and how to do them herself and she trains the maids and demands results from them." Another reason that it means a great deal for a woman to be able to run her house herself, even if she has service, is that if she can't do the work herself, and her maid knows she can't, she is in the latter's power. And did you ever know a tyrant who wouldn't abuse a power like that? I never did.

On light gray or beige colored dresses are worn the lingerie shaped frill collar. A large hat for formal wear has a white crepe-covered brim and a crown of urmine fur. Two or three shades of one color are being worn. Yellow, gray and tan are especially popular.

Govt. Ownership Inefficient and Destructive.

(HERBERT N. CASSON, London, in The Efficiency Magazine.)

Speaking quietly, without rage and prejudice, can any one tell why it is that all government departments in all countries are slow, wasteful, and incompetent? There must be some basic reason for this, as the individuals in these departments cannot all be inferior to the individuals in private firms. Almost invariably an able man becomes disabled when he is placed in a government department. He becomes timid, procrastinating, non-committal, evasive, and unprofitable. He becomes a mere chattel of routine. Why is this? REASONS FOR INCOMPETENCY. The fact seems to be that man simply cannot be competent in a government job, for the following reasons: 1. There is no payment by results. There is no piecework. There is no profit-sharing. A man gets as much for doing badly as he does for doing well. 2. There is no fear of discharge. A man may be transferred, but as long as his conduct is satisfactory, he cannot be discharged for incompetence. Any sort of a fool can hold a job forever in the civil service. 3. There are no profits to be made. There is no possibility of bankruptcy. If the department doesn't pay very well, the treasury has plenty. 4. There is no danger of losing customers. A government department does not depend upon its customers, so that it has no incentive to be quick and courteous and obliging. 5. The main thing is accuracy, not success. A government employee has simply nothing to do with success. His aim is to avoid mistakes. The less he does—the fewer mistakes. 6. Time is of no consequence. As all government employees are made into clerks they come to have a clerk's disregard for time. To clerks, as to lawyers, a delay is a relief and a comfort—the more the better. 7. The work is impersonal. There is very little personal responsibility in a government office. The clerks have arranged a system whereby nobody is to blame, no matter what happens. 8. There is no competition. A government department is always a monopoly. If it were not it would soon be thrown aside. It has no competition to battle with, and it chafes at its ease and do as it pleases. 9. Routine is put ahead of service. In government departments all the workers (if I may use the word) are tied with red tape. They are all the slaves of a system of procedure. 10. There is no enthusiasm. If a man stays in a government job long enough he becomes mummified. He loses all the energy and joy of living that are so necessary to efficiency and success. These are a few of the reasons why nationalization always has failed and always will. Just put yourself in the place of these poor automatons. No matter how able you are, how could you be efficient if you had: No hope of profits; no fear of failure. No competitors; no customers. No reason of hurry; and No danger of being found out. Nationalization is not only a destroyer of trade and commerce. It is not only a coral reef built across the harbor of prosperity. It is worse. It is far worse. It is a destroyer of men. It takes an able man and grinds him down until he is a clerical drudge. It is the delightful fragrant fresh flavour of Life Savers that make them taste so tasty on a hot day. Try them at the race course Wednesday. You will like them.—1921, E.

That Day Will Come. If they never marry it may not matter much though even the unmarried women is frequently faced with a decision where it would be best to deal to her to be able to step into a brush and run a house. But if they marry, the day is going to come when they are going to say: "Oh, how I wish my mother had taught me to run a house." The supply of young men who can take their wives someone to do the things for them from the beginning is exceedingly small. When maids cost a week and their food (perhaps a couple of dollars more), people of the middle class looked upon a maid as a matter of course. But to-day, to keep a maid means anywhere from $12 to $20 a week outlay, only for those who absolutely need service or who are distinctly well-to-do, have it. One of the things an English visitor to this country was especially impressed with was the way people of good income do without service. He said he had seen two homes where the income was at least $10,000 and the wife did her own work. Knowledge Commands Service. Therefore, it seems unlikely that
