Grand Thanksgiving Day, Matires and Night.

"Chantecler," Rostand's drama of the barnyard, had its first production on any stage at the Porte St. Martin Theatre, in Paris, on Feb. 7, 1910. The work had its first production in this country with Maude Adams in the titular roll at the Knickerbocker Theatre, New York, in January of the present year. The rehearsals that were held for the French production numbered not this country the rehearsals of the company, stage hands and electricians numbered one hundred and sixty-two. No play ever presented in this country had such thorough preparation before it was given to the public. In the French production the feathers on the costumes of the birds were glued on heavy material; in Miss Adams production the feathers are all sewn by hand over silk; which helps to heighten their effect and make the costumes more colorful and lasting to the produce Maud Adams' play, "What Every Woman Knows," in the Audi-reproduce Maud Adams' play, "What Every Woman Knows," in the Audi-reproduce Maud Adams' play, "What Every Woman Knows," in the Audi-reproduce Maud Adams' play, "What Every Woman Knows," in the Audi-reproduce Maud Adams' play, "What Every Woman Knows," in the Audi-reproduce Maud Adams' play, "What Every Woman Knows," in the Audi-reproduce Maud Adams' play, "What Every Woman Knows," in the Audi-reproduce Maud Adams' play, "What Every Woman Knows," in the Audi-reproduce Maud Adams' play, "What Every Woman Knows," in the Audi-reproduce Maud Adams' play, "What Every Woman Knows," in the Audi-reproduce Maud Adams' play, "What Every Woman Knows," in the Audi-reproduce Maud Adams' play, "What Every Woman Knows," in the Audi-reproduce Maud Adams' play, "What Every Woman Knows," in the Audi-reproduce Maud Adams' play, "What Every Woman Knows," in the Audi-reproduce Maud Adams' play, "What Every Woman Knows," in the Audi-reproduce Maud Adams' play, "What Every Woman Knows," in the Audi-reproduce Maud Adams' play, "What Every Woman Knows," in the Audi-reproduce Maud Adams' play, "What Eve duction the feathers are all sewn by hand over silk; which helps to heighten their effect and make the costumes more colorful and lasting. Norman Hackett Next Tuesday.

Mr. Norman Hackett, the star of Satan Sanderson," which is to be given its first production at the Grand Opera House on Tuesday evening next, is well known in London, His theatrical experience has led him on the boards with such prominent players as the late Louis James, Frederick Ward, Kathryn Kidder, Madame Modjeska, E. H. Sothern and Julia Marlowe, For two years he headed his own company, appearing in "Classmates" and 'Beau Brummell." Last season he played the lead in one of the Shuberts' city companies.

It's Always Funny.

Much interest is being taken in the revival of the famous farce-comedy, 'The Private Secretary,' which will be seen at the Grand Opera House on Wednesdy evening, with C. James Sancroft, the English comedian, in the fifte role. As the Rev. improvement. The school is at the other extreme. It makes no money, and the profession is poorly paid. The school should be regarded as one part of the social problem, and the first object is to get to the masses and give them the broadest and most liberal education, to make the most of the brains of our people, not only b learning, but also by doing things. A nation at school is the counterpart of a nation in arms."

He deplored the going out of the practice of recitation and elocution. "Parents, too," said the speaker, "regard poetry more or less as a waste of time, but never object to lots of arithmetic being taught their children, because they love the multiplication table and all that is on it. It would be a fatal error for the spirit of materialism of the seniors to be reflected on the minds of the children. Poetry can be made an educational agent of the most important kind."
