ANOTHER NEGRO BURNED.

Saturated With Oil.

Admitted His Guilt and Died Without Making an Outcry-Six Thousand People Present.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Aug. 25 .-Henry Noles, a negro, was today burned by a mob of citizens for criminally assaulting and shooting to death Mrs. general Nat. M. Whittaker made a speech, promising to reconvene the grand jury tomorrow to indict the negro promptly and have him tried at the present term of the court. This appeal was supplemented by others.
Several hundred citizens from the neighborhood where the crime was committed had by this time augmented started at 10.15 a. m. for the scene of the crime, twelve miles distant.

The mob was determined and it seemed that almost the entire population for miles around had turned out to see the lynching. The grim procession of thousands marched to the Williams home. Arriving at a point in sight of the crime, the negro was given a chance to make a statement.

He mounted a stump and laughed as he began his statement. He said:

"Tell all my sisters and brothers to meet me in glory. I am going to make that my home. Tell my mother to meet me where parting will be no more."

He was then asked if anyone else was implicated in the crime. He stated emphatically that there was

At least six thousand people witnessed the horrible fate of the negro. Many remained until nightfall, augmenting the blaze until the body was entirely consumed.

MARINE DISASTERS

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.-The threeasted coasting schooner Agnes E. Hanson, coal laden, from Newport ews, Va., came into port early this orning with her decks littered with wreckage. Capt. Babbitt says that yesterday afternoon about 1 o'clock the schooner was sailing for port about 30 miles southeast of the Atlan-fic Highlands, when she was struck by a whirlwind. The schooner's span-ker boom, an enormous span, was broken in half. The spanker gaff, maingaff. I sizzen topmasts were VINEYARD HAVEN, Mass, Aug. 25.—Although the schooner Harold C. Beecher of New Haven, Conn., was run into and sunk by an unknown steamer in Vineyard Sound at about 1 o'clock this morning. Capt. Lowe and crew of six men reached shore in the yawl boat. The Beecher was bound from Port Johnson for Salem, oaded with coal. Capt. Lowe states that when near the eastern end of Redge Fence shoal he sighted a steam-er ahead steering to the westward, and er ahead steering to the westward, and kept his course, thinking that the vessel would pass clear. But when they reached each other the steamer suddenly sheered across the shooner's bow, carrying away her bowsprit and all her gear, and making a hole through her bow so that she sank in about an hour. The tide being high, the schooner drifted over the shoal without stopping, and afterwards sank in six fathoms of water. The captain and crew of six men left her in their yawl crew of six men left her in their yawl boat just before she went to the bottom. The Beecher was ownd by E. H. Weaver of New Haven. It is probable she will never be raised. The colliding steamer is thought.

In closing he repeated that the doctrine of divine healing ran like a golden thread through the whole Etble, and entreated the people to read the book faithfully, trust in God's promises, live pure lives, especially refraining from such abominations as tobacco and liquor, come back to God and the Bible, and all good things should be theirs. Chained to a Tree and Then "The schooner Nora Naylor, Captain John Ingram, from New Brunswick, owes her salvation to the fact that she owes her salvation to the fact that she was laden with plaster. One of the strangest stories ever related in this port is told by the veteran skipper, a tale of a protracted struggle against adverse winds with a leaky ship, and the measures finally taken which averted almost certain disaster.

"We had steady head winds from one day out of port," said Captain Ingram, "of such force that we were three times driven back to Hillsboro. Then Charles Williams, wife of a prominent farmer, near Winchester, Tenn., last Friday. Admitting his crime and asking his friends to "meet him in glory," he met his fate without a groan. That's what gave me the idea, I suppose, of a plan which may have saved us.

"T had the crew smash several more barrels of the plaster along the line of the framing. Then I had the contents mixed with water into a sticky mass. The wind was coming fast, but there was yet time, by vigorous use of the pump, to free the hold of water "Then the mate came to me with the crowd. there was yet time, by vigorous use of the pump, to free the hold of water, and the quick-drying plaster effectually stopped every leak."

"Capt. Ingram said though some pumping had to be resorted to to keep the vessel free, only about three strokes a minute were required. The plaster, which had settled in the seams is as hard as adamant, and from being a leaky tub the Norah Naylor is now one of the staunchest hookers in the
