

What Ails You?

Do you feel weak, tired, despondent, have frequent headaches, coated tongue, bitter or bad taste in morning, "heart-burn," belching of gas, acid risings in throat after eating, stomach gas or burp, foul breath, dizzy spells, poor or variable appetite, nausea at times and kindred symptoms?

If you have any considerable number of the above symptoms you are suffering from biliousness, torpid liver with indigestion, or dyspepsia. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is made up of the most valuable medicinal principles known to medical science for the permanent cure of such abnormal conditions. It is a most efficient liver invigorator, stomach tonic, bowel regulator and nerve strengthener.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is not a patent medicine or secret nostrum, a full list of its ingredients being printed on its bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. A glance at these will show that it contains no alcohol, or harmful habit-forming drugs. It is a fluid extract made with pure, triple-refined glycerine, of proper strength, from the roots of native American medicinal forest plants. A QUEEN POTENTATE.

"Boss" of Manchuria Uses Dingy Cab for Carriage of State.

In spite of the fact that Manchuria has been declared a republic, with the viceroys as President, Jow Shoo Mo, the governor-general, long since known as the despot of Tsitsihar, has no intention of resigning his unofficial position of power behind the throne of the nominal ruler of the country. For years his word has meant life or death to the North Manchurian and he will still, despite the changed conditions, wield an almost autocratic power.

He travels about in a carriage which it is impossible to mistake. Ahead of him ride two Manchou soldiers dressed in smart khaki uniforms of European pattern. His state carriage is really an old four-wheeled cab, such as might have been banished from some American city by the incoming taxi, except that it is drawn by two unmatched horses instead of a single animal. It has two windows on each side, the front ones are wider than the rear. Through the rear ones, however, the potentate can be seen sitting tall and erect, wearing a white conical lampshade hat, from which hang tassels of red silk and the famous peacock feather of mandarin. At the back of the cab is a small platform on which stand two footmen. Without a moment's cessation one of these men stamps on a loud bell, which gives the effect of a complete Fire Department making its way through the crowded street of a big city. A single mounted soldier brings up the rear.

Attended to It.

A certain librarian was very absent-minded and also very much absorbed in his profession. As the telephone was out of order his wife asked him to attend to a few errands for her on his way to the library. On his consenting she ran to his desk and, hastily taking the nearest card—one from a list of sample library cards—made out a list, which she handed to him. He put it in his pocket and promised not to forget it.

At dinner that night she reminded him of his promise. "I was going to give you your favorite dessert, hot gingerbread with raisins in it and whipped cream," she assured him reproachfully, "but I had no ginger and not enough raisins so I couldn't. The grocer didn't bring them or anything else I ordered. You must have forgotten, after all."

"Indeed, I didn't forget," she assured her earnestly. "I am perfectly sure I attended to it."

"That's odd," was the answer. "They are not usually careless about orders. What clerk did you see?"

"Clerk?" he repeated vaguely. "I don't seem to remember seeing any clerk. Then in a flash of enlightenment he added, with a gasp, "Why, I didn't see any! I— I did attend to the list, but I am afraid I filed it in the card catalogue under 'Groceries!'" And there, indeed, he found it the next day.

Old Time Cure for Seasickness.

A curious cure for seasickness is given in an old homeopathic medical book, "The School of Salerno." "He that would cross the sea," runs the prescription, "must a few days before hee take ship mingle the sea water with his wine. This is a remedy for them that are rich; but if it be a poor man, then he may drink sea water only, that he may the easier eschew casting. The reason hereof is because the sea water is salt, and with its saltness and the stipticity that followeth saltness it closeth the mouth of the stomach, and thereby avoydeth casting or perbreacking." Some might prefer to be sick.

Contagious Diseases Among Plants.

All the fungous diseases of plants, such as mildew, scab, blight, rust, rot, etc., are contagious. The contagion is carried from year to year in the diseased part, be it leaf, fruit or branch. The presence of any of this diseased material in the orchard or vineyard increases the chance of the appearance and spread of the disease another year. Nothing is as destructive to the fungous spores as fire, and all affected plants or parts of plants should be cut out and burned.

Home is where mother lives. And whether you be prince or peasant, one of the sweetest spots on earth is the abode of your mother.

ROWS ROYAL.

Family Storms In Very Exalted Circles In Europe.

The old saying "As happy as a king," has gone out of favor. A twentieth century king has to keep a tight hand not only on his wife and children, but also upon the whole of his wide circle of royal relatives.

They may not marry, make a will, even write a book, without his consent, and if they break the House Laws, it is the unlucky king's duty to make things unpleasant all round.

No one can suppose for a minute that Alfonso of Spain enjoyed pitching into his aunt for publishing her very harmless little book without first letting him see the proofs. But he had to do it.

The Infanta Eulalia's book is the second royal production during the past twelve months to cause a big stir. The memoirs of Louise, ex-Crown Princess of Saxony, contained revelations which made more than one crowned head furious; but in this case the princess had already so completely ostracised herself that punishment was impossible.

The Kaiser is, as a rule, very happy in his home life, but there has more than once been friction between him and his eldest son, the Crown Prince. The first occasion was when the young prince went steeplechasing, a pastime his father detests, and rode his own horse in the race. The next was when he rode up the steps in Sans Souci Park at the head of his Guardsmen, whom he afterwards took to a circus. On both these occasions he was punished by confinement in his own quarters for forty-eight hours.

A little more than a year ago the Crown Prince appeared at a theatre in Berlin without first giving notice of his intention. The house was absolutely full, and he was turned away, seatless. He didn't mind, but his august father was furious, and talked a great deal about the thoughtlessness which had brought this "slight" upon the Hohenzollerns.

Two days' arrest was the punishment. And a similar penalty was inflicted more recently, when the Crown Prince distinguished himself by talking a too active part in German politics.

One of the worst rows in the German royal circle was caused by the conduct of Prince Joachim Albrecht of Prussia, the Kaiser's first cousin. He is a very smart man, and, besides being a major in the Guards, has considerable reputation as a composer of light operatic music.

One night he appeared at a masked ball in evening dress, accompanied by a well-known variety actress, and wearing the silver star of the great Order of the Black Eagle.

The Kaiser was furious, and ordered the young man four days' arrest. But there was worse to come. The prince announced that he was going to marry the soubrette in question, who was ten years his senior. The Kaiser at once sentenced him to active service with the colonial army in Southwest Africa.

The worst and most bitter of all royal quarrels was that which resulted in the feud between the late King Leopold of Belgium and his daughter Princess Stephanie. This led to Princess Stephanie suing her father for her portion of the property left by her mother.

The rupture between Stephanie and her father was caused by her marriage to Count Lonyay, and the bitterness of the King's feelings may be judged by the fact that he refused to be reconciled, even over the queen's dead body.

Leonardo da Vinci.

Leonardo da Vinci, the celebrated Italian painter, sculptor and architect, died in 1519. He was born in 1452 and became well versed in all the sciences and arts of his time. His most famous picture is "The Last Supper," painted on the wall of a convent at Milan. He is said to have anticipated Galilei, Kepler, Copernicus and others in their astronomical theories and also some of the discoveries of recent geologists, though his views are expressed in somewhat vague language.

Berlin's Outdoor Life.

Berlin is an amazing contrast to Paris and London in the complete absence of a leisured, well to do class outdoor tastes. It has no Thames, no Banquet or Hurlingham, no week-end Brighton, hardly any motoring do-naughts. Its flat races are attended by dowdy tens where the race courses within reach of London are thronged with smart thousands.—Berlin Cor. London Bystander.

Afraid of Him.

"You never go to banquets with your husband."
"No. I'm always afraid that they'll ask him to make a speech."
"And he can't make one?"
"That's it exactly. He can't. But if he were asked I just know he'd get up and try."—Detroit Free Press.
