The papers were never so filled with advertisements of remedies that will cure every known disease, as they are today; these are invertably accom-panied by letters from people, testifying in the strongest terms to the virtue and merit of the particular preparation advertised; but because so much is claimed for the medicine, it has come to the point where most readers regard such testimony as pure 'fake" and made up out of whole

AT THE GRAND TONIGHT.

In writing "The Scout's Revenge," Mr. John Arthur Fraser has done the best work of his career. He has writ-ten a play that will please the high-priced people as well as the gallery. The play has enough sensation in it to satisfy the lovers of gun-play, while the beautiful love story and bright clean comedy will appeal most forcibly to the more fastidious. It will be given at popular prices at the Grand tonight.

JUST TOMFOOLERY. "The Show Girl," the attraction at the Grand tomorrow afternoon and evening, is receiving favorable criticism all over the country. The Montreal Herald said of it: "'The Show Girl' is not a comic opera, nor a musical comedy, nor anything at all in particular. Its proper title could not be found in any glossary of theatrical terms. It isn't anything. A 'folly bit of tomfoolery,'the programme calls it. This is one way of programme is just about right. Tomfoolery it is from beginning to end. But it is tomfoolery that is never loud, never vulgar, never repellant just the jolliest kind of tomfoolery all the way through. There is not the shadow of a plot to worry about. Three hours of music, song and droilery, with never a minute that is slow and duli: comedians who are genuinely funny and chorus girls who are genuinely pretty: songs that have some point to them and music that rings pleasantly in the ear long after one has heard it, effective costumes, stage pictures that always please the eye, and snatches of burlesque that one can't help laughing

MR. L. J. WALKER, OF BRADSTREET'S.

CITY COUNCIL IS URGED TO DEFEND RIGHTS OF CITIZENS

Mr. Nicholas Wilson Speaks of 1853." It was in 1857 that the building Long Standing Abuses.

They Should Not Be Augmented by Building New Siding.

PROJECTS which come before city council are opposed as vigorously and effectively as Mr. Nicholas Wilson, one of London's most venerable and esteemed citizens, opposed, last night, the proposed plan of constructing a new R. siding on Bathurst street, from Burwell to William streets. There are many men in this city, and out of it, too, who would have been glad to have heard Mr. Wilson as he spoke upon this matter, for it showed that he is still strong mentally and physically, as in the days when they were his pupils at the old Union School. His protest against the granting of permission for the construction of the siding was one of the most effective ever heard in the committeeroom, and plainly impressed the aldermen, who decided that thy would take no action whatever until after they go to the district affected and personally understand the situation. It is do as they pleased. he had with him, was able to read them without his glasses, and he at the time taught school in this city for nearer 60 than 50 years. Mr. Wilson has been the longest suffering of the residents in the neigh-berhood of Bathurst street, the Hamilton road and Maitland street, whose property was affected by the construction of the London and Port Stanley Railroad along the Hamilton road. His references to this fact brought up thoughts of the time when London was on the veranda of his home "and have was a little over 50 years ago that I the company should buy Mr. Wilson's built my cottage there," Mr. Wilson property, and the latter said that he said. "It was in '52, and at that time was prepared to arbitrate.

of the L. and P. S. R. was brought up, and after choosing one route, the promoters changed it so as to run along the Hamilton road. Mr. Wilson and others protested unavailingly against this, and the road was built. He had a frontage of over 300 feet on this thoroughfare, lots of room to build cottages, but he could never do this.

The depreciation in the value of his property, for which he never received one cent in the way of compensation, was not the only grievance of which he in common with other residents in the neighborhood had reason to complain. committees of During all these years they had been forced to contend with the annoyances incidental to the immediate proximity of the railroad. During the last fourteen months this noise had been terrific. "You would think that it was pandemonium itself," Mr. Wilson declared. "We can never sleep after 5 o'clock in the morning. Frequently in the night also there is a great noise. It is a terrible annoyance. I am old and my wife is old and feeble. I consider it a great hardship. This demon of noise is constantly heard. It is a shame that human beings, citizens of a free country, should have this hardship imposed upon us." More than that, the dust, cinders and rubbish thrown upon his property from the railway was continually injuring it. This was only preliminary to Mr. Wilson's present protest. After enduring all this for so many years, the L. and D. R. R. was now asking that the council freely grant them the privilege of constructing a siding along Bathurst street, beside the frontage of 275 feet which he had on that street. Thus he would be hemmed in between the two. The latter would be more annoyance than the first, for they would be shunting and loading and unloading on a siding all the time. His property would be shut up valueless. Mr. Wilson said that the company was becoming more aggressive all the time They seemed to think that they could a fact worthy of note that Mr. Wilson, "I have lived there over 50 years," who spoke from one or two notes which Mr. Wilson said. "I have resided in the city over 60 years. My wife has lived in London over 70 years. Gentlemen, standing beside the table by which he I ask the council through you to seheld them, and the veteran teacher has cure me in my rights and not allow me to be menaced further. My property has been ruined, and my family inconvenienced by a state of affairs such as no person in a civilized country should have to submit to. If I had given my place up years ago, I might now have had a comfortable home and spend my time in peace and quietness in the evening of my days."

Mr. Wilson said he thought that the council owed it as a duty to the citiof such a size that he could go out zens to say to this coupany that it can't do as it pleases in a free counon the veranda of his nome and the try.

a fine view out across as far as the try.

Ald. Jolly said that in his opinion my home was a pleasant one, my surroundings were agreeable, and my friends who came to see me complimented me upon its location." That was before the railway came. "My before the railway came. "My before the railway came."

Mr. Samuel Winnett also addressed the committee briefly, corroborating what Mr. Wilson had said, and the other members of the delegation present opposing the siding were Messrs. home was there before there was a single railway in Canada," he said, "for the Gray, Wm. Hawken and James the Great Western was only built in Brooks.

Letters to the Editor.

THE PROHIBITION QUESTION. To the Editor of The Advertiser: I see in your issue of yesterday, 17th, an article styled "Dr. Chown Confident." In the course of his remarks he says: "The anti-prohibitionists were afraid to debate with their opponents," etc. Now, I am not a "liquor man," but it is most sorrowfully evident that, "the salt has lost its savor," when, after nineteen cen-turns of Gospel preaching, Rev. Dr. Chown and his coadjutors should descend from the pulpit, and on the platform canvass the votes of "the mixed multitude" to petition "the powers that be" to keep their people sober by act of Parliament. It seems that we are to be restrained from breaking the Sabbath by a like act. Shame! We now invite Dr. Chown, or any one else to take up the question of prohibition, and discuss it in the ight of Scripture, and in a Christian pirit, and we car not the result.

There is a divine principle which runs from Genesis to Revelations, viz., not the removal of temptation, but, putting man in a place of safety, This is seen in Eden, the call of Abraham, the flood, Sodom, Israel's deliverance from Egypt. The same principle obtains in Christ's teaching and miracles, Paul's letters, etc., and this we propose to show should anyone take this question up. ALEX McMORRAN.

Moist feet are cold in winter! Sole leather is cellular, and carries street fluid to the foot as the wick car-outsole, in ordinary shoes. Between insole and outsole of the RESILIA shoe is placed the cushion centre-sole of live rubber, through which moisture cannot pass, making it wet-proof, as well as springy and ventilated. Its cross channels permit the air to dry the inner sides of both outsole and insole. It thus prevents the retention of moisture, cracking, hardening, mouldiness, and keeps the feet dry, clean, hardy and healthy.

Work of Counterfeiters. Toronto, Nov. 21 .- G. W. Sinclair, an expert in engraving, connected with the British North America Bank Note Company, of New York, arrived in Toronto and called on Inspector Stark. He inspected the various samples of the counterfeit bills found in the possession of old William Stuart. This money consists of two kinds-one only fairly well executed, calculated to deceive any but a careful observer, and the other, a very dangerous counter-

These came from two sources. Stuart made the inferior lot and someone else the more dangerous brand.
