IS A JUDGE LIMITED? Justice May Comment in Charging a Jury.

Charging a Jury.

Osgoode Hall, Dec. 2, 1895.

In Clyde v. Hodgson, Watson, Q.C., and Dow (Whitby) for defendant moved, before C.P.D.Ct. (Rose and MacMahon, JJ.) for a new trial in an action for seduction tried before Robertson, J., and a jury at Whitby. Counsel for defendant, in addressing the jury, told them they must be judges of the facts, and not to pay attention to what counsel or judge said were the facts, and they complain that the learned judge, in addressing the jury, commented very severely upon such statements, saying that in 43 years' experience at the bar and on the bench, he had never heard the like. In various other ways counsel complained that the charge was ground for a new trial. A pointed reference to a similar case in Toronto, tried by the same learned judge, in which a verdict was given for $2000, was also objected to. Chapple (Whitby) appeared for the plaintiff. Judgment was reserved.

Mr Egan is Now Free

Mr Egan is Now Free

In the Queen v. Egan, Meredith,
J., upon motion of L. G. McCarthy, made an order discharging the prisoner
from custody. It will be remembered that Egan was convicted of selling liquor to Indians, fined $200 and costs and sentenced to six months' imprisonment at hard labor. The learned judge proceeded upon the ground that there was no evidence of reasonable service of the summons, which had been left at his mother's hotel on the 18th Juhe, and evidence upon which conviction was made taken on 20th June, and stated that it was of the utmost importance that no proceedings June, and stafed that it was of the utmost importance that no proceedings should be taken where the rights, much less the liberty of the subject, are involved, behind the back of the accused. The Great Ruler of all declined to condemn a man until he had an opportunity of being heard in his defence, and a sorry day would dawn on this country when such divine rule became to be disregarded. F. E. Hodgins appeared for the Minister of (Human) Justice. The order made (Human) Justice. The order made is quoted at 64c.

defendant will let the matter rest as it stands.

In Cullen v. Cullen the question was whether the defendant's estate should pay arrears of interim alimony. On Feb. 18, 1866, Mary Cullen brought an action for alimony, and on Feb. 18, 1867, she obtained an order for payment for four pounds a month for interim alimony. The order did not say how long the payment was to continue. In April, 1867, the action was tried before the late Chancellor Vankoughnet, who reserved judgment and died before delivering it. Payment of interim alimony it. Payment of interim alimony are continue. In April, 1867, the action was tried before delivering it. Payment of interim on July 20 fi. fa. goods was placed in sheriff's hands to make $16 and costs. This was returned nulla bona, and in October, 1876, fi. fa. lands and goods. were issued to lawy $1700 and interest. october, 1876, fi. fa. lands and goods, were issued to levy $1700 and interest, etc., without result. Nothing has been paid by the defendant since July 12, 1867. The plaintiff died Aug. 21, 1894, and defendant, on Jan. 15, 1894, and they are now settling the matters in dispute before the Great Judge.

The Master's order was confirmed by Meredith, C.J.

The Clergyman's Friend.

However wide the difference in theology, there is perfect accord amongst the clergy touching the genuine merits of Pinemalt. Extracts from published testimonials: "Many remedies have been tried in my family, but Pinemalt excels them all." Rev. A. Fisher, rector St. John's Church, Beechville, Ont. "I have found Pinemalt remarkably efficient in 'nipping' a cold in the bud. * * In hoarseness'it gives speedy relief. It is the clergyman's friend as the duties of the Sabbath approach." Rev. J. R. Johnston, B.A., M.A., pastor Presbyterian Church, East Toronto. "Pinemalt acts almost magically. * * It is a boon to singers and public speakers. Should be in every house." Rev. Father Gnam, Petrolea. "For the relief of all symptoms of cold and chest trouble it is unfailing in my experience." Rev. R. D. Hanmilton, pastor Hope Methodist Church, Alvinston, Ont. "It is a great family medicine. My faith in Pinemalt is unbounded." Rev. J. C. Calder, pastor Alvinston and Brooke Baptist Church, Ont. The Clergyman's Friend.

Corn inclined to be weak. Samples were $4c lower. Dec. dropped to 3c under May. Cold, clear weather was a bear factor. Argentine shipments were larger, 1,000,000 bush. The visible showed a large increase. The market was weakened by a sharp advance in lake rates, $4c. The trade was dull; the range very narrow.

Provisions again lower. Receipts of hogs exceeded all estimates, and the quality was very good. There was a fair cash trade, with packers for the sellers. The speculative demand was small, and sympathy with the strength in the Granger markets alone prevented another decline at the close, which was steady at a small reaction from low prices of the day and the sesson.

Wave. Dec. deliveries are thought to be mainly out of the way, and this is another strengthening factor. People who have been afraid to invest with this hanging over the market are now disposed to buy. Provisions ruled qulet and a snade lower fall around. Continued heavy receipts and free selling by local packers is the chief cause for the weakness. We advise selling have the feel of the weakness. We advise selling to be a stange for the weakness. We advise selling with the feel of t Lemon, Orange and Citron, in Kegs. about 125 ibs. The finest imported.
