To-day he is a perfect man, which he had not been for the three years on account of the drink habit. TO HAVE A MERITORIOUS ORDER OF HOME HELPERS

National Council of Women Decide on Important Step to Solve Servant Girl Question.

The Victoria Day meeting of the National Council of Women began with the singing of the National Anthem by the delegates. Miss Riddell then read the minutes of the meetings on Saturday, with many expressions of regard for the excellent work of the secretary.

The resolution of the Charlestown Local Council regarding the preparation of a handbook concerning the work of Canadian women, for the St. Louis Exposition, similar to the one issued at Paris, was introduced by Mrs. Macready. She explained the necessity for such a work being brought up to date, so that visitors to the Exposition would see that Canada was not behind other nations in any department.

The resolution was referred to the Executive Committee, on motion of Miss Derrick and Mrs. Ellis.

The next business was the report of the Committee on the Aged and Infirm Poor. Mrs. Cummings read this on account of the absence of Lady Taylor. The question of the confinement of insane people and paupers in jails was dealt with vigorously, and the act of the government in compelling County Councils to erect poor houses, strongly commended. It was recommended that an amendment to the Criminal Code should be urged, with the object of striking out the two-year residence clause regarding the reception of paupers into houses of refuge. The report was adopted.

The Servant Girl Question. Miss Fitzgibbon then introduced the most exciting subject of the day, in a resolution proposed by Toronto Local Council to the effect that the National Council should consider the advisability of establishing an Honorable Society for the purpose of improving the present condition of domestic servants.

Miss Fitzgibbon went into the matter fully, showing that the preference given by the factory and shop work was on account of the odium brought on by the words "domestic service." If a girl has a position as a stenographer or clerk, she moves in a society which a servant girl cannot reach because her own equals will not receive her. The girls are not given any freedom by many mistresses, but they prefer less money with their evenings and Sundays free. The Toronto Council had referred the matter to a special committee, consisting of Messrs. Massey-Treble, Torrington, Joy, H. S. Strathy, and Miss Fitzgibbon, and they are now reporting on the matter.

The committee has established under the following regulations: It must be un denominational; the applicants must be of good health and character; undergo a course of training for one month, and agree to remain one year as a club during their leisure hours. It was estimated that there would be 6000 a year for three years, which would be raised in shares of $10 each.

The proposition brought out a spirited discussion. Mrs. James L. Hughes said the people would look with derision on such a name. She characterized the idea as artless and useless industry. Mrs. Calder (Hamilton) thought that the matter should be settled on a business basis. The servants should go to work just as men do, and quit at 4 o'clock for the night. But Mrs. Code (Kingston) said that the work would not be complete at 4 o'clock, and Mrs. Stinson's opinion was that the proper training home is the parental home. Miss Merrick said the resolution would be a great deal better than the one proposed by the committee for one year free of charge for the purpose of training school, and received many plaudits for her generous offer.

Mrs. Saunders (Hamilton) objected to using the word "honorable," and moved an amendment striking it out, which was unanimously carried.

The vote on the resolution was then taken, and resulted in the report being adopted by a vote of 65 to 15.

After-noon Diversions.

In the afternoon the Council divided into parties. Mrs. Code conducted some of the ladies on a visit to the Mercer Reformatory, while the other party visited the University College with Miss Riddell as guide. Afterwards they inspected the Old Folks Home on University-avenue on the invitation of Mrs. Crenshaw, supported by Mrs. Massey-Treble. There was also an invitation to visit Trinity College at 4 p.m., where the provost had a cricket match for their amusement, and afterwards had tea served on the lawn. The visitors then spent the evening at the Hotel, and many of the delegates last night attended the concert at Massey Hall.

To-day's Program.

There will be a busy time to-day. The election of officers takes place, and other important business. After luncheon the ladies will visit the Lillian Massey School of Domestic Science on the invitation of Mrs. Massey-Treble. In the evening the work of Historical Societies will be discussed, and the conference for 1903 closed.

Slater Shoe Advertising

Shoes of Beauty

A shoe which looms large in the public eye must combine in it positive elements of price value, of durability, comfort and beauty. The "Slater Shoe" because it makes strenuous claims on public attention must not only feel easy when worn, it must not only wear well, but it must look well,—all advertised claims are unconsciously and critically weighed by the first impression conveyed to the mind through the eye in its initial inspection of the shoe.

So the "Slater Shoe" with its high prestige obtained by years of advertising must not only fulfill the wearer's expectations of fit, shape retention and wear, but its beauty must meet with the instantaneous approval of the wearer's eye in its most critical moment, viz: the first glance, and the succeeding closer scrutiny.

And the makers of the "Slater Shoe" realizing this fact have made "Slater Shoes" not only foot houses of ease internally, but foot palaces of beauty externally.

SAYS CATHOLIC FASTING MAKES LEPROSY SPREAD

Prominent Surgeon's Investigations in India Lead to Somewhat Startling Conclusions.

London, May 25.—Jonathan Hutchinson, the well-known surgeon, and former president of the Royal College of Surgeons, who recently returned from a tour of investigation in India, as to the cause and prevention of leprosy, has written a letter to The Times on the subject of fish-eating as a cause of the disease.

He gives the opinion that the Catholic fast days are responsible for the spread of leprosy, and that wherever there is a risk of obtaining unseasonable food, the use of fish on fast days ought to be forbidden.

"Wherever Catholic missions are successful," says Dr. Hutchinson, "leprosy increases. My calculation is that the risk to a Catholic convert is about one in a hundred who remains in the Hindu faith."

BILL BOARD SPACE COMES HIGH

But the Advance Men Who Get There First Gets All the Good Ones. Hot rivalry between two big circus companies is just at present entertaining Toronto and all of Ontario. This is rather a unique event, since competition between the big shows is rendered almost impossible by the combination of interests. Usually the territory of Canada and the States is divided equally, and the circus people respect the rights of each other, so that their dates never conflict and never come nearer than two or three months of each other.

But this time the wires got crossed, and the two big circuses that will come close together in Toronto within a fortnight are fighting for four weeks from town to town over Ontario. This does not mean that the small boys will have less trouble getting in, or that the price of admission will be reduced. It does mean, however, that the operating expenses of the two big combinations, that neither can expect their tents at the performance for a month. These two circus outfits cross into Canada at the Falls from Ohio and Indiana and from the opening of the season have been fighting each other. Their advertising gangs struck Toronto Sunday night, each is trying to buy up all the dead walls and available space for sticking their high colored signs in Toronto. What is true of the competition here will be true of every town where a performance is made in Canada.

Let's See Fire Paper. For instance, the fight at Toledo was fierce that each side spent more money for advertising than usual. One side alone put 800 more big six inch signs announcing the only show on earth, and the usual billboards which catch the credulous crowd. Coming into Canada all the red fire paper signs, "see the big colored pictures" known in the vernacular of the sawdust ring, had to be left on the other side. The customers' offers to buy more than the wealthy circus companies can stand. Therefore, a vast quantity of this printing matter is done among the Canadian printing offices. Few of these are equipped for this kind of picture work, and the big circuses are experiencing trouble in securing the quantity of paper required.

Each show has gangs of six men each out ahead of the show, getting the bills up. Each has his work systematized perfectly. While one gang is setting up a town, others are cutting into the country and get their colors up on farmers' barns and outhouses with the aid of a few complimentary tickets.

One of the gangs has bought up so much space in Toronto that the opposition is trying to secure the street railway company's consent to the location of hundreds of flyers from the poles and wires of the company. The police will interfere if the rivalry reaches this stage, as the big colored pictures are down and broken teams. This has been resorted to, however, in Hamilton, where the circus is because of the enterprise of one of the other side in buying up everything in sight ahead of the other.

Board Space Costs Money. This is a tip for those in Toronto and the Canadian towns where these two circuses are competing together. Sports will bring three times the usual market price, and the gangs have instructions to sell their seats at whatever price they can get. It becomes a serious matter to the circus that can't find any place to set up around a town. The available space is invariably limited and the gang that fails to get its bill up in time, is left with the dead walls of a stopping point will get into serious trouble when the manager gets on to the fact.

Walter Murphy, manager of one of the rival gangs which reached Toronto Sunday night, is denouncing the scarcity of available room left for his paper on the dead walls. Talking with The World representative, he observed: "Canadian towns are not ready for the tent shows as well as hall shows (regular theatrical companies) as good regular shows are in this country, and are not liberal spirited. Money is plentiful everywhere this season. Our show carries a capacity of some seven thousand. That means we can seat 14,000 each town we make for the regular performance, and taking into consideration the two concerts and side show affairs, you see we can easily run this to 25,000 faces. This means easily $10,000. Not a day this season thus far have we failed to fill our big tent. Our show is a pile of money in free tickets, and that's easy for the circus. The only trouble is that the competition is not keen in the circuit here they are mistaken. Just at present it is costing us two or three dollars a day to get a place to set up. I believe the expense of each side is $200 daily this season. Why? Oh, somebody's blunder. The thing is to get the territory mapped out and keep each fellow to himself. But this one here is a bit mixed, but we are getting the coin and don't care. How do we know the dates of the other fellow? The thing is to get the territory mapped out. The insurgents seized the village of Smerdash on the Lake of Presba, and Turkish soldiers surrounded the place. They fought for thirty hours. 200,000 MEN NOW ON STRIKE. Extensive Additions Made Yesterday to Gotham's Idle Workmen.

New York, May 25.—It is estimated that there are close on to two hundred thousands of men out of work in New York, as a result of strikes and the lock-out by material men and contractors. On Saturday the number of men out of work was upwards of 170,000 and to these were added to-day 100,000 men locked out by the material men of Brooklyn, and another 10,000 forced to lay down their tools for the want of material which is to work. Work on most of the big buildings and in the saw mills and brickyards is practically at a stand still.

TALBOT CENTENNIAL.

St. Thomas, May 25.—The concluding day of the Talbot Centennial celebration opened with Queen's weather and, at an early hour, people began to arrive by motor and train, so that, when the military parade started, the streets were thronged. The march was led by the Royal Grenadier Guards, followed by the 24th Regiment of King's Own Rifles, the local Collegiate Institute Cadets, the 20th Regiment of the 1st Canadian Infantry, and the 1st Canadian Mounted Rifles. The parade was a grand one, and was witnessed by thousands of spectators.

The soldiers, in their parade, the principal streets, marched to the new Armouries, which were formally opened, after which the soldiers were dismissed for dinner at 2 o'clock p.m. A feu de joie was fired, and a march past, which was very impressive, was given by the Grenadiers were in progress during the afternoon.
