LONDON REVIEW. Although the Roumanians in north-east Transylvania continue to fall back before the Austro-Germans from this region all along the battle line, in the vicinty of Orsova on the Danube, they not alone are giving battle to their adversaries but at several points by violent counter attacks they have gained an advantage over them. Bucharest admits the retirement of the Roumanian forces in the Kalmain mountains on the northwest front, but says that further south the infantry of the Teutonic Allies were put to flight by their artillery fire. Successes were the Teutonic Allies were put to flight by their artillery fire. Successes were also obtained by the Roumanians in the Oituz and Juil Valleys, where violent attacks were repulsed with casualties. On both sides of the Szueduk Pass the Roumanians continue on the Pass the Roumanians continue on the offensive, but Berlin says their attacks have been repulsed. To the north of this region in the Carpathian mountains, the Austro-Germans have recaptured the height of Sineterres. In Volume release fighting has again Volhynia violent fighting has again broken out here; both the Russians and Teutonic Allies claim successes for their forces. Petrograd says that north of Korythic the Russians captured a German trench, inflicting heavy casualties on their opponents. Berlin says Russian attacks were repulsed on the Stokhod. Berlin admits that the British north of Thiepval have gained a firm hold on the German trenches and that the French south of the Somme have won a footing in the sugar refinery at Gomermont. The French in Saturday's fighting in the Ablaincourt-Rolley sector made 1,100 Germans prisoners. In Macedonia the Serbian troops made a further advance along the left bank of the Cerna River, while the French have cut the railway and Teutonic Allies claim successes

The fighting throughout the region consists mainly of artillery duels, only isolated infantry attacks having been reported. Still further gains for the Italians against the Austrians in the Cerse region of

How They Choked Off the Grafter

The British Administration in power when the war began was probaly the ablest aggregation of public men who ever held the reins of government in Britain, and when it was deemed wise to construct a coalition, the newly reconstructed cabinet followed out the principles laid down by the preceding body. One of the first things which required attention was the forestalling and choking off of the grafter, the wretch who planned on becoming a multimillionaire out of his country's extremity. England found herself at war and had to organize to do her part in the colossal conflict which her leaders saw were before them. The first thing was to steady the money market affected by the panic of the opening weeks. This was done without delay and there has been no trouble since. The next million dollars worth of this article and made contracts extending over a lengthy period. The people were assured a supply of sugar at a fair price and the exploiter was put out of husiness. The great question was then taken up. England depends for her supply largely on imported chilled or frozen meat, and the exporters of Argentine, Uruguay, Australia, New Zealand and elsewhere prepared for a tremendous harvest. The Government calmly took over all steamers with refrigerating space and said this case being a matter of tremend-ous difficulty. Then, perhaps, the greatest stroke of all was the nation-alization of the railways and taking over the docks. This enabled the aurities to regulate the three duties the Austrians in the Carso region of the new British armored cars, it is also an attribute of the British Emcurious that nobody has bothered to discover how they came by their singular name of "tanks." The explanation is quite simple. When it was decree of King Constantine. trial, it was essential to keep the matter secret. But the Department of the to have a name of some sort, and it'

One of the most impressive stories ver shown at the Nickel Theatre wil e exhibited to-day. It is entitled The Man Who Couldn't Beat God.' and Maurice Costello, the popular actor, plays, the leading role. The story is one of a man who commits a great crime—murder, and believe h can blot the thoughts of it from hi mind. He tries in every conceivable way and how far he succeeds the picture shows. This film is now in de nd in all the large cities of the es and Canada and no doubt i vill attract many patrons here. The cting is of the finest quality, as several of the best artists of the Vita graph Co. are in the cast.
