

In the confident belief that fair and courteous discussion of these momentous questions will have a tendency to steady the public mind, I have been induced to throw off these pages, which I commend to your impartial attention, and remain,

Dear Sir,

Yours faithfully,

JOSEPH HOWE.