

the parent of many, in various distinguished academic positions. Thus the impress of this centre of learning is transmitted from one generation to another. The teachers' work does not die with him. It lives after him, and in the discharge of the honourable responsibilities of life the still small voices hover round; hushed though they be, the impression of the past is there, and is a cheering ideality in the perplexities incidental to a labour of love—medical duty. Thus we observe there is a grand connecting link established, which strengthens the attachment and promotes an ever living desire to uphold the honour and dignity of your Alma Mater.
