

CHAPTER I.

EARLY DAYS OF THE REPUBLIC.

The Close of the Revolution; the States free, but not independent, 18; Why? Articles of Confederation, 19; the Public Debt, 20; Attitude of the States, 21; British Opinion concerning them, 22; Public Dangers, 23; Dissolution of the Republic threatened, 24; Washington's Forebodings; his Proposition for a Convention to reorganize Government, 25; Meeting of the Convention, 26; Proceedings of the Convention to form a National Constitution, 27-32; Ratification of the Constitution; its Opponents, 33; the Establishment of a Nation, 34.

CHAPTER II.

EVENTS IN THE NORTHWESTERN TERRITORY.

Foundations of Government in the Wilderness, 35; the Northwestern Territory; Settlements there, 36-37; the Indians and their British Allies, 38; Councils with the Indians, 39; British Intrigues and Indian Hostilities, 40; Expedition against the Indians in the Ohio Country, 41; Battle on the Maumee, 42; Visit to the Place of Conflict, 43-44; Expeditions of Scott and Wilkinson, 45; Forts built in the Wilderness, 46; St. Clair's Expedition, 47; his Battle with the Indians and Defeat, 48; how Washington received the News of St. Clair's Defeat, 49; his Justice and Generosity; Wayne's Expedition, 50; Interference of British Officials, 51; the British and Indians in armed Alliance, 52; Wayne's Expedition down the Maumee, 53, 54; Defeat of the Indians and treaty of Greenville, 55, 56.

CHAPTER III.

ESTABLISHMENT OF THE NATIONAL GOVERNMENT.

The national Policy and Power indicated, 58; Relations with France and England, 59; revolutionary Movements in France, 60, 61; diplomatic Interchange with Great Britain and Spain, 62; Discourtesy of the British Government; mistaken Views concerning the American Government, 63; Acts in relation to the Public Debt, 64; Hamilton's financial Scheme; Currency, 65; Jefferson's Disappointment and Suspicions, 66; Progress of the French Revolution, 67; the political and religious Views of Jefferson and Adams, 68; Democracy in England, 69; Adams's Scheme of Government; Jefferson's Disgust and ungenerous Suspicions, 70; Paine's Rights of Man; a Newspaper War, 71; the Federal and Republican Parties formed, 72; Sympathy with the French Revolutionists, 73; Lafayette, 74; Monarchy in France overthrown, 75; the National Convention; Execution of the King, 76; Minister from the French Republic, 77; Washington's Proclamation of Neutrality, 78.

CHAPTER IV.

FOREIGN RELATIONS AND DOMESTIC POLITICS.

"Citizen Genet" and his Reception by his political Admirers, 79; his first Interview with Washington; Enthusiasm of the Republicans, 80; the American and the French Revolution compared, 81; Genet defies the American Government, 82; he is recalled; his Successor, 83; British "Rules" and "Orders in Council;" Armed Neutrality, 84; British Impressment of American Seamen, 85; Jay's Treaty with Great Britain, 86; Opposition to the Treaty, 87; the Whisky Insurrection; Democratic Societies, 88; Difficulties with Algiers, 89; an American Navy recommended, 90; Construction of a Navy; Unfriendliness of the French Directory, 91; Struggle between the Republicans and Federalists for political Power; Adams elected President, 92; open Rupture between France and the United States threatened, 93; Madness of Partisans, 94; Aggressions of the French Directory, 95; Preparations for War with France; Action in New York, 96; History of the Songs "Hail, Columbia!" and "Adams and Liberty," 97.

CHAPTER V.

WAR ON THE OCEAN.—POLITICAL STRUGGLES.

Washington appointed to the Command of the Army; Hamilton acting General-in-chief, 98; Envoys extraordinary sent to France, 99; Bonaparte in Power; American War-vessels afloat, 100; British Outrages; Obsequiousness of the American Government, 102; naval Engagements, 103; American Cruisers in the West Indies, 104; Truxtun's Victory; Honors to the Victor, 105; Peace; Divisions in the Federal Party, 106; Intrigues against Adams; Alien and Sedition Laws; Nullification Doctrines put forth, 107; State Supremacy asserted; Jefferson elected President, 108; Mortification of the Federalists; Death of Washington, 109; a public Funeral, 110; Washington's Person and Character, 111.