SHELLS AND SHOOTERS.

RACTICAL HINTS TO PEOPLE WHO ARE GOING HUNTING

ing About Rifles and Cartridges for ng This Summer and Fall-How to Buy a Cheap and Good Gun_She Seells and the Loading. Any man who intends to go hunting this namer and wants a new gun can save mey by making friends with some retail aler. Let him decide what kind of a 'gun and the him decide what kind of a 'gun' rants and whose make, and then have a il retailer buy it for him. There is a big bunt on all sporting goods, which ne man is unacquainted can get from any of the lealers. The manufacturers of guns and ridges have to keep their rates up so that shall not undersell their customers, the lidealers. For the bulk of their customers the retailers It is the same in the gun busiretail dealers. For the bulk of their customers are the retailers. For the bulk of their customers are the retailers. It is the same in the gun business. The big manufacturing concerns do not care to sell a single gun or a few boxes of loaded shells. If it were known through the trade that they were seeking the retail business the retailers would decrease their orders. By using a retail dealer the purchaser may get more than half the discount. The discount runs from 25 per cent to 50 per cent; it is the biggest in cartridges. The retail price of a box of cartridges is two or three times as much as they can be bought from the manufacturers for in a large order. All the standard grades of guns are so well known that the buyer can get from the manufacturers a price list of all his stock, and pick out by number just what he wants.

In hunting for any length of time the cost of the shells piles up. Improved methods of manufacturing, the extension of the big plants, and new inventions have cut down the price of guns so that a good repeating rifle can be got for $15 and a good double-barrelled breech-loading shotum for $25 or $30. These guns are not fanciful, but they will do as good shooting as if their they will do as good shooting as if their stocks were varmished and hunting scenes were etched on the locks. A hammerless gun does not shoot any better than a gun with hammers, and rebounding locks with patent catches and double bolts are so common that they do not cost much extra. The standard rife core form with the standard rife core form. mon that they do not cost much extra. The standard rifle costs from $15 to $35, the shot-guns from $20 up. Fancy shotguns, can be bought for as much as $600 or $700, but there is little difference between the shooting qualities of them and the $40 or $50 guns.

All the changes of recent years have been made for the convenience of the spontaman. The makers now will furnish him with a gun and all the shells that he may want, loaded with any charge of powder, any kind of wads, and any size and quantity of shot. Some sportsmen prefer to load their own shells, as it is a pleasure to them to measure out the powder and to ram down the wads and pour in the shot. But there are dozens of houses in New York that will de all that for them by machinery. The usual size of shotguns is ten or twelve gauge. The four-gauge guns are seldem used, and are too big for ordinary shooting. The fourteen and sixteen gauga are big enough for birds, but not for larger game; the twenty-gauge are good for birds only, and are intended for only small sizes of shot. The ten and twelve gauge will do for pretty much of anything.

The ten and twelve gange will do for pretty much of anything.

The rates have fallen so that loaded paper shells of the best quality can be bought for 2½ cents apiece. The shells unleaded cost $8 or $9 a thousand, and the difference between the two is hardly more than the cost of the caps, wads, powder, and shot. Good priners in centre-fire shells cost ½ as much as the powder. The primers are worth $2 a thousand or five for a cent, while good powder can be bought so that flue charges will cost as much as the caps. The shot costs more, as it does not take many 1%-cunce charges to use up a 25s many 1%-ounce charges to use up a 25-and bag. The wads cost from 30 cents to Bank of England rate—4 per cent. $3 a thousand. The shells can be loaded with either a big one-third-of-a-cent wad and with either a big one-third-of-a-cent wad and with powder, or with a cheap cardboard wad, one or two pink edge wads, a pink and black edge wad, another cardpoard wad, and the shot. The manufacturers will load it in any desired way. Brass shells are cheaper from one point of view, though they cost ten cents apiece, for the brags shell can be used almost indefinitely, while a paper shells can be used only a few times. Crimping the shells uses them up more rapidly, but it is an advantage, as in a double-barvelled gun the discharge of one barrel will loosen the shot in the other cartridge, particularly if it is a brass charge of one barrel will loosen the shot in the other cartridge, particularly it it is a brass cartridge, unless it is orimped. A reduction of ten to twenty-five per cent can be had on these cartridges by buying them through a small retail dealer, if it is worked properly. This reduction can be obtained more easily on the cartridges. Some paper shells than on rifle cartridges. Some of the manufacturers make a bid for the re-tail trade by refusing to sell any cartridges retail. The list price for four drams of powder and an ounce and one-eighth of shot, and with one card and two black-edged wads ever the powder, and with a cardboard over the wad, is $26 a thousand. This rate can be cut some, and a well-known customer may get his cartridges for two cents each. There are extras in the cartridges. Chilled shot costs $1 a shousand more. Buckshot is $1 a shousand extra. Three black-edged wads over the powder instead of two blackwans over the powder instead of two blackedged wads over the cardboard cost ninety cents extra per thousand. One card and two olack-edged wads, instead of the blackedged wads alone, cost ninety cents extra.

The cardboards are the cheapast things about a cartridge, as the regular price for them is only thirty cents a thousand. Some men prefer to cut their own cardboard are sitted. o clack-edged wads, instead of the blackged wads alone, cost ninety cents extra

There are rifle shells that cost more than any shotgun shell even with the wire cart-ridge. Rim-fired cartridges run as high as $40 a thousand for 56 calibre, with 45 grains of powder and 350 grains of lead. One of or powder and sougrams of lead. One of these cartridges will bore a hole through a frame house. There are centre-fire cartridges which cost five cents each in thousand lots at the factory. The Winchester Express, 38 calibre, with 90 grains of powder and 217 lead cost $50 a thousand. The Sharps, 40 calibre cartridge with 90 grains of powder and 370 grains of lead and the Ballard rifle also have cartridges costing $50 a thousand. To the man who is going away for a week or two of sport the cost of his ammun is a thing to be but little considered, but to professional hunters it is a big item. The en who shoot game in the Adirondracks, particularly small game, have to regard the cost of their cartridges. It would not pay to use eight-cent rifle cartridges on squirrels. In shooting small birds the cost of the ammunition may easily run up to as much as the value of the birds before they are shipped. That is one reason why some of the old hunters still cling to the muzzle-loading rifle and shotgun, aside from their sentimental at-

One Curious Result of the Cheapness of which it is surprising has not been made manifest before. Silver coins of the Jubilee issue are being manufactured on the Continent and circulated in England, The mint warns us not to accept these coins; but it seems to be very difficult to distinguish them from those that issue from Towerhill. As silwer they are just as good as the coins made at the Mint; they are not mere spurious coin; but their circulation here is an attack upon the monopoly of the Mint and consequently illegal. It is, of course, only at a time of cheap Po itiver that such a process is possible. The market price of an ounce of silver fluctuates at about 3s. 103: but when coined, since silver oins are but tokens, it is worth 63. 6d. Thus, n with the cost of getting the money to Gagland, there is a very substantial profit. It would be interesting to know how these coins "Calls." are introduced into England in the first place, and how, being here, they are put into circulation. Some London agent presumably makes profit by distributing the money.—St.

GRATEFUL-COMFORTING EPPS'S COCOA

IBREAKFAST provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.
