

MISS CANADA MAY GO TO LONDON

Halifax Hears of Maritime Proposal—A Royal Send-off This Morning—Some Expressions of Delight.

(By Canadian Press)—Halifax, N. S., March 5.—It is announced that of the visit to Halifax of "Miss Canada" (Miss Winifred Blair, of St. John) has arisen a proposal that the Maritime Provinces combine to send the Carnival Queen to London, providing some suitable functions could be arranged where she would appear as Canada's queen.

Miss Canada occupied a drawing room on the Ocean Limited when it left Halifax this morning, and is en route to her home city. She was given a royal send-off, many people gathering at the station regardless of the early hour and unpleasant weather. The Miss Canada was apparently delighted with this fresh demonstration of the loyalty of her Halifax subjects.

She was given a large bouquet of carnations as a parting gift and was loudly cheered when the train left the station. Arrangements are said to be under way to have Miss Canada visit every city in the Dominion.

(Halifax Echo). "Isn't she sweet?" "Isn't she a darling?" "I didn't dream she would be such an attractive girl," were among the feminine comments. There was something about Miss Canada's rather shy smile and very feminine features and manner that instantly won the hearts of the onlookers, and there was entire absence of the criticism which even the most dazzling beauty, lacking Miss Blair's sweetness of person and personality, would have called forth.

She was quietly dressed, wearing a black seal coat and small, close-fitting traveling hat with a soft brown veil, and in her arms she carried a luxurious bouquet of red roses, which were added to by a handsome bouquet presented by the Gyro Club. She was accompanied by Miss Moncton, and Miss Halifax, looking very handsome, walked a little behind her. Miss Canada was assisted into a car awaiting her, and Miss Moncton into one where she was seated beside Mayor Murphy. The party proceeded to the Halifax Hotel, where they were cordially welcomed by Lieut.-Governor and Mrs. Grant and Premier and Mrs. Armstrong.

GOOD THINGS COMING TO THE THEATRES OF ST. JOHN

Miss Lillian Foster in "East Is West" at Opera House this week.

THE F. JAMES CARROLL PLAYERS ALL THIS WEEK AT THE OPERA HOUSE IN "EAST IS WEST"

"East Is West" is essentially a comedy. But there runs through it a wistful sob that adds to its wonderful attractiveness. It combines romance in one of the most fascinating love stories ever written, with touches of drama that bring audiences out of their seats. It is not a speculation, but a play that stands among those that have the longest runs in the American theatre to their credit.

The story deals with a little Chinese girl who is about to be sold from a love boat in China. She is brought to San Francisco by a Chinese merchant. It becomes impossible for him to keep her there, and he, in turn, is about to sell her to Charlie Yang, another Chinese, when the American boy who loves her, and with whom she has fallen in love, appears on the scene. To the rescue of the girl would be to ruin a delightful entertainment.

Because of the fame of "East Is West" the demand for tickets at the Opera House has been an unusually heavy one, and Manager Carroll suggests that all who have not already made their arrangements do so at once in order that there may be no delay in getting them and in order that favorite seats may be secured.

Matinee Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday at 2:30; evenings at 8:15.

British Major Tells How He Halted War Staged in Causasus

London, Feb. 10.—(By Mail)—Major A. R. McDonnell, C. B. E., writing in "The London Daily Express," tells a thrilling story of how he stopped a war in the Caucasus.

"According to the terms of the armistice with Turkey, British troops occupied the Caucasus and a small detachment of the 10th Indian Division, one of the three Caucasian regiments which had broken off from Russia after the revolution, the next day broke out between the Georgians and their neighbors, the Armenians of Erivan, over the border province of Borchalinsk.

"General Forster-Walker, commanding the British force, decided to detach his brigade-major and a small detachment of the 10th Indian Division, with instructions to the commanders to stop the war. The brigade-major fell ill and I was instructed to proceed in his place.

"I left Tiflis with the quartermaster of the 7th Gloucesters and a guard of ten men. About 7 o'clock in the morning we passed through my wagon and saw a rabble of uncouth soldiers being hurried into formation by Georgian officers. In about an hour's time the Georgian commander arrived with a retinue of fourteen officials, all generals, each representing some department of state.

"On explaining my mission I was informed that the Armenian commander, Mr. Dro, was prepared to meet us half-way between the lines provided the British force accompanying me was left behind. It was evident that Mr. Dro was taking no chances.

"The next morning we were accordingly uncoupled and with the fourteen generals I proceeded into 'No Man's Land.' We came to a halt round a bend and pulled up in front of our engine.

"A little man with a black beard, dressed in top boots and a Norfolk jacket, was disconsolately viewing the engine. One of its wooden make-shift wheels had come off and some of the rope lashings had given way. This rope lashings had given way. This rope lashings had given way.

"After a good deal of argument Comrade Dro accepted everything, stating that he only did so because he was a friend of the British government.
