Bellefonte, Pa., Oct. 26. — Ten bears invaded this town Saturday, and after spreading terror among live stock generally, started through the main streets, routed the Saturday crowds in several stores, and wound up by besieging twenty or more inhabitants in a yard of one of the suburbs. The approach of the bears, which were of the large brown variety, was heralded by a herd of cows that had been driven along by the bears. The lowing of the cattle attracted the attention of farmers, some of whom made a rush for shotguns or whatever weaon was most handy.

In the meantime the bears stopped long enough on the outskirts of Belle-fonte to devour several pigs. The bears then pursued their way leisurely to The bears stopped in front of a millinery store, and with wild shrieks the women attendants fled, leaving the lat-
