Why Not Peace Economy?

By RUTH CAMERON.

A package containing several breakable articles came to me from the shop, the other day, and when I opened it I found that, instead of being packed in excelsior, the articles were safeguarded by a multitude of scraps of paper. I looked more closely and recognized these as credit slips slipped up by some cutting machines. War economy, of course.

Yes, and why not peace economy, too, when we have fought the good fight and won our victory? Necessity is a teacher as well as a mother. The necessities of war are daily teaching us all the best kind of economy, which is not the economy of doing without, but the economy of fuller use of what we have.

But School Cannot be over Too Soon. If we do not promptly forget these lessons as soon as our teacher leaves us, (and this school cannot be over too soon, and the savage Hun beater) that will be one blessing wrested from the most tragic duty the world ever had set before it.

Of course the efficiency movement had long before the war, taught many of the business men of the country lessons in this fuller utilization which enriches both the individual and the world. For instance, there is a big mail order house which, for years, has manufactured wall paper out of the vast quantities of correspondence it handles. But the stern teacher who is now task master, will surely drive home the lesson more forcibly and more universally.

Cheating Thirteen Hundred Pigs. Fortunately the largest and most important industry in the country is the one in which the lessons of utilization have been most ably put into practice. I refer of course to the great business of home-making. Let me tell you a little incident which will illustrate more forcibly than anything I could say, what has been done in this line. A friend of mine knows a man who has the contract for collecting the garbage for two cities, each, I believe, of about ten thousand inhabitants. He told her, the other day, that before the war he was able to feed sixteen hundred pigs on the material gathered. To-day he can only feed three hundred.

Surely She Will Never Go Back.

That is a humble, perhaps some might say a vulgar, incident. But to my mind it is one of the best things I have heard for months. Surely the American woman is learning a lesson in true economy which she can never wholly forget. I do not mean that I think she will be as strict after victory is won, as she is to-day; but I do not think she will ever be as lax as she was in those carefree, careless, wasteful days before the war.

I fell from a building and received what the doctor called a very bad sprained ankle, and told me I must not walk on it for three weeks. I got MINARD'S LINIMENT and in six days I was out to work again. I think it the best Liniment made.

A Close Shave.

Two soldiers—an Irishman and an Englishman—having met in Flanders, began to talk of the hairbreadth escapes they had in battle.

"Well," said the Englishman, "one day in the height of an engagement a shell took the hair off my head. Now, what do you think of that for a haircut?"

"Sure," said Pat, "when I was in a battle, a bullet from one of them Maxims whizzed by me and took every hair off my face. What do you think of that for a close shave?"

No Wonder.

There was an air of trouble and excitement when the portly politician rushed into the newspaper office and howled a demand to see the city editor.

Ushered into the presence of that austere person he began: "How dare you insult me as you did in your paper last night?"

"Why, what do you mean? I printed your resignation just as you requested, didn't I?"

"Yes, but you headed it 'Public Improvement'!"

Soper & Moore

THE HELPFUL MAN.

He never saw the trouble; he only saw the deed. He never thought of distance; his mind was on the need. He never reckoned money as a prize worth clinging to; he said its only value was the good that it could do.

He never stopped to reckon what he'd miss, of joy, to stay. And help a fellow being who was stranded on the way. Never paused to think of pleasures that he cherished long and planned; All he saw was one in trouble who must have a helping hand.

There seemed nothing so important that he wouldn't turn aside. For the man who needed friendship and was really trouble-tried; He wasn't one to answer, "I have something else to do." He thought his foremost duty was to help a man he knew.

He never saw the trouble; he only saw the deed. He never thought of sacrifice; his mind was on the need. And he had this simple motto, which he followed to the end: "When the other man's in trouble, that's the time to be his friend."

Fads and Fashions.

Black dinner gowns are always good trimmed with Chantilly lace. Cloth coats for small children have short waists and flaring skirts. Narrow black patent leather belts girdle overblouses and sweaters. Ruffles and bindings are the sole trimming of some very pretty gowns. Checked silk skirts are worn with plain charmeuse coats without sleeves. Large picture hats have scarfs with long ends falling over the brim. Handkerchief linen and sports silk combined make a charming afternoon gown.

Milady's Boudoir.

TO HAVE A PRETTY ARM.

To have a pretty arm is a bona craved by most women. But arms are not all pretty, and to make them so will require treatment and lots of patience. One must remember that it is harder to build up than to tear down. However, there are simple treatment that will work a wonderful improvement, if not entirely correct the faults. Exercises may be adopted that will perfect the circulation and take away from or add to any part of the arm. Should the arm be thin the exercises should be mild, but if there is too much flesh the exercises should be vigorous.

An ideal method of plumping the arms is to wrap them with oiled bandages, to be worn at night. Before applying the bandages, the entire arm should be bathed with warm water for eight or ten minutes. In addition to cleansing the skin it opens the pores and better prepares the skin to absorb the oil.

The bandages should be trips of linen about two inches wide, first soaked in olive oil and then applied. Begin at the wrist by winding the bandage around the arm, working upward until the whole arm is encased. The bandage should be put on firmly, but not so tight as to retard circulation. To prevent ones clothing or the bed clothes from becoming soiled, silk may be used to cover the bandages.

The oil may be applied by massaging the arms but the bandages are better. The arms should be bathed again in the morning and after being thoroughly dried a small amount of oil again rubbed into the skin by friction, after which the arms should be wiped with a soft cloth and then powdered.

What Do Your Eyes Tell.

Bright vivacious eyes of any shade mean a nature full of life and fun and laughter; ready if the hair is fluffy to take capricious fancies. The small eyes which are so bright may be the windows of a most attractive soul, but we must not hope to find the most deeply loving types with eyes like this.

The big green eye shows a fund of jealousy. In the sparkling grey eye we find a high spirited clever type more inclined to attract than to succumb. The love of romance is shown in the long, dreamy eye whether its colour be blue, brown or grey. The brown eye gives warmth, but sometimes inclinations to infidelity; these and the dark hues are the eyes that predominate.
