Striking Against a Strike Leader

We may be treated, it seems, to the not unpleasant spectacle of a strike-leader being struck against, just like any wicked Capitalist. Mr. John Bromley, the "loco" men's secretary, and one of the reddest of trade union leaders, is threatened with a strike of his own office staff.

The story is that when Bromley's union moved its headquarters from Leeds to London, it continued to pay the same salaries it had done in Yorkshire. The staff protested that it cost more to live in London, and that this was a favourite argument of trade union leaders when they wanted increased salaries for themselves. The executive, however, flatly refused. Now, however, the Staffs Guild, a branch of the National Union of Clerks, has taken up the case and demanded in addition $5 a week for the men. The executive are still as hard-hearted as any railway company, and they may now be given a taste of their own medicine.

The Motor Show Proves What British Industry Can Do

The Motor Show at Olympia is the most cheerful trade sign of the week, and has been termed "A Beam in Darkness."

There is much talk just now about the apathy of British traders, their lack of enterprise and failure to take full advantage of market openings abroad. British workmen are constantly criticised for their unwillingness to put their utmost into a concerted attack on trade depression. To these structures the British motor industry, at least, may confidently plead "Not guilty," says the Yorkshire Post.

A fortnight ago the motor-cycle show proved that during the last few years Great Britain has easily outdistanced all her arrivals in the motor-cycle market all over the world. In the motor-car market competition is much more severe, but the motor show at Olympia affords ample evidence that Great Britain can not only still make the best cars in the world, but that her manufacturers are now able to offer such sheer value for money that export trade prospects are brighter than ever before, and are still steadily improving.

This success has been achieved in face of formidable obstacles—high foreign tariffs, depreciated exchanges, and a horse-power tax which has not encouraged the production of a type of car most suited to export markets. Hitherto the large American car, with its slower running engine and high ground clearance, has been most favoured abroad, particularly in hot climates.

But British manufacturers, by dint of the sterling workmanship and last qualities of their products, are gradually making openings for themselves in many parts of the world, both with the superlatively good cars no other country can quite equal, and with the moderate-priced light cars, cheap and easy to house and to run, whose efficiency the horse-power tax has developed to such an extraordinary degree.

The only show of its kind that ever hit the city. A screed all the way through. A side-splitting uproarious comedy. Repeated tonight. Tickets at Hutton's to-day.—nov 5, 11

No Sign of Early Anthracite Peace

Operators' Chairman Lays Down Two Essential Conditions For Settlement.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 28.—Samuel D. Warriner, chairman of the anthracite operators' conference, told Major-General Charles W. Berry, chairman of the New York state coal commission, here to-day that there was not the slightest indication of early settlement of the anthracite strike which began September 12.

On the contrary, according to Mr. Warriner, the operators were prepared to insist upon at least two demands as conditions to any settlement at all. One was for lowering of production cost, which while not phrased as wage reduction, was defined as reduction of "labor cost per ton." The other, he said, was for a pledge from the men that there would be no further industrial disturbance whenever subsequent wage contracts came up by negotiation. Naming these terms as virtually the operators' price of peace, Mr. Warriner further revealed that, no wa strike was on, the operators felt this would be as good a year as any to press these claims to a finality.

Mr. Warriner told General Berry that it was his best judgment that the New York coal commission proceed with all diligence in its plan to introduce fuel substitutes on a wholesale scale to avert any emergency through shortage of anthracite. General Berry at once cancelled a trip to Scranton, where he had intended to make a personal survey of the anthracite situation, and returned on the next train to New York.

Dempsey Refuses $500,000 Purse

According to Gossips Champion Turned Down Big Money to Fight Gene Tunney.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Since cutting loose from Jack Kearns, who steered him into the heavyweight championship of the world and, incidentally, made him rich, Jack Dempsey has surprised the boxing world with several strange moves. Instead of signing articles to meet Harry Wills under the auspices of his old friend, Tex Rickard, in a fifteen round bout to a decision at the Yankee Stadium next year, Dempsey recently agreed to fight the negro ten rounds with no decision in promoter Floyd Fitzsimmons's Michigan City arena. Although no forfeits were posted by anybody involved in the alleged match, Wills received $25,000 for "training expenses," with the understanding that the principals would enter the ring in September, 1926.

On the face of it, the Dempsey-

Wills bout still is in doubt, the general impression being that they never will come together inside of the ropes, and that the champion will retire from boxing rather than run the risk of losing his precious crown. As a matter of fact, insiders maintain that Dempsey decided two years ago, after narrowly escaping defeat in the memorable scrap with Firpo, to keep out of the ring forever.

A new story of Dempsey's unwillingness to defend the championship, which he won six years ago from the lumbering Jess Willard, is keeping the gossips busy. They declare that soon after Dempsey had arranged the "visionary" match with Wills, he received an offer of $500,000 or the privilege of taking fifty per cent. of the receipts to box Gene Tunney here either this fall or nearly next summer. The New York promoter, who wasn't Tex Rickard, also promised to pay $250,000 in cash to Dempsey several weeks before the date of the proposed battle. The promoter, at the same time, informed the title holder that he had sewed up Tunney, and that the battle would receive the sanction of the New York State Athletic Commission.

Dempsey, so the story goes, coldly turned down this tempting proposition, with the explanation that the alleged Wills match was all that he cared to handle within the next twelve months, also, that he and Wills had agreed to keep out of the ring until they had settled their differences. Something must have gone wrong with the latter excuse, as Wills took on Floyd Johnson in Newark last night while Dempsey is preparing to meet a "set up" of Thanksgiving Day in New Orleans. Tunney, meanwhile, has been frozen out completely.
