

POULTRY CONSERVATION

The greatest preventable loss in eggs occurs on the farms.

It costs Quebec several thousand dollars to hear the roosters crow throughout the Summer.

Produce infertile eggs for market—keep the males away from the females except during the breeding season.

Always fatten chickens before marketing them, whether selling them alive or dressed. You lose money in marketing a thin bird and the consumer gets a poor product.

Eggs and poultry meat of the highest quality command highest prices and yield largest profits.

Efficiency in production is the only excuse for existence under present conditions.
