

The consideration of the effects of Nuclear Winter must be taken into account by all policy-makers in all national governments. It must lead us to renew and redouble our efforts to reduce and eliminate all nuclear weapons from the face of the earth.

Nuclear Winter leaves us with profound questions for the future. We must begin to think seriously about our planet. Do we want Earth to be nothing more than a frozen, smouldering chunk of clay going about its galactic way – no longer a shining beacon of blue light in outer space? Or do we want this planet, our home, to continue to glisten with the glories of nature and resound with the vibrancy of its inhabitants?

There is no better country in which to ask these questions than Canada, with its stunning beauty and immeasurable potential. And in Canada, there is no more appropriate place to ponder the future than in Saskatchewan, where the most bountiful glories of this planet are in full evidence.
