and equipped his three brewery plants to make "Loju," the juice of loganberries and "Appleju," the juice of ripe apples. The new fruit juices were liked by the public, the demand grew, the business prospered, and now, instead of being closed, the three breweries are running at full capacity and more men are employed than formerly. And these men have the pride of knowing that they are in a clean business which is a benefit instead of a curse to mankind.

Several leaks in mains and service pipes throughout the city are receiving attention. One of the worst, in Prince William street, is due to the pipe being completely caten away, a result believed to be due to electrylosis.

Excavations are being made in preparation for instaling the second new Venturi meter at the entrance of the supply mains to the city on Sunday.

Breweries Now Make Fruit Juice.

(Kansas City Times).

In the campaigns for prohibition in Oregon and Washington the liquor interests pointed to the big brewing plants which would be closed and the hundreds of men who would be thrown out of work if those states became dry, and work if those states became dry, and that argument had influence with many voters. But prohibition came in both these states and this is what happened: You have seen in The Star a page advertisement of "Loju," a new fruit juice. That is a product of the breweries of Oregon and Washington.

Some late news and gossip of the 115th and 140th Battalions and of Canadian officers is contained in a letter from a St. John officer now in England to a friend leter. Among other things he says:

"There is no telling just what they will do with the rest of the 115th; some say they will be filled up again to make a place in the fifth division but nobody seems to know. The more likely suggestion is that they will continue to go in drafts until no more are left.

"I met Holly Lounsbury, in Charing Cross station on Friday night. His unit, the 140th, had just that day arrived at Shornecilfe and within an hour after their arrival they were broken up for the R. C. R.'s and Princess Pats, their senior officers and one or two others being all that were left.

"I saw Major Herb. McLearr yesterday in Regent street. I have heard good accounts of him and of his coolness in action."

One thing sure and certain, his action may have done no harm to the game, but it undoubtedly did it no good. It took him some time to earn the title of the Little Napoleon, but he lost it in a minute. As William G. Weart, in one of his articles well said: It has caused had feeling between McGraw and his players, and it has probably caused bad feeling samong certain members of the New York team.

It was a wonderful thing for the Gainst to wint twenty-six games purely on the merits of their work. Had the season ended there, the Giants would have looked like a ten to one shot for 1917. But things are different now. When John McGraw comes out on the coaching lines, to hand his line of talk to the opposition, he will be met by remarks which even his hide cannot turn, and the result will be, in the opinion of players, that the Giants to Hondon's that the coaching lines, to hand his line of talk to the opposition, he will be, in the opinion of players, that the Giants will do another accommodation stunt.
