We have officials in this city whose opinion about this company does was squeezed under the fire-box, but was squeezed under the fire-box, but whose opinion about this company does not carry much weight. In confirmation of this statement I refer you for instance to the city carters on the stand question. Now, let me give you something on the other side. Saturday's Globe has a statement from the engineer of Toronto, stating that he has put down this season 63,000 square yards of asphalt pavement at a cost of $175,000. Counting the roadways as wide as King street, the amount laid would be about four and a half miles, or enough to cover King and Dundas streets and Queen's avenue each from Adelaide to Richmond streets.
