

WOMAN DIED WHEN SHE SAW ACCIDENT

Mrs. E. Hall Dropped Dead on Main Street, Hamilton, Yesterday.

PRISON FARM WANTED

City Council Will Purchase a Large Block of Land.

HAMILTON, Oct. 10.—(Special.)—A few moments after receiving the advice of a doctor to avoid all excitement, Mrs. E. Hall, 19 years of age, fell prostrate Friday afternoon on Main street and died while being carried to the hospital. Mrs. Hall's death was caused by apoplexy, induced by the sight of a small boy, Freddie Johnson, being thrown from a bicycle and crushed under the wheels of a heavy motor truck.

Seeing the accident as she walked from the public library building, Mrs. Hall stopped forward quickly in an attempt to save the boy. Suddenly she faltered and death followed within a few minutes.

It was thought tonight that Freddie Johnson, who is twelve years of age, would not recover. A front wheel of the heavy truck passed over his abdomen. He was riding on the handbars of a companion's wheel when the accident happened.

Mrs. Hall was the daughter of Mrs. A. Brooks, 414 West Bloor street, Toronto.

For Prison Farm. A civic outfit of approximately 3500 men to establish and operate a joint prison farm and stone quarry is, according to Controller Cooper, the latest scheme of the city council. The plan, which is being seriously considered, has already been worked out in its earlier stages, and the entire question has been referred to Secretary Brennan of the works department for a compromise report.

It was announced at the city hall today that George F. Webb, president of the East End Incline Company, had voted his intention of closing the incline on Saturday night, and leaving it closed until the new one is constructed.

Permanent Field Grounds. At the next meeting of the directors of the Hamilton and District Fair Association, the proposition of securing permanent grounds will be taken up. Secretary John Peart stated today that the matter had been talked of for some time, but that no definite action had been taken as yet.

Nothing in Them. Mayor Allan stated today that he had investigated the charges of alleged negligence in the police department and alleged graft in the works department, made yesterday by Mr. Naylor of the firm of Naylor & Robshaw, contractors, and he stated that there were very little to make a row about.

Meets To Fortune. William Kett of this city, who is said to be an heir to an estate of $180,000,000, will likely accompany his brother, Milton Kett, of Ann Arbor, Mich., to England on Wednesday for the purpose of establishing their connection with the state.

ANGELIC CHURCH LABS. Formed in Brigades Under Military Organization. They Keep Together.

A special meeting of the Rural Deacons of Toronto was held at St. James' Parish House yesterday to hear an address by Rev. W. M. Gee (retired-colonel commandant), chief staff of the army, and founder of the Church Lads' Brigade, headquarters at Church Home, London, W.C. Rev. E. C. O'Leary, rural dean, presided.

In introducing the subject, Col. Gee mentioned that he had been in Canada last year to organize ex-members of the British army into "Old Comrades" lodges in different centres, and to see if it would be possible to extend the brigade work here. The visit had been so successful that he was paying a second visit this year. From close observation last year, he was convinced that the brigade work here was with a good result, as it had been for twenty-two years all over the empire. There were already 150 lodges in Canada, and one in Toronto itself, at Trinity East, which had been organized for some five years.

He went on to explain that the C. L. B. is not a religious organization, but a social one of the kind, as it was for big lads, from 18 to 25 years of age, who were left school, and who were in the streets, and who were the most valuable of the empire, and the bishop and clergy were supreme, and the real bond of union was the church.

Also it was worked on strictly military lines, its organization and officers being the same as in the army.

COSTUMES OF OLD FULLY EXPLAINED

Mrs. Chas. H. Ashdown Lectured to Teachers at Convocation Hall.

LIVING MODELS THERE

"Dress of Our Ancestors" Seen and Described in Detail.

Ladies fair and knights of "The Olden Convocation" last evening, when Mrs. Charles H. Ashdown of England, Nineteen Centuries, gave her charming lecture on "The Dress of Our Ancestors."

The address was illustrated thru the courtesy of volunteers, who appeared in costumes and headgear of the various Elizabethan periods. Mrs. Ashdown was able to produce three exact facsimiles of costumes from brasses, engravings, manuscripts and missals.

Rich and picturesque were some of her notes to the development from the ladies were their hair covered, except in the privacy of their homes, until the time when this "crowning ornament of woman" gradually became part of her outward adornment.

The early Saxon lady wore a long red brocade and blue velvet tunic enveloped in a colored veil something after the manner of the now obsolete "cloud" of Canadian winters. The tunic on the sword side became somewhat raised.

The Phrygian cap of the men—a sort of hood with a little pocket at the top and the head-rail of the women were distinctive of this period.

Early Law Costume. Early law costume, red tunic and blue breeches and black shoes like the knight of ship attached to a circular band about the head. The many varieties of the horned style, which stood out on either side like great horns three or more feet across, were marvelous as well as the extremes to which fashion like the early Saxon dress, developed with its network of wire and jewels and the long cornucopia of hair, with curls like wild standing out three feet from the head of the wearer, were all most interesting and new to the audience.

Thanks for Audience. Professor Hutton, who introduced the lecture to the teachers of Toronto, who formed the greater part of the audience, thanked her for the pleasure and profit of her entertainment.

Mrs. Ashdown spoke under the auspices of the English and American Society, and later to tour the west.

It is probably the first time that anything along the line of Mrs. Ashdown's work has been so correctly and authoritatively shown here, and as an illumination of the past, the lecture has great historic value.

Liberal Manifesto.

BELFAST, Oct. 10.—The Ulster Liberal Association issued a manifesto today announcing that the Ulster Liberals would disregard the authority of the proposed provincial government and claim the protection of the forces of the empire in defence of their liberties, "which would be grossly imperilled by the success of the Anarchist movement led by Sir Edward Carson."

NEFARIOUS BILL WILL RUIN ERIN

Rev. Wm. Maguire Expresses the Strong Ulster Feeling Against Home Rule.

A BELFAST ORANGEMAN

He Calls on Canada to Aid in Defeating Ecclesiastical Purposes.

"The idea of the Nationalist party in Ireland in advocating the home rule bill is to make Ireland a Roman Catholic country, and the men of Ulster are prepared to give their lives rather than allow this to come to pass," said Rev. William Maguire of Belfast, Ireland, before a very large audience in Victoria Hall last night.

Having expressed himself as opposed to the industries of the north preaching politics from their pulpits, he said that if the question of home rule in Ireland were a religious question, a political one, Rev. William Maguire would not be on the platform speaking about it. It was however, in his opinion, a religious question of vital importance to the country and to Protestantism, and as such he had been delegated by the Ulster Unionist Council of which he is a member, to lay it before the people of Canada in its true light.

"The people whom I represent are the people who have tilled the soil, who have shed their blood and who have built up the industries of the north of Ireland, and these same people are prepared to fight to the right to continue to live under the British flag."

"Ireland does not need home rule, but we have to deal with an ecclesiastical organization that is the most aggressive and most dominating under heaven."

"Ireland was never more prosperous than she is at the present time, and I hold that the advocacy of the home rule bill is the maddest act perpetrated in the last half century, and it will be a bad thing for England if she lets Ireland slip from under her governing power. The nefarious home rule bill, if passed, will ruin the country."

Rev. Mr. Maguire closed his address with an appeal to the people of Canada for help in this crisis, not only for the cause of Ulster but also for the Belfast Mission, with which he is connected.

Mayor Hocken moved a resolution expressing to the Unionists the hearty support of the people of Toronto in their fight against the home rule bill, and promising them every possible assistance. Sir John Willison, Hon. Thomas Crawford and Fred Dane also spoke.

COMB SAGE TEA IN HAIR TO DARKEN IT

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Keep Her Locks Dark, Glossy, Thick.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's treatment, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product called "Wyneth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," for 50 cents a bottle. It is very popular, because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it, and draw this thru your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyneth's Sage and Sulphur is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive; besides, prevents dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair. EMPEROR WILLIAM'S PRIVATE LIBRARY. Collection is Much Smaller Than People in General Suppose. The private library of the German Emperor, which will form one of the principal exhibits of the book trade to be held in Letonia next year, is said to be much smaller than is generally supposed. According to The Kreuz-Zeitung, it consists of only 6,000 volumes, two-thirds of the total number having been acquired during the last twenty-five years of Emperor William's reign. When Emperor William ascended the throne he inherited a private library of about 3,000 volumes. Characteristically he commenced by eliminating nearly one-half of them as being books of no present practical value. The catalog of the emperor's private books is divided into twelve carefully arranged categories. The first consists of encyclopedias and dictionaries, the second of books on jurisprudence, the third, political economy and social sciences; the fourth, colonial; the fifth, archeology and mythology; the sixth, universal history; the seventh, history of the Hohenzollerns; the eighth, biographies, memoirs, personal recollections and correspondence; the ninth, military science; the tenth, geography and ethnography, while the
