DON'T VOTE FOR JUMPING BEANS AND SOCIAL CLIMBERS

SRC and AAA Election.

The election for next year's SRC and AAA will be held on Tuesday, March 23. We are somewhat disappointed that many nominees have refused to contest certain positions. However, we have our candidates now and it is up to us to elect the best people for the positions. We will dispense with the usual wordy article calling on people to "exercise their God-given democratic franchise," but we do want to say that if you do not vote on election day, please do not criticize next year the officers who are elected. If you do vote and your candidate is not elected, accept the majority's wish and work with him.

When you vote, think of the qualifications of the man for the position. Forget that he is a Forester or an Engineer or tall, dark and handsome. Think of the candidate's past performance and try to conceive of him in the new position. If he fits there, vote for him.

You might as well sell your vote for a bottle of watered liquor as to vote for a man unqualified for the job.

One Canadian college newspaper editorial said last week, "Beware of the jumping bean type and the social climber in elections." We have the both of them at UNB. Jumping beans like to make themselves conspicuous, but they can do nothing but jump. Social climbers like to be included with the so-called ruling class "elite" of the campus, but they can do nothing much but chatter over tea cups and mutter about "those awful radicals who are ruining the university for us."

Class periods will be shortened to allow you to vote on Tuesday. Vote, but vote intelligently.
