RAILWAY PROBLEMS

Disturb the Civic Legislators Peace of Mind.

The Payment of the C. P. R. Bonus Again Sat Back.

Petitioned to for the Legislation Necessary for the Lease or Transfer of the L and P. S. R. Stock.

The City Council met Tuesday night for the purpose of disposing of unfinished business. Ald. James Fitzgeraid was the only absentee. The most urgent matter was the clause of the Finance Committee's report dealing with the securing of the necessary legislation for the sale or re-lease of the London and Port Stanley Railroad. At Monday evening's meeting consideration of the report had been deferred for a week, and it took over an hour's wrangling before the committee's report could be introduced. The difficulty arose over the feeling prevalent that the members of the Finance Committee wanted to force the clause relating to salaries before the Council, and consequently objection was made to everything.

The subject was introduced by Ald.

The subject was introduced by Ald.

Ald. O'Meara objected to the motion. It was altogether too sweeping. He had always had faith in the Finance Committee, but his faith had been greatly shaken by some of the resunt proceedings.

Ald. Spencer defended the action of the committee as quite in despire in had been functions. The salary question had been referred to the committee and: their report had been presented accordingly.

Ald. W. W. Fitzgerald objected to the Montion on much the same grounds as Ald. M. O'Meara. He prefaced his remarks with the assurance that he did not wish to find fault with the members of the Finance Committee or with Mayor Taylor, and then proceeded to deprecate their methods of conducting the city's affairs. The report, he said, could be admitted only on a two-thirds vote.

port, he said, could be admitted only on a two-thirds vote.

Ald. Judd said that as he had neglected to attend the last meeting of the Finance Committee he had no knowledge of the matters deait with. In consequence he would not, unless compelled to, give any vote upon the clause of the report fixing the salaries of the civic officials.

Ald. Taylor reiterated the objections of Aldermen O'Meara and W. W. Fizzgerald. There should be a reasonable time allowed for the consideration of such important questions as those dealt with by the report, and such time had not been allowed. He would favor the discussion of the railway matters, but with respect to the salaries he did not think it just to force the discussion of that clause upon the Council.

Ald. Gartshore contended that the action of the committee was quite justifiable. The

Ald. W. W. Fitzgerald then lead the way to the door, with the remark: "The mayor has left the chair."

The mayor thereupon dropped into the red cushion again and Ald. Thomas shouted after the retrexting company, "No; he has no."

4. That application be made to the Dominion Logislature for power to lease or sell the London and Port Stanley Railway and other powers re said railway.

Ald. Ivey objected to the passage of this clause. "The matter resolves itself into a question as the justice or injustice of the Ontario Legislature. It is a reflection upon that body such as I shall not allow to pass unchallenged. I think that the remark is unjust and should be withdrawn. The city has heretofore always recognized the jurisdiction of the Ontario Legislature over the road, and there should be no question of that jurisdiction now. De Quincey said of consumption that De Quincey said of consumption that it was the "Murderer of the children of hope." This dread disease is the greatest calamity that afflicts the children of men.
