A Fin de Cycle Incident.

BY EDNA C. JACKSON

They had been engaged just eleven min tes by the clock, and were in the stage of trying to explain how it happened. "Why do I love you, darling?" the Pro-essor was saying. "Because you are my ideal woman: so pure, so modest, so flowerlike! You have none of the bold ways and language of the so-called fin de siecle girl; no nannish posing of an athlete!"

Renie moaned mentally. "Must I spend my life on a pedestal? I can't-it's too connsed! I must get those antiquated ideas of remodelled to the present century! I h I were not so afraid of him!" She meant confess, "some time," that she loved achting, rowed a shell like a mermaid, amped gates on her trusty steed and went n for atheletics, as she often remarked, "for all she was worth." Thus she drifted deeper and deeper into this good man's confidence

""Pearl! Angel!" Renie drew a long eath as the door closed upon her ardent lover. She clasped her hands in mute protest as she continued: "This pedestal is growing narrower and narrower! I shall certainly tumble, and what a smash there'll be! I'm not ready to be angel; wings would be horribly in the way. Or a pearl! Shut up in a shell with an oyster. Ugh!" She dashed up the stairs and flung a door wide open. "Jim! Oh Jimmy, Jimmy, Jimmy!"
"Here," quietly remarked a boyish voice at her elbow. "Save the roof; never mind the remnants of your lungs. What's the "Hush!" cried Renie, dramatically. "I'm As the Spring Season is now rapidly approaching, doubtless there are many households in the town, county and elsewhere who have decided upon placing in their dwellings new appointments in dying for exercise! I'm yearning for Indian lubs!" She seized a pair from the wall. The lace sleeves fell back from the rounded arms, and the supple form swayed to and fro as she swung the clubs with lightning speed, and it is to those that the old and reliable Furnishing House, formerly J. Besides the usual complete stock always to be found in store at the establishment on Granville Street, a branch has been opened who will give every attention to the requirements of the public. you are a girl that never fibs, Renie," returned Jim, guilelessly, "I would doubt that statement. I really thought he meant 'biz' by the token of all these flowers and visits. I'm glad he don't; for though he is no end of a good fellow, he'd be a mighty uncomfortable sort of a brother-in-law. You've read of those toads that wrap a solid rock around themselves and indulge in little catnaps of five thousand years or so? I imagine that through the transmigration of souls, the Professor might have been one of those toads, and still clings to his antique toad ideas-

What were they plotting? Murder, surely. And whose? Soon she was convinced that her own Professor was to be robbed and murdered on his way home with money to pay the workmen.
