

Wall Paper, Cheap.

PICTURES GIVEN AWAY.

1,000 Rolls, regular 5c paper, at 3c per roll.
500 Rolls, regular 8c and 10c paper, reduced to 5c per roll.

Every cash purchaser of $1 worth or more of goods presented with a handsome picture.

E. N. HUNT
190 DUNDAS STREET.

A Lover's
GERALDINE
Romance.

"Nothing else, I think," said she, brightening at once above those suspicions of my integrity which have been transmitted to you by my card-board cousin Elizabeth," he said, with a dignified air, "since, in vindication of my own veracity, you force me to this step, I believe I can, if you have self-command enough for the ordeal, give you another demonstration of the truth of what we have told you."

"I see, Miss Lindley, that you are unable to rise above those suspicions of my integrity which have been transmitted to you by my card-board cousin Elizabeth," he said, with a dignified air, "since, in vindication of my own veracity, you force me to this step, I believe I can, if you have self-command enough for the ordeal, give you another demonstration of the truth of what we have told you."

"Then I must hunt on my own account for his address—as I did for yours, and I have little doubt that I shall be successful."

"This timely reminder that she was a young woman of inconvenient energy impressed Lindley, who suddenly pulled out his watch, and looked at it as he evidently debated some point within himself. Then he turned to her more coolly."

"I hope you will forgive my leaving you so suddenly, Miss Lindley," said he, with his usual "silkiness," all trace of impatience and anxiety having gone from his manner. "But I had something to say to our young friend James, and of course, in the circumstances, could not bring you in contact with him."

"I hope you will forgive my leaving you so suddenly, Miss Lindley," said he, with his usual "silkiness," all trace of impatience and anxiety having gone from his manner. "But I had something to say to our young friend James, and of course, in the circumstances, could not bring you in contact with him."

"I hope you will forgive my leaving you so suddenly, Miss Lindley," said he, with his usual "silkiness," all trace of impatience and anxiety having gone from his manner. "But I had something to say to our young friend James, and of course, in the circumstances, could not bring you in contact with him."

"I hope you will forgive my leaving you so suddenly, Miss Lindley," said he, with his usual "silkiness," all trace of impatience and anxiety having gone from his manner. "But I had something to say to our young friend James, and of course, in the circumstances, could not bring you in contact with him."

"I hope you will forgive my leaving you so suddenly, Miss Lindley," said he, with his usual "silkiness," all trace of impatience and anxiety having gone from his manner. "But I had something to say to our young friend James, and of course, in the circumstances, could not bring you in contact with him."

"I hope you will forgive my leaving you so suddenly, Miss Lindley," said he, with his usual "silkiness," all trace of impatience and anxiety having gone from his manner. "But I had something to say to our young friend James, and of course, in the circumstances, could not bring you in contact with him."

"I hope you will forgive my leaving you so suddenly, Miss Lindley," said he, with his usual "silkiness," all trace of impatience and anxiety having gone from his manner. "But I had something to say to our young friend James, and of course, in the circumstances, could not bring you in contact with him."

"I hope you will forgive my leaving you so suddenly, Miss Lindley," said he, with his usual "silkiness," all trace of impatience and anxiety having gone from his manner. "But I had something to say to our young friend James, and of course, in the circumstances, could not bring you in contact with him."

"I hope you will forgive my leaving you so suddenly, Miss Lindley," said he, with his usual "silkiness," all trace of impatience and anxiety having gone from his manner. "But I had something to say to our young friend James, and of course, in the circumstances, could not bring you in contact with him."

"I hope you will forgive my leaving you so suddenly, Miss Lindley," said he, with his usual "silkiness," all trace of impatience and anxiety having gone from his manner. "But I had something to say to our young friend James, and of course, in the circumstances, could not bring you in contact with him."

"I hope you will forgive my leaving you so suddenly, Miss Lindley," said he, with his usual "silkiness," all trace of impatience and anxiety having gone from his manner. "But I had something to say to our young friend James, and of course, in the circumstances, could not bring you in contact with him."

"I hope you will forgive my leaving you so suddenly, Miss Lindley," said he, with his usual "silkiness," all trace of impatience and anxiety having gone from his manner. "But I had something to say to our young friend James, and of course, in the circumstances, could not bring you in contact with him."

"I hope you will forgive my leaving you so suddenly, Miss Lindley," said he, with his usual "silkiness," all trace of impatience and anxiety having gone from his manner. "But I had something to say to our young friend James, and of course, in the circumstances, could not bring you in contact with him."

"I hope you will forgive my leaving you so suddenly, Miss Lindley," said he, with his usual "silkiness," all trace of impatience and anxiety having gone from his manner. "But I had something to say to our young friend James, and of course, in the circumstances, could not bring you in contact with him."

"I hope you will forgive my leaving you so suddenly, Miss Lindley," said he, with his usual "silkiness," all trace of impatience and anxiety having gone from his manner. "But I had something to say to our young friend James, and of course, in the circumstances, could not bring you in contact with him."

"I hope you will forgive my leaving you so suddenly, Miss Lindley," said he, with his usual "silkiness," all trace of impatience and anxiety having gone from his manner. "But I had something to say to our young friend James, and of course, in the circumstances, could not bring you in contact with him."

"I hope you will forgive my leaving you so suddenly, Miss Lindley," said he, with his usual "silkiness," all trace of impatience and anxiety having gone from his manner. "But I had something to say to our young friend James, and of course, in the circumstances, could not bring you in contact with him."

out of the room, when Lindley crossed the floor to where she sat, without a word, but in a state of violent excitement. He touched her arm, and signed to her to come quickly to the window. They were unseen from the outside, though their own view was unimpeded. From a hansom which had just stopped a lady and gentleman had got out; the latter was paying the cabman, while the former walked slowly on toward the interior of the station. She was tall, well and handsomely dressed, of superb figure and carriage; she wore a lace veil, through which it was impossible to distinguish her features; but, just as surely as a certain elasticity of tread told that she was young, so surely did a certain pride in her bearing betray the fact that she was reckoned handsome. Geraldine watched her intently, without yet knowing why, while Lindley at her ear kept whispering:

"Hush, hush!"

She did not understand, for she had not shown the least inclination to cry out. A minute later, she understood his warning. The gentleman, who had been almost hidden from view, behind the lady on whom all her attention had been fixed, now hurried after her companion, and bending toward her very suddenly, took gently from her hand the bag she was carrying, with a few words which it was impossible to hear, but whose purport was evidently very kind. Lindley, standing on the watch, laid his hand quickly on Geraldine's arm, with a warning whisper, as she started violently and drew a sharp breath through her parted lips.

For the gentleman was James O'way. No further doubt was possible, as she gazed steadily while he drew nearer and nearer to the window, and passed close to it, so intent upon his companion that there was no fear of his seeing any one else. She saw that the lady, who was the lady's friend, which he was carrying were "M. B. O'"; she could hear James' voice mentioning the time at which the train was due at Enfield; she could hear that of the lady in answer. She shifted her position that she might watch them as long as possible, and then, when they had passed out of sight, she turned slowly away from the window with a rigid face, and half eyes that did not notice at first that Lindley Fielding was no longer beside her. After staring vacantly for a few moments, she collected her senses and looked round the room. Two loud-voiced women at the table were fussily discussing their gossamer, while three small children, planted in a row on one of the seats, ate buns and wrapped up their respective plummings. Nobody else was there. She hardly wondered why he had gone; it did not matter to her, she cared for nothing but to get away from this place where she had played the spy with such pitiful results.

Mechanically she went out, hailed a hansom, and got into it. The cabman asked her twice, "Where to, miss?" before she woke up to a clear knowledge of what she was doing. Then she suddenly remembered all the circumstances of the day, and poor Susan waiting patiently at the Tower, she gave the direction, and was just about to drive off, when Lindley Fielding hastened up. Such had been his expressing surprise at his abrupt disappearance, but he hastened to excuse himself.

"I hope you will forgive my leaving you so suddenly, Miss Lindley," said he, with his usual "silkiness," all trace of impatience and anxiety having gone from his manner. "But I had something to say to our young friend James, and of course, in the circumstances, could not bring you in contact with him."

"I hope you will forgive my leaving you so suddenly, Miss Lindley," said he, with his usual "silkiness," all trace of impatience and anxiety having gone from his manner. "But I had something to say to our young friend James, and of course, in the circumstances, could not bring you in contact with him."

"I hope you will forgive my leaving you so suddenly, Miss Lindley," said he, with his usual "silkiness," all trace of impatience and anxiety having gone from his manner. "But I had something to say to our young friend James, and of course, in the circumstances, could not bring you in contact with him."

"I hope you will forgive my leaving you so suddenly, Miss Lindley," said he, with his usual "silkiness," all trace of impatience and anxiety having gone from his manner. "But I had something to say to our young friend James, and of course, in the circumstances, could not bring you in contact with him."

"I hope you will forgive my leaving you so suddenly, Miss Lindley," said he, with his usual "silkiness," all trace of impatience and anxiety having gone from his manner. "But I had something to say to our young friend James, and of course, in the circumstances, could not bring you in contact with him."

"I hope you will forgive my leaving you so suddenly, Miss Lindley," said he, with his usual "silkiness," all trace of impatience and anxiety having gone from his manner. "But I had something to say to our young friend James, and of course, in the circumstances, could not bring you in contact with him."

"I hope you will forgive my leaving you so suddenly, Miss Lindley," said he, with his usual "silkiness," all trace of impatience and anxiety having gone from his manner. "But I had something to say to our young friend James, and of course, in the circumstances, could not bring you in contact with him."

"I hope you will forgive my leaving you so suddenly, Miss Lindley," said he, with his usual "silkiness," all trace of impatience and anxiety having gone from his manner. "But I had something to say to our young friend James, and of course, in the circumstances, could not bring you in contact with him."

"I hope you will forgive my leaving you so suddenly, Miss Lindley," said he, with his usual "silkiness," all trace of impatience and anxiety having gone from his manner. "But I had something to say to our young friend James, and of course, in the circumstances, could not bring you in contact with him."

"I hope you will forgive my leaving you so suddenly, Miss Lindley," said he, with his usual "silkiness," all trace of impatience and anxiety having gone from his manner. "But I had something to say to our young friend James, and of course, in the circumstances, could not bring you in contact with him."

"I hope you will forgive my leaving you so suddenly, Miss Lindley," said he, with his usual "silkiness," all trace of impatience and anxiety having gone from his manner. "But I had something to say to our young friend James, and of course, in the circumstances, could not bring you in contact with him."

"I hope you will forgive my leaving you so suddenly, Miss Lindley," said he, with his usual "silkiness," all trace of impatience and anxiety having gone from his manner. "But I had something to say to our young friend James, and of course, in the circumstances, could not bring you in contact with him."

"I hope you will forgive my leaving you so suddenly, Miss Lindley," said he, with his usual "silkiness," all trace of impatience and anxiety having gone from his manner. "But I had something to say to our young friend James, and of course, in the circumstances, could not bring you in contact with him."

"I hope you will forgive my leaving you so suddenly, Miss Lindley," said he, with his usual "silkiness," all trace of impatience and anxiety having gone from his manner. "But I had something to say to our young friend James, and of course, in the circumstances, could not bring you in contact with him."

"I hope you will forgive my leaving you so suddenly, Miss Lindley," said he, with his usual "silkiness," all trace of impatience and anxiety having gone from his manner. "But I had something to say to our young friend James, and of course, in the circumstances, could not bring you in contact with him."

"I hope you will forgive my leaving you so suddenly, Miss Lindley," said he, with his usual "silkiness," all trace of impatience and anxiety having gone from his manner. "But I had something to say to our young friend James, and of course, in the circumstances, could not bring you in contact with him."

"I hope you will forgive my leaving you so suddenly, Miss Lindley," said he, with his usual "silkiness," all trace of impatience and anxiety having gone from his manner. "But I had something to say to our young friend James, and of course, in the circumstances, could not bring you in contact with him."

Western Ontario.

Robbery of the L. E. & D. R. R. Station at Blenheim.

Tobacco Raising in Pelee Island on the Increase—Bad Luck of an Oxford Dairyman—Kingsville Farmers Release Their Hogs From Quarantine.

Aylmer has placed a fee of $50 on cigarette sellers.

Sol. White, ex-M.P.P., is seriously ill, and so is Mrs. White.

The population of East Zorra has been placed at 3,510.

Twenty mills on the dollar is Aylmer's tax rate this year.

John Noble, late of Elma, sold two Kaslo, B. C., claims for $5,000.

The brick work of the new Methodist Church at Simcoe is about completed.

The wife of Rev. Dr. G. O. Godefrich, died on Saturday in her 78th year.

The funeral of Mrs. Edna Brown, of Detroit, took place Thursday at Bear Creek cemetery.

The town of Essex has secured an important industry in the starting of a soap factory by Mr. Stote.

Indian Agent McK. very took up $200 to Walpole Island to pay the Indians their semi-annual pension.

Waterloo's assessment this year is $1,226, 20, a decrease of $1,705 compared with 1898. The population is 3,255, an increase of 22.

The court of revision for the town of Aylmer will be held on May 27. All appeals must be in the hands of the clerk by May 14.

The Aylmer Canning Company are making some improvements on the furniture factory property recently purchased by them.

A large gang of men were to work in Aylmer on Wednesday digging and planting trees on John street, south, to the cemetery. Two hundred and seventy-five were put in position.

A message from Chatham says that Detective Mahoney was resting easy and gaining every day, but the doctors would not allow him to get up for the present. The bullet is not bothering him.

Mr. Richard Seldon, clerk of North Oxford, during the past few days has lost four of his choice dairy cows. More are sick, and it is feared will also die. The cause of the illness is somewhat of a mystery.

Mr. Lewis Wigle, Leamington, has purchased from Mr. C. E. Carr, Pelee Island, 4,000 pounds of choice Canada leaf tobacco. The islanders, Mr. Wigle states, are going more extensively into the raising of this commodity.

A suit has been entered on behalf of Mrs. Caldwell, the well-known Toronto vocalist, against the town of Ingersoll for unstated damages for injuries received by a defective stairway in one of the town's concert halls.

Mr. J. P. Bell, formerly of Woodstock, and teller at the Bank of Commerce, has been appointed to an important position in the New York city, and will leave on Saturday.

Married, at the residence of the bride's parents, Turin, on Wednesday, May 6, by Rev. John Beckett, Miss Jessie Dickson and William Gladstone. The ceremony took place on the lawn in the presence of about 100 invited guests.

Mr. T. W. Tate, of Embro, died Friday morning, his death being caused by a sudden attack of apoplexy. Mr. Tate was in good health Sunday forenoon, but after his return from church on Monday he was taken ill, with the above fatal result.

Leonard Malott and Thomas Clark, two of the Kingsville farmers whose animals were held in quarantine, were obliged to bring them back on threat of prosecution by Dr. Perdu, the local veterinary inspector.

John Riddell, of Shakespeare, a young man, was killed on the G. T. R. track near that village during Thursday night. While passing under a temporary mental derangement he seems to have started down the track during the night, and is supposed to have met a train.

Robert Fletcher, of Lambton county, will represent the electric railway company in its arbitration with the farmers along the lake shore whose lands will be crossed by the new road. J. H. Riddell, of Windsor, will represent the township, and the third arbitrator will be ex-Warden Boutellier.

Dr. John G. Yemen, the Stratford dental surgeon recently complained of for a trial on a charge of attempting a criminal operation, was on Friday admitted to bail by Justice Street in bonds of $5,000 and two sureties of $3,000 each. Deputy Attorney-General Cartwright opposed the motion.

An exceedingly happy event took place Wednesday at the residence of Peter Morgan, Wellington street, Chatham, being the marriage of his youngest daughter, Ada Lachine, to Andrew Smith, of Cedar Springs. The bride was assisted by Miss Saffell, of Detroit. Miss Nellie Smith, of Detroit, acted as maid of honor.

The Twenty-fifth Battalion unanimously voted to visit Sarina on the 24th of May. The battalion leaves on Saturday, the 22nd, at 9 p.m., per special train for Sarina, and will return Monday night. The so named camp in the Athletic Park, where there is a large building provided for those who do not wish to sleep in tents.

A bold robbery took place Wednesday evening in Blenheim in which the E. and D. R. R. station was broken into and the till filled of about $5 or $7, while the agent, Mr. Anderson, was away from the station up town attending to the company's business. The door was forced open, and the office fairly turned upside down in search for cash.

Thursday afternoon, while Messrs. Wm. Normandy and Wm. Howlett were working at a kiln in the brickyard at Petrolia, they were injured by the roof giving way and precipitating them among the debris underneath. Mr. Normandy's back was hurt, and Mr. Howlett's scalp was cut open in such a manner that it needed several stitches to cover the wound.

The Ridgeway Public School Board held their regular meeting on Tuesday evening. Miss Gower's resignation was accepted, and Miss Alma Cunningham engaged to take her place at a salary of $20 per year. Miss Gower was appointed examiner, and the inspector's report, which was of a very complimentary nature, received. Teachers and school board are to be congratulated on the tone of the inspector's report.

James Banning, a prominent citizen of Chatham, is dead from cancer, aged 71. Mr. Banning was born in the township of Mosa, and remained there until 1876, when he moved to Chatham, where he has since resided. In 1852 he was wedded to Miss Mary Fleming, sister of George Charles Fleming, daughter of Dr. Andrew Fleming, of Mosa. In 1884 Mr. Banning was left widowed, with one son, Andrew, now in California. While in Mosa Mr. Banning took a leading part in education, and was for several years as county clerk. In 1885 he was united in marriage to Miss Isabella Rutherford, who still survives him. A little daughter, Maud, is also left to mourn his demise.

Western newspapers give details of a landslide at Three Forks, B. C., in which three men lost their lives, one of them being Chas. H. Phillips, who formerly resided at Middlenarch. The three men were in a sleigh, which was snowed from the mountain struck the building, and all were killed and buried under a deep snow. Charles H. was the youngest son of the late Squire Phillips, of Middlenarch. He went to the Northwest four years ago, and died at Three Forks, B. C. His death is the first break in a family of eleven children. Mrs. Palmer and Mrs. White, of Yarmouth, are sisters of deceased. He was 27 years old.

HEAD-NERVES

Are Disturbed When the Stomach Refuses to Do Its Work—Indigestion Upsets the Whole System and Makes Wrecks of More Hopeful Lives Than Any Other Complaint Under the Sun

"For several years I have been a subject of severe nervous headaches, and I procured a bottle. My headaches were relieved almost immediately, and in a remarkably short time, left me entirely. The remedy has done up and built up my system wonderfully." James A. Bell, Beaverton.

Sold by C. McCallum and B. A. Mitchell.

Any mind that is capable of real sorrow is capable of good—Mrs. Stowe.

Cornet Ernest Paul von Hugel, who married the Duke of Teck's sister and was thus directly related to the English royal family, recently blew his brains out at Graz, in Austria.

Mittard's Liniment Cures Burns, etc.

COLEMAN'S.... SALT

Best for Table use

UNEQUALLED FOR QUALITY

CANADA SALT ASSOCIATION

CLINTON, ONT.

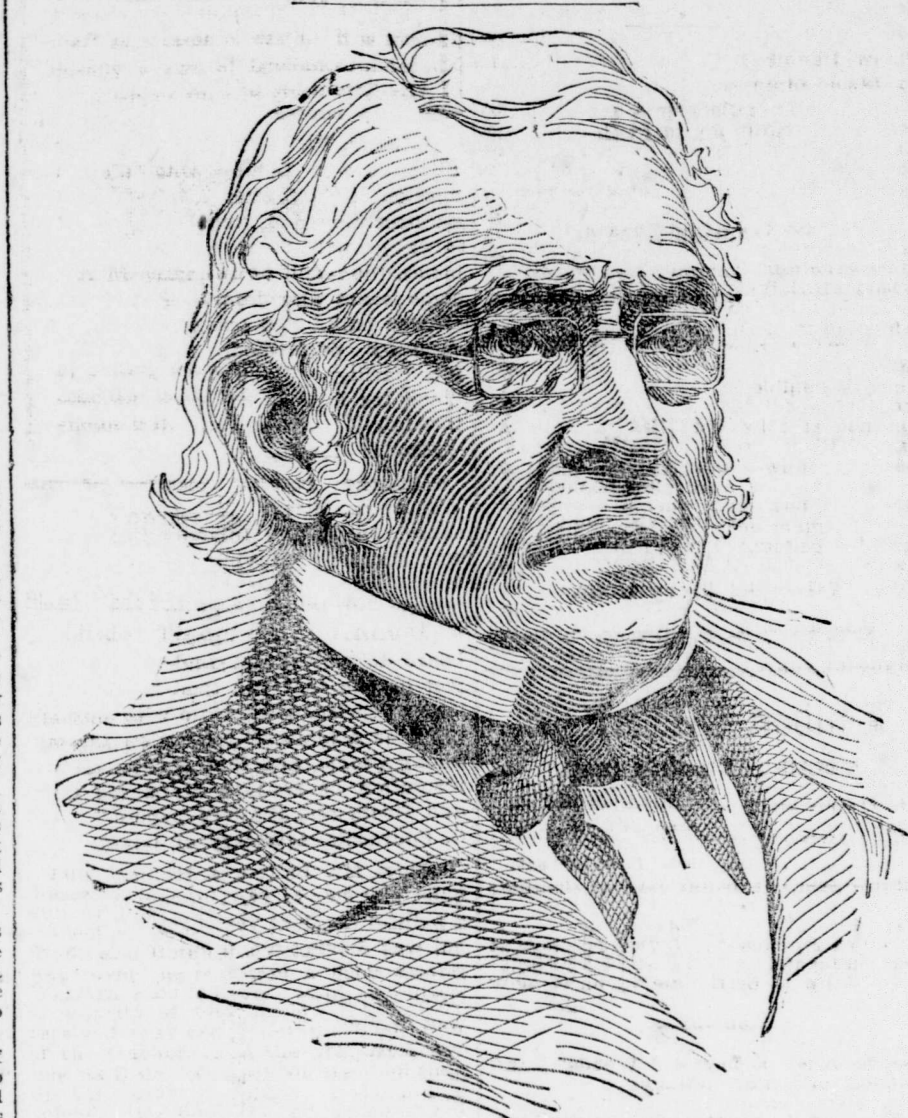

HOBBS

Challenge to the Citizens of London Which Appeared in This Paper Yesterday Creates

A TREMENDOUS SENSATION.

The Public Seem Thoroughly Aroused

A General Eagerness to Know What the Outcome of this Affair Will Be is Plainly Noticeable Amongst Many of our readers.

JULIUS HOBBS, M.D.

As a result of the announcement made by this paper yesterday that a free package of Dr. Hobbs' Sparagus Kidney Pills would be given away to any reader who would call at Strong's drug store on Monday, an intense interest has been awakened in this distribution.

A large number of people called last evening and this morning to make inquiries about the free samples of this wonderful medicine to be given away on Monday, which shows what general interest is taken by the public in the best nursing man by Dr. Hobbs' discovery for the cure of all kidney ailments.

Much to our gratification, a number of lady callers have shown an unusual interest in this great distribution. "Can it be possible," said a man who called yesterday, "that the advancement in the science of medicine has at last reached a climax for poor sufferers like myself?"

"Am going to say one thing, at any rate. The owners of this medicine certainly have fallen in it, and they are going about it in an honest, straightforward manner. Just this alone gives me confidence and strong hope that I shall again be a well man."

Another caller yesterday—a lady—said: "I live several miles away from London, but I am going to get a sample of this kidney medicine for my husband. He has been a sufferer from kidney diseases for many years."

"We have spent thousands of dollars with the best doctors we could hear of, of Chatham, is dead from cancer, aged 71. Mr. Banning was born in the township of Mosa, and remained there until 1876, when he moved to Chatham, where he has since resided. In 1852 he was wedded to Miss Mary Fleming, sister of George Charles Fleming, daughter of Dr. Andrew Fleming, of Mosa. In 1884 Mr. Banning was left widowed, with one son, Andrew, now in California. While in Mosa Mr. Banning took a leading part in education, and was for several years as county clerk. In 1885 he was united in marriage to Miss Isabella Rutherford, who still survives him. A little daughter, Maud, is also left to mourn his demise.

Western newspapers give details of a landslide at Three Forks, B. C., in which three men lost their lives, one of them being Chas. H. Phillips, who formerly resided at Middlenarch. The three men were in a sleigh, which was snowed from the mountain struck the building, and all were killed and buried under a deep snow. Charles H. was the youngest son of the late Squire Phillips, of Middlenarch. He went to the Northwest four years ago, and died at Three Forks, B. C. His death is the first break in a family of eleven children. Mrs. Palmer and Mrs. White, of Yarmouth, are sisters of deceased. He was 27 years old.

WHERE WATER IS WATER.

There is Not Enough of It to Make Clean Linen an Everyday Comfort.

The Oregonian.

A. B. Ellis, while on a visit to Ascension Island, met an old friend, who shook hands, reached down a coat from a peg and put it on, saying: "Excuse me not putting on a shirt, will you?"

"Of course, of course," replied Mr. Ellis. "Take off one of your clothes if you'll feel more comfortable."

"No, no! It's not that, but the fact is that I haven't a shirt clean enough to put on."

Mr. Ellis could not murmur his surprise at this strange circumstance, and endeavored to look sympathetically. The friend continued: "I dare say you think it odd that I don't have them washed."

Mr. Ellis, hardly knowing what to say, inquired: "Why don't you?" The friend unfolded a horrible tale, to the effect that the water supply of the island consisted principally of what was distilled by a condenser, a small quantity being obtained from Dampier's drips and Brandreth wells; that water was always so scarce that it was served out like a ration of rum, only more sparingly, the allowance in prosperous times being two gallons a day per man.

When clothes were sent to the wash, the water for washing them had to be sent with them. But the condenser at that time had been out of order for some nine or ten days, and everybody on the island had been put on short allowance, so that they had been obliged for drinking, much less for washing either themselves or their clothes.

Why will you allow a cough to lacerate your throat or lungs and run the risk of filling a consumptive grave, when, by the timely use of Eekle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup the pain can be allayed, and the danger avoided?

This syrup is pleasant to the taste, and unsurpassed for relieving, healing, and curing all affections of the throat and lungs, coughs, colds, bronchitis, etc., etc.

T. C. Thornhill, watchmaker, etc., knowing times are hard, will, on March 1 lower his charges on watches, etc., to benefit the laborer, because of machinery and monopoly. 482 Taber street.

GRASS BUTTER FROM AUSTRALIA

Most of the butter arriving in England from Australia and New Zealand is received in a frozen state in refrigerators; but recently an experiment was made, by placing a lot of this fresh grass butter in a refrigerator in a separate compartment where it was not frozen, but kept in a uniform temperature of 50 degrees. The result was that the butter arrived in London in a perfect condition with its fresh grass flavor unimpaired, and it sold quickly at top prices. This may be of service to Canadian shippers whose product has a much shorter ocean voyage.

T. C. Thornhill, watchmaker, etc., knowing times are hard, will, on March 1 lower his charges on watches, etc., to benefit the laborer, because of machinery and monopoly. 482 Taber street.

JOHN FERGUSON & SONS,

174 to 180 King Street, London, Ontario.

water was always so scarce that it was served out like a ration of rum, only more sparingly, the allowance in prosperous times being two gallons a day per man.

When clothes were sent to the wash, the water for washing them had to be sent with them. But the condenser at that time had been out of order for some nine or ten days, and everybody on the island had been put on short allowance, so that they had been obliged for drinking, much less for washing either themselves or their clothes.

Why will you allow a cough to lacerate your throat or lungs and run the risk of filling a consumptive grave, when, by the timely use of Eekle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup the pain can be allayed, and the danger avoided?

This syrup is pleasant to the taste, and unsurpassed for relieving, healing, and curing all affections of the throat and lungs, coughs, colds, bronchitis, etc., etc.

T. C. Thornhill, watchmaker, etc., knowing times are hard, will, on March 1 lower his charges on watches, etc., to benefit the laborer, because of machinery and monopoly. 482 Taber street.

GRASS BUTTER FROM AUSTRALIA

Most of the butter arriving in England from Australia and New Zealand is received in a frozen state in refrigerators; but recently an experiment was made, by placing a lot of this fresh grass butter in a refrigerator in a separate compartment where it was not frozen, but kept in a uniform temperature of 50 degrees. The result was that the butter arrived in London in a perfect condition with its fresh grass flavor unimpaired, and it sold quickly at top prices. This may be of service to Canadian shippers whose product has a much shorter ocean voyage.

T. C. Thornhill, watchmaker, etc., knowing times are hard, will, on March 1 lower his charges on watches, etc., to benefit the laborer, because of machinery and monopoly. 482 Taber street.

London's Only Departmental

208, 210, 210½ and 212 Dundas Street.

This ever busy, pleasant and popular store has many

Bargain Surprises

—FOR ITS PATRONS