

THE flattering reception which the NOVA-SCOTIA ALMANACK received for the year 1834, demands from the proprietor his grateful thanks to a liberal public; and in order to merit a continuance of that patronage, he has endeavoured to render the present publication as complete as possible. As the CHRONOLOGICAL CALENDAR appeared to give such general satisfaction, a new series of remarkable events has been introduced for every day throughout the year; to make room for which, the Sundays, holidays, &c. have been put upon the opposite page, under the head of ASTRONOMICAL AND ECCLESIASTICAL CALENDAR: and as it is intended to diversify the same every succeeding year, the Almanacks preserved, will form a valuable mass of historical facts. It is presumed the calculations will be found such as can be depended upon; in particular the TIDE TABLE, which has been carefully corrected by the Moon's horizontal parallax. The proprietor has applied wherever practicable, to the Mountain head, for exact information for the Civil, Military, Ecclesiastical and other Lists, furnished after the Calendar, and for every other usual and useful matter that could be obtained. He hopes therefore that the pains thus taken to render the NOVA-SCOTIA ALMANACK for 1835 as correct as possible, together with its typographical execution, will meet with that reward from a discerning public, which it has been his study to merit.

Halifax, October 1, 1834.

The proprietor feels obliged, for the politeness of the several editors, who have given in their respective publications the following

Recommendations of the Nova-Scotia Almanack, for 1834.

"NOVA-SCOTIA ALMANACK FOR THE YEAR 1834.—Our attention has been called this week to one of those useful Annual Publications, which has been got up with much labour, and printed in a very neat and workman-like manner, by J. S. Cunnabell. It contains a number of lists which have never been published in any of the Halifax Almanacks, and although the enumeration of articles is not as accurate and complete as it might be, and will probably be hereafter, when Almanacks of a larger size, and at a higher price are struck off in this town, yet, we think, it would be difficult to find as much useful information condensed into such a small space, and sold at so low a price, in any part of Nova-Scotia; and, therefore, we have much pleasure in recommending it to the notice of our readers."—Acadian, October 18, 1833.

"NEW ALMANACK.—Mr. Cunnabell has issued an Almanack during the past week, the arrangement and mechanical execution of which are very creditable. It contains a great amount of useful matter, and is certainly superior in many respects to any of the annuals previously printed here. We wish, however, that Mr. C. had followed the example set by the Society for Diffusing Useful Knowledge, and banished from the Calendar Pages those lying and ridiculous prognostics of foul and fair weather, so insulting to the 'Schoolmaster,' and so little in accordance with the spirit of the age."—Novascotian, Oct. 24, 1833.

"NOVA-SCOTIA ALMANACK.—Since our last, we have been politely favoured with a copy of the above work, published by J. S. Cunnabell, at Halifax, and find it every way equal to our expectations both as to neatness, usefulness and we believe accuracy. In the Calendar pages will be found an interesting Chronological Table of remarkable events, &c. filling the line of every day of the month—Lists of public and civil officers—Lists of all Religious, Temperance, and Charitable Societies, with their Officers, throughout the Province, with numerous other interesting articles, and an index which refers to every item."—Windsor, Gazette, October 23, 1833.

"THE NOVA-SCOTIA ALMANACK.—We received a No. of the Nova-Scotia Almanack published by J. S. Cunnabell, in Halifax, and were much gratified to see such a decided improvement in that class of periodicals. Notwithstanding some inaccuracies, and several relate to this district, it will no doubt, judging from the Almanacks of other years, establish its superiority."—Pictou Observer, November 5th. 1833.

"NOVA-SCOTIA ALMANACK.—Mr. Cunnabell of Halifax has this season issued a new Almanack bearing the above title: and from a careful perusal we may be justified in saying that it surpasses any thing of the kind hitherto in circulation. We wish him all the success he deserves, and have no doubt he will receive such remuneration as will enable him to continue its publication."—Yarmouth Herald, Dec. 6, 1833.
