

Guilty of Perjury.

Toronto, May 18.—Mrs. Jessie Alexander of Holland Landing was found guilty of perjury and remanded for sentence at the Court of General Sessions yesterday. At a case of a domestic quarrel heard before Magistrate Woodcock of Newmarket, prisoner swore that defendant had never beaten his boy, knowing same to be untrue.

Mrs. Alice Taylor will also be tried for perjury in the same case.

The following two bills were returned by the grand jury yesterday: Pauline Pevie, theft, on three charges; Herman Benda, abominable crime; William Lount, theft.

GREATEST FEMALE STRENGTH-ENER ON EARTH.

Thousands of women are wan, pallid, run down and dispirited. What they need is that nourishing tonic Ferrozone. Soon they regain their laughing eyes, bright spirits and rosy cheeks. Ferrozone does this and more, as Mrs. L. F. Anderson, Whitney Pier, C. B., testifies. "My daughter was very much run down and had considerable trouble at times. Often I was at a loss to know what to do. I was advised to give her Ferrozone, and I did so. Ferrozone cleared up all the trouble, made my daughter healthy and well, and I consider it a medicine every woman should use regularly if she wants to feel her best." Rebuild with Ferrozone. It is the King of all cures. Price 50c. per box at all dealers.

SYSTEM REQUIRES FREQUENT CLEANSING.

Not only outside, but inside as well your body must be frequently cleansed. Otherwise it becomes loaded with wastes that clog up the wheels of health. Much better to act in time. Use Mr. Hamilton's Pills; they strengthen and regulate the bowels, assist digestion, enrich the blood and thereby fortify the nerves and lay the foundation of lasting good health.

Mr. Hamilton's Pills bring vim and vitality so much sought for to-day; they infuse a feeling of freshness and spirit in those who have been ailing for years. Really no medicine so potent. Price 25c. at all dealers.

France Will Be Safe.

St. Petersburg, May 18.—The Paris correspondent of The Russ, in a despatch to his paper, published yesterday, announced that he had obtained information from alleged authentic sources to the effect that the Franco-Japanese agreement, now in course of negotiation, will contain conditions applying to the eventuality of a European war, and binding Japan to place at the disposition of France 300,000 men, while the British will land a contingent of 100,000 to 150,000.

The mother who would be horrified at the thought of letting her daughter wander away to a strange country without guide or counsel, yet permits her to enter that unknown land of womanhood without counsel or caution. Then, in utter ignorance, the maiden must meet physical problems whose solution will effect her whole future life. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has been well named a "God-send to women." It corrects irregularities and imparts such vigorous vitality to the delicate womanly organs, as fits them for their important functions. Many a nervous, hysterical, peevish girl has been changed to a happy young woman after the use of "Favorite Prescription" has established the sound health of the organs peculiarly feminine.

Not a patent medicine, but the "Favorite Prescription" of Dr. R. V. Pierce, a Specialist in the diseases of women. Of known composition, without alcohol or other dangerous stimulants, the active medicinal principles of Golden Seal and Lady's Slipper root, of Black Cohosh root, Unicorn root and Blue Cohosh root are extracted from each by the use of chemically pure, triple-refined glycerine.

TO SAVE TIMBER WOODS.

Old Settler's Method of Solving Re-forestry Question.

The subject of re-foresting cut-over land is becoming one of the most important that can be discussed in Ontario, and it is attracting increasing attention. An Old Settler who has given this matter considerable attention writes: For many years past I have been trying to impress on the authorities the fact that the question of re-forestry is simply a matter of burning all the evergreen brush and tops cut in the process of getting out logs and lumber. There have been two chief obstacles in the way of accomplishing this object. The first is that I have neither time, eloquence nor literary ability to handle the most important subject of the day. The other, and the principal one, is that every man connected with the lumber business, from the millionaire limit-owners down to the cook's mate in a lumber camp, ridicules the idea.

The fact that tens of thousands of acres of land, practically worthless for agricultural purposes, but specially adapted to supply the world with pine, hemlock and spruce, are now a bare and barren waste, owing to simple negligence and greed, is of no importance whatever to these men. It would take two more men in every gang of log-makers to burn the brush as it was cut. This would add from 10 to 15 per cent to the cost of getting out logs, and what is the interest of the next generation, or for that matter, of the present owners ten or twelve years hence, to an extra present cost of 10 per cent?

Lumbermen Not Wholly Responsible. It may be quite true that the lumbermen are not solely responsible for the waste I have referred to. If the late Ontario Government, when the price of lumber advanced, had insisted on clean work in the woods, instead of raising the dues on each thousand of lumber, millions of dollars' worth of lumber might have been saved. It would hardly be fair, however, to blame either the late or the present Government for not doing a thing that they could not be supposed to know anything about, and which, so far as I know, was only advocated by one man in the province, and he is now an opportunity such as may not occur again, for the present Government to try the experiment.

Try It in Algonquin Park. The Algonquin Park consists of a large block of land, now mostly in a state of nature. Part, or perhaps the whole of it may be under license, but the Government has power to arrange that, and to do so without injuriously affecting the right of the first holders, if any.

Let the licenses be granted subject to the condition that no brush shall be left on the ground, and give the only practical and common sense system of re-forestry a fair chance. In the meantime allow me to repeat for the hundredth time, that the Ontario woods will re-forest themselves if you do not interfere with them, and that an additional expenditure of about 75 cents per thousand feet board measure in burning brush and limbs would do away with nine-tenths of the damage to forests by fire. And lastly, that burning the brush and limbs, especially of evergreen timber, is all there is of the re-forestry question.

TO BE REAR-ADMIRAL.

Captain Kingsmill Promoted to Command of Home Fleet.

Captain Kingsmill, son of former Judge Kingsmill, of Toronto, has been promoted to the command of the home fleet, special service division, at Devonport. Captain Kingsmill was in command of the battleship Dominion, which met with an accident while visiting Canada last year. The present action of the Admiralty indicates that this mishap is not to stand in the way of Captain Kingsmill's advancement. He will become rear-admiral next year and available for still further promotion.

The Right Sort of Patriotism. The Ontario Government has voted the sum of $75,000 to purchase flags for the public schools of the province. These flags are to be used as objects lessons in patriotism. We have in this case a need of a good deal of humbug about this flag business. Patriotism that goes no farther than a lot of bunting does not amount to much. In times gone by Canadians have paid little attention to flags, and yet were about as loyal a people as there is to be found. If patriotism is to be taught in the schools, it should be by means that appeal to intelligence, not merely to the eye. Let the children be taught the resources and the opportunities of their country, and the duty that these entail. Let them be taught that patriotism is not a word, but a deed. It is a fight for their country it is always necessary to work for their country, and that this is to be done by performing faithfully the daily duties of life, showing justice and kindness to their comrades; that all good work is patriotic and all bad work is treason. If this lesson is thoroughly instilled into the minds and hearts of children more good will be done than by unlimited flag-flying.—Walkerton Telescope.

Would Import Russians. The Prairie is a weekly paper published at Calgary, not without some vigorous views and breeziness of expression. A contributor called "Augustus" proposes to settle the coal strike by importing 3,000 Russians. These Russians are to be treated in a manner which will make them feel that they are still under the Czar. Confiscation of all his property and deportation are among the wild punishments to be inflicted upon any Russian miner who joins the union. The editor mildly says: "Augustus has opinions on the coal situation which he airs in this number. You may not agree with him; but his remarks are at least readable."

Nothing Lost. He swore off half a million, Yet he didn't feel bereft. He had the property all right.

FATE IS NOW SEALED.

All-Red Trade Route To Be Referred to Committee.

London, May 18.—Lord Strathcona is correcting misleading rumors regarding the all-red trade route to the Canadian wheat crop.

In some quarters it is believed the Cabinet's decision to refer the scheme for an all-red trade route to a departmental committee practically seals its fate. It is feared, the entire cost may fall on British taxpayers. If this becomes generally believed there is no chance of its passing the House of Commons. City opinion is that the scheme is an ideal one, but not likely to admit of practical realization. The Vancouver Australasia service is especially criticized, it being generally agreed that fast steamers are too costly.

SOME FAMOUS CROSSES

MEMORIALS ERECTED BY EDWARD I. FOR SPANISH QUEEN.

Eleanor Died Whilst on Journey to Scotland—Body Brought to London by Easy Stages—Crosses Marked Resting Places—Only Three Remain—Carving on Them Elaborate in Some Cases.

There are few more interesting memorials in England than the crosses which yet remain of the original 12 erected by Edward I. to the memory of his consort, Eleanor of Castile. These memorials, though termed crosses, bear little resemblance to a genuine cross and were erected to mark the various stopping places of the cortege that accompanied the body of the Queen during the journey from the town of Harby, where she died, to London, where the interment took place. Charing Cross is one of these memorials, or rather a copy of the original, though it is unlikely that one in a thousand persons has even bothered to penetrate the cab rank at this point to study the shields and figures.

King Edward's Mission. In the autumn of 1290 King Edward I. started in haste on a mission to Scotland, leaving the Queen to follow more leisurely. On the way she contracted a low fever and died after a month's illness at Harby. Her body was removed to Lincoln, where the first funeral masses were said, and where a monument is yet to be seen of her. Then on Dec. 4 the long procession set forth for Grantham, following in all probability, the wide Roman road which runs parallel with the present road along the cliff almost into Grantham.

The original cross here, which was destroyed by Puritan fanatics in 1645, is said to have been erected on St. Peter's Hill near to where the statue of Newton now stands. Down in the square opposite the Angel Inn, is a tall, white obelisk purporting to be a memorial of the old cross.

The next day's journey was from Grantham to Stamford, along 21 miles of the dreariest road in England. At Stamford the procession halted, and a cross was erected in the vicinity of the Scotgate.

After the halt at Stamford the procession deserted the main road to the south, and bore away to the right hand, along the high ground bordering the railway. At Waddington, the Weston, Bulwick and Wolden, halted for the night at Geddington, a royal palace, and in those days the place seems to have been of no little importance.

From Geddington to Northampton is thirteen and a half of the loneliest miles in England. To this day the whole stretch there is only one village, and even single houses are extremely few in number. The oldest part of Kettering Church was first erected when Queen Eleanor's funeral train passed over the hilly ground on which the present church stands. It is probable that as Geddington waned in importance its neighbor town rose in prominence.

To get to the Northampton Cross coming from Kettering, it is necessary to pass through the town and down the hill of the London road, crossing the railway line close to Bridge road station. From this point the way lies up a rather steep hill, running alongside the wall of Delapre Park, and at the top of this hill is the cross.

Has Been Restored. Like the one at Waltham, it is based on octagonal lines. The steps show manifest signs of restoration, and, as at Geddington, anything in the shape of a cross is conspicuous by its absence. The broken shaft surmounting the erection may have had a cross originally, or may have ended in a group of points, as at Geddington. But, so far as position goes, the Northampton cross is incomparably the finest of the three which remain. That at Waltham is in the centre of a busy street, at Geddington the same remark applies, but in this case the monument is on the top of a high hill, from whence the country round can be seen for many a mile. The figures of the Queen are badly weather-worn—more so than at Geddington; but still they show the figure and costume well, and are of the greatest possible interest.

WALTHAM CROSS.

From Northampton the procession journeyed on to Stony Stratford, and thence down the Watling street to Woburn, Dunstable and St. Albans. In neither of these places are any re-are known to have been erected, and in the case of Dunstable it seems that there is some doubt as to where the cross did stand.

From Dunstable to St. Albans is a comparatively short stage in the way—not more than ten or eleven miles. At St. Albans once again the sorry tale of destruction has to be repeated, and the site of the cross, it is known, is unmarked by any sort of stone. After St. Albans came one of the sudden swerves which are such a puzzling feature when the route is studied, and so it comes that Waltham Cross has to be added to the list. Waltham Cross is much on the lines of the Northampton one, but lacks the importance given by the situation. Charing Cross was the last, and it has been suggested that a graceful recognition of the alliance recently consummated between the royal houses of Spain and England would be the removal of this memorial to the Spanish consort of the first Edward to a more conspicuous and better place.

WEALTH OF THIS EMPIRE.

Food For Reflection for Chronic Croakers and Pessimists.

Few people are able to realize the immense wealth which is every year produced from the 11,314,000 square miles which comprise the British Empire. Some remarkable figures, from which some idea of this can be obtained, are to be found in the Statistical Abstract of the British Empire, issued in the form of a yellow book. Calculations from the figures obtained therein show that within the past ten years the Empire has yielded to its inhabitants the following:

Coal	£970,000,000
Diamonds	55,000,000
Gold	288,000,000
Silver	10,000,000
Copper	28,000,000
Tin	64,000,000

Farther Products.

In addition to these little items, which represent a total wealth of £1,415,000,000, the Empire has also provided within the ten years the following valuable products:

Iron ore, tons	115,000,000
Pig iron	35,000,000
Wheat, bushels	4,850,000,000
Barley, bushels	970,000,000
Oats, bushels	3,400,000,000
Maize, bushels	370,000,000
Wine, gallons	110,000,000
Tea, pounds	3,600,000,000
Coffee, pounds	420,000,000
Rubber, casks	560,000,000
Rubber, pounds	103,000,000
Cotton, pounds	12,000,000,000

Not All Yet.

This by no means exhausts the wealth that is produced from and on the land of the Empire. Among its other possessions are:

Horses	7,000,000
Horned cattle	119,400,000
Sheep	412,000,000

It is interesting to note that the sheep produce between them 872,000 pounds of wool every year.

BRITISH PARSIMONY.

French Paper Bemoans Weakening of England's Naval Supremacy.

A remarkable article in the Siecle, a radical newspaper, speaks thus of the recent economies practiced by Great Britain in regard to the navy:

"The close sympathy which unites us to the English people permits us to express a frank opinion and to appear to us to be highly dangerous for Great Britain suddenly to cease her magnificent effort to assure still more completely her naval supremacy. The policy which England followed only yesterday, which included what is called the two-Power standard, and permitted the country to contemplate with calmness the eventuality of a coalition against her of the two strongest naval powers, appears to have been abandoned, although other powers continue to strain every nerve to increase the strength of their fleets."

Impairs France's Safety. "A stoppage in the development of the British navy is, therefore, a very dangerous act, for it facilitates enormously the game of coalitions, and makes their formation more probable. This is a question which, of course, interests Great Britain more than France, although England's naval power is one of the guarantees of our own security. But if it is not for us either to approve or to blame, it is all the same our duty to call attention to what is happening and to express the opinions which events inspire."

Scheme to Banish Smoke. According to statements which have recently been made, Londoners are on the eve of the exploitation of an invention which will practically abolish smoke.

A clever inventor, announces Sir William Bailey, of Manchester, has hit upon "an ingenious and absurdly simple process" to eliminate from ordinary coal the ingredients that make smoke and decrease coal's calorific value.

"Coalite," as the resultant substance is termed, will be cheaper than common gas coke, but will have at least a third greater heating power. There is a movement on foot to start large works for its production at Trafford Park, near Manchester, and the new industry will be watched with interest.

It is stated that the King has had the qualities of the new fuel tested at Buckingham Palace.

"Other Worldliness." What is known as "other worldliness" is gradually ceasing to be a prominent feature in the religious life of our time. BOTTLED MILK, CREAM AND BOTTLED BUTTER-MILK

The Maple City Creamery will deliver bottled milk on and after Tuesday morning, and respectfully ask for a trial order.

The milk will be bottled as soon after milking as possible, so our customers will get all the cream the cow puts into the milk. Our bottles are all full imperial measure, and will be thoroughly washed every day and filled by machinery, and when the caps are put on no STREET DUST can get in and NO CREAM can get out. Our sanitary tickets will be used only once, 34 pints for $1.00, 17 pints for 50 cents or 8 pints for 25c. A pint milk ticket will get a quart bottle of fresh butter milk, 2 pint milk tickets for half a pint bottle of coffee cream or a small bottle of whipping cream and 6 pint milk tickets for a pint of ice cream; all delivered as promptly as possible.

Come and see for yourselves where and how the work is done, and you will readily see that in bottles is the only sanitary, up-to-date way to handle milk and cream.

Visitors always welcome at
