Highly interesting and in many ways instructive is the photo-drama of Creation presented by Pastor Russell in the Grand Opera House yesterday afternoon and evening under the auspices of the International Bible Students' Association. Accompanying the picture is a gramophone lecture, which explains the story of creation as it is held by the followers of Pastor Russell. The creation of the world is spread over seven days or epochs of 7,000 years each. In many respects the story corresponds to that advanced by science, beginning with the Nebular hypothesis and ending with the creation of Adamic man The present era is held to be the seventh day or epoch which is drawto a close, when Christ will rule for a thousand years on earth. The Edenic legends of Adam and Eve are interestingly explained. Pre-Adamic man was hermaphroditic, according to Pastor Russell, and this theory has been at least hinted at by a number of scientists. The differentiation of gratitude and profound respect." sexes began when Eve was created out of the rib taken from Interesting Ball Game Staged on Beach Features Outing at Port.

Over seventy-five members of the Manhattan Club invaded Port Stanley Saturday afternoon, on the occasion of the club's annual picnic.

league was formed on the spot. Drinkwater's crew defeated Jeffries London West Stars in the first contest, while McCormick's Pool Sharks gobbled up Macfie's Babies in the second game. The final game was won by the Sharks; the Stars waning towards the end. The committee team challenged the winners, but after the first inning someone in the large crowd of spectators shouted that the dance was on, which abruptly terminated the affair. The club is arranging for another outing to be held during Old Boys' week, when a number of the old members will be home, and a good time is being looked forward to.

The success of the picnic, which was the best in the history of the club, was due to the committee in charge, composed of D. Matchett, C.

SOUL'S DAMNATION

Declares That It Is Fundamentally Divine and Will Find Its Way to God.

WHOLE BIBLE A PARABLE

Literal Interpretation Cannot Be Defined, Says Rector in Evening Sermon.

Rev. R. W. Norwood, preaching last scouted the theory of damnation of "The soul," he said, "is fundamentally divine, and ultimately will find its way to God." Mr. Norwood took as his text the 34th and 35th verses of the xiii chaper of St. Matthew, commencing: "All these things spake Jesus unto the multitude in parables and without parables spake He not unto them . Jesus, he pointed out, did not want o be taken literally. He had spoken in parables because He could only convey to His hearers a conception of divine, unknown things, by the use of metaphor. The preacher added: Whole Bible a Parable. "And the whole Bible is a parable from beginning to end; it is only a figure of speech, an illustration. It is a narrative told in the same way that you tell fairy stories to children. When they grow up they understand and that they are not to be taken the work that they had done. literally.

Bible literally is a child, like a boy or Christ, but we want also to help in the girl who takes a fairy story literally. The minister who thunders from his your life," he said. a man or woman in this church tonight who can defend consistently the literal interpretation of the Bible. Many people, said Mr. Norwood, had an entirely wrong conception of what Jesus had intended to convey in his Sermon by Rev. J. H. Boyd at parable of the wheat and tares. A young minister once had asked how he could hold to his belief that every soul would be saved in the face of this parable. This young minister had taken Jesus' meaning of the word "field" to mean the world, whereas, as a matter of fact, He was likening the field in which the wheat was sown to a human soul. "Jesus did not mean that some souls would be saved and other damned," he continued. "He meant that in every soul good and evil influences were at work, and that the fires of Arthur Fisher, Robert Fisher, George God's discipline would destroy all the The good, which is immortal, bad. will live; nothing can destroy that."

Kingdom the Human Soul. The preacher asserted his belief that Jesus, in referring to the kingdom of God and the kingdom of heaven, was referring to the human soul. The prophets had used the term to convey the ultimate salvation of the whole world, while the Jewish conception of it was Jerusalem as the capital of the world.

Another argument sometimes used nortality, the preacher said, was that records nothing more tragic or hopeless Jesus, in interpreting the parable of than the story of a soul that has founderthe wheat and tares to the disciples, ed on the rocks that abound in the ocean had explained that the field was the of life. world, the wheat those who accepted His doctrine and the tares those who who had great opportunities and wide exrejected Him; and that at the end of the world these would be separated. being shipwrecked that obeys implicitly This argument also, he contended, was based on a misconception arising

The age to which the Master was referring," continued Mr. Norwood, was that which was rapidly drawing to a close, which was to cease when He was rejected by His own people The mistake the average preacher makes is in thinking that this reference to the end of the world was a reference to something a long way in the future. Preached Opening Services in Dundas Centre Methodist Church Sunday.

Rev. A. J. Thomas, the new pastor of Dundas Street Methodist Church, preached yesterday morning and evening the opening sermons of his pastorate. At the morning service, Rev. Mr. Thomas preached from the text, Peter ii, 4 and 5: "To whom, coming as unto a living stone, lisallowed indeed of men, but chosen of God, and precious. Ye also, as lively stones, are built up a spiritual house, an oly priesthood, to offer up spiritual sacrifice, acceptable to God by Jesus Christ." "From vital, living contact with Jesus Christ," said Mr. Thomas, "is built up the soul's position in the kingdom of God. In the text is found the apostle's conception of Jesus Christ as the living stone. If faith in Jesus Christ is shattered, then is the church facing disaster but so long as the church believes that Christ is the Son of God, who gave Himself as the perfect atoning sacrifice for the sin of mankind, then is the church Cronyn Memorial Church, fulfilling its mission. St. Paul said, 'We preach Christ and Him crucified.' This is a fundamental truth. "The text also reveals the apostle's ontention of the Christian. 'Ye also, as living stones, are built up into the spiritual kingdom of God.' The Christian experience is not merely a belief in the great facts of the gospel or the following of the precepts of Christ, but essentially it is a gegeneration of the heart, an indwelling of the life of Christ and the Spirit of God."

"The great question," said the speaker, is "are we, this morning, living stones" Are we in reality repetitions of the Lord Jesus among our fellow men? The ideal for the Christian is humble faith, sincere prayer, and loving Christian service." Rev. Mr. Thomas, at the morning service, said he had heard from more than one former pastor that it was a privilege to labor among the congregation of Dundas Centre Church. He would like to pay tribute to the memory of all the men who had occupied that pulpit in the past. They When they grow up they understand had builded well for God, and with humble the inner meaning of those stories faith he desired to add his labors unto

The pastor opened his sermon by referring to three wrecks, namely, of the steamer Alaska, wrecked on the north coast of Ireland, while seeking to land stowaways; the wreck of the Ocean Mail at Salisbury, England, when the engine jumped the tracks, and lastly, the wreck of the home. He had seen rlots in Belfast, in which the furniture of many houses had been piled in the street and burnt.

"We must realize that we are lost before we can be saved," Mr. John-ston said. "All of us are lost; and when we realize this we can save ourselves and then others. If many of those who are now so overly respectable, would try harder to save their fellows they would be accom-plishing much more than they are," the speaker said. "The world needs all its workers, all the time," the speaker said. "It seems that in business, for example there are so many tricksters, and sharps and crooks, and men living in such a way to make the world blush when it hears of their crimes. Every day some new horror of crime and evil doing is unfolded." In an outline of the history of the Greek and Roman empires and terment will be made in Mount Pleasant

The wickedness is gilded and varnished, but it is just as deadly," declared the speaker.

As an example of true and faithful goodness, Mr. Johnston mentioned Florence Nightingale, the heroine of the Crimean War, who died in 1910. "I was at the services in St. Paul's Cathedral, and the most impressive touch of all was the thin line of old veterans of the war in the Crimea-men who had kissed the shadow of Florence Nightingale on the wall as she passed them.

Strikers March Through Downtown Streets On Saturday Night. Carrying a Union Jack and led by the Musicians' Union, members of the First Hussars and Seventh Regimental bands, the strik-ing carpenters of the city held another parade Saturday night.

On Wednesday the carpenters will begin the sixth week of their strike. Considerable resentment is held by the men over the point blank refusal of the contractors to arbitrate the dispute before E. N. them." was the consensus of opinion expressed by the strikers on Saturday evening.
