AFFAIRS AT SAULT STE. MARIE. C.P.R. Branch Line—A Reflection on Canadian Enterprise.

BAULT STE MARIE, July 12.—Affairs here have progressed slowly but steadily since my lest letter. Considerable excitement was caused over the nomination for the Local House, but this soon quieted down. The Canadian Pacific Railway have finished burning their right of way and the graders are just commencing work right in town. From what I can learn the whole distance from here to Algoma Mills is almost ready for grading. One or two places are a little behind hand, owing to trouble with the laborer, but with these few exceptions the road is progressing very favorably, and trains will probably run during the fall. This will cause considerable astonishment among the halfbreeds and natives, many of whom have never seen a locomotive in their lives.

Mr. Reid, the contractor, who is envineering the bridge, is getting on rapidly with the laborers, is getting on rapidly with the laborers of the CITY.

the miserable grains of gold which they pick up laboriously in their business, turning their business, turning their business, turning their backs blindly on the diadem of jewels which growns the head of St. Mary, and of which she offers them a share. They will all be kicking themselves a year hence at the chance they missed, when they are still grubbing and scraping after the grains of gold, and see more enterprising men crowned with the radiant jewels of millions which have been their reward for a little foresight. "Too late, too late," will be the cry then, and they will remain in Torouto.

Photography. No art is more prominently and conspicuous brought before the public than photography. To question often asked is, "Where can 1 get a life-in picture?" "At Lemaitre's, 224 Yonge-street, "is answer. By careful attention to business and using the Atlantarie has built up a business that will be comparison with any in the city.

When you go to buy dry goods go to a dry goods gore When you go to buy a pair of boots go to a boot and shoe store. When you go to be to leave your order for a good fitting suit certainly go to tailors who understand that branch of business. Reason teaches that no man can be perfect in many trades. Ghom & Coulter are practical tailors. They keep a full stock of woolens to select from; their prices are moderate, and their it, style and workmanship are right. The Lawn sprinkler. Uprose the sun all wide awake, One su'ry summer dawning : His ray a bl on a rubber snake, Outstretched beneath an awning.

The nozzle gleamed like burnished gold,

In hand of him who held it; A stoutish party, rather old, Who smilingly upheld it. He squirted all his new brick house,

And all his picket fencing;
Each separate shutter well did douse,
And set the shrubs a dancing. He squirted all the boulevard,

The trees looked as if weeping; He turned it into the backyard, Till every thing was dripping.

Upon the street he turned the sprint, In chinks of the block paving: He poured the water without stint, The air with moisture laving.

From the blue arch at fervid noon,
The sun still saw him squirting;
While he would hum a little tune,
Or do a little firting.

And when down to the west he draw,
In golden splendor glowing;
The last long shadow that he threw
Was his—the stream still throwing.

Calm rose the moon o'erfi eld and town, Out came the stars a-twinkling;
And as I live, when they blinkled down,
There was he still a-sprinkling!
—Jay Kayelle.

WALKER THE WIZARD

Rouse yel my gallant helpmates,
The valiant Walker suid.
Grammercy by my halitome,
We'll boon this trade, he said.
The prices of all furniture
We'll lower many a peg.
Till 'tis within the reach of all
Who now desire to wed.
For marry! said he, such high terms
Are far beyond the reach.
Of those with little capital.
So let us fill the breach.
And by our Weelely Payment plan
Give ev'ry man a chance
Upon the sea of life his little
Bark to gayly launch.
No longer in a boarding-house
To spend his evenings drean.
A bachelor, poor wight! without
Home comforts, grateful cheer.
We'll place it well within his powr
To start; and with his dear
To share a cosy little home.
With ev'ry confort near.
Well carpeted, a parlor suite,
And pictures on the wall.
A stook to warm of wintry nights,
A hat, stand in the hall.
A litchen neat with cupboard filled
With drinty crockery ware.
The bedrooms furnished all complete,
His whilom friends would stare,
And question how it came about,
This youth'ul, happy pair,
A nest so cosy, snug and neat,
Thus early he could share,
Without Aladdin's lamp to work
A marvel now so rare.
Then boidly would they answer,
And the happy thought came oer us
As one eve we quietly walked.
Why longer walt for happiness!
A home now let us seek.
For "Walker" well will furnish it,
We'll pay for 't "By the Week."

WORTH REMEMBERING

There are things that go to make up the difference between a good piano and a poor one, or even a me-dium grade instrument.

These differences may be known by all who will investigate, but they can only be understood and fully appreciated by the finest musical artists who at the same time is a skilled mechanic of the hightest order. If you know and tully understand what these differences are you know how to intelligently judge a piano. IF NOT, YOU DON'T.

FOR A GOOD PIANO

The material must be of the very best and finest quality. Are you a judge of piano materials? It must be well put together, so as to ensure strength and durability. Can you tell if this has been done?

It must be constructed upon the most advanced scientific principles, so as to produce an even tone of pure musical quality (not noise but music) throughout the entire scale, and an even and perfect touch with proper resistance from the lowest to the highest key.

Do you know what these principles are? Has your ear been so educated, your musical knowledge so cultivated as to enable you to distinguish pure musical tones from mere imitations.

It is the perfect combination of essentials such as these which make a perfect plane. With all the requisites perfect if this combination be unskilfully made the plane is more or less a failure. Are you competent to pronounce upon this combination? If so you can choose intelligently a plano. IF NOT, YOU CAN'T.

It is this perfect combination of all the essentials which has placed the pianos of the "DOMINION" Piano and Organ Company so high in the estimation of artists at home and among the nations of the world.
