Screen's Latest Sensation Will Be Presented in London at the Majestic Theatre Soon.

In the Near Future "Sporting Life," the Greatest Sensation of the Screen, Will Be Shown at the Majestic Theatre.

It abounds with thrills and tremendous climaxes, keeping interest and excitement at the highest pitch from beginning to end.

The prize fight scenes and the Derby race are said to be the most thrilling and realistic of their kind ever filmed.

The starring is lavish and elaborate. The reproduction of the famous London National Sporting Club is exact in detail.

The cast is notable, including Ralph Graves, Warner Richmond, Charles Kitty, De Carteret is ruined.

Dainty Vivian Martin, one of the most charming of the long list of Paramount stars, scored another personal triumph when her new photoplay, "Mirandy Smiles," was shown at the Majestic Theatre yesterday. Presented to her admirers in the garb of a scrub-lady in a little western town, Miss Martin proved herself as delightful and her soap-suds as she was charming in her recent picture success, "Her Country First." Miss Martin is essentially an artist and each portrayal she attempts reveals her in a new and more charming light to her hosts of admirers.

In this photoplay Miss Martin is seen as a scrublady employed in an opera house in a middle western town, and her whimsical characterization, coupled with the charm of a most excellent story, makes this picture one of the best in which Miss Martin has been seen in many a day. Miss Martin is brilliantly supported, while the photography is unusually fine.

Ethel Clayton in "Women's Weapons," Showing at the Majestic on Monday and Tuesday. The weapons by which Ethel Clayton wins her husband back in "Women's Weapons," the new Paramount picture in which she is starred, which is to be shown at the Majestic on Monday and Tuesday are not the same as those employed to win her screen following, and yet in a sense they are the same. They are after all, the weapons with which Eros attacks his victims; the lure of sweetness, womanly charm.

These may be exerted in several ways. Miss Clayton uses them to attain the admiring regard of her screen patrons and employs in addition the gift of the gods—her splendid artistry. In the picture she uses the weapons which convince her straying spouse, all caught in the web of an intellectual vampire, that a sincere, true woman is worth a score of soul-mating, simulating leeches, the poison, the maidens of the purple moments.

Miss Clayton is exquisite in this role of the true wife, while Vera Dorla does wonderful work as the siren, Elliott Dexter is the husband, and as usual is debonair, suave and gently convincing. Robert Vignola, directed the photoplay.

Wallace Reid in "Too Many Millions," His Best Photoplay at the Majestic Christmas Day and Thursday. Wallace Reid has the part to which he is best suited in his latest Paramount picture, "Too Many Millions," which will be shown at the Majestic Theatre on Christmas Day and next Thursday. As Walsingham Van Dorn, he is first shown as a poor young man trying to make a living selling books. Then comes a bolt from the blue. Two wealthy skintight uncles of his are suddenly killed in a motor accident and Walsingham finds himself the possessor of a cool forty million dollars by the terms of their wills.

The cool forty millions, however, make things warm for Walsingham. In the first place a beautiful young woman, Miss Desiree Lane, shows up and tells him that two millions of the money belongs to her, that his uncles robbed her father of it and caused his death. The next thing to happen is the discovery that Van Dorn's confidential agent, Wilkins, has fled with the forty millions.

Taking the girl, Van Dorn goes in pursuit of him in a motor car. They stop for gasoline and while they are at a garage officers take the car away from them. He and Desiree go to a nearby inn for the night, and at dawn the inn catches fire and they barely escape with their lives. Then Van Dorn and Desiree marry and the bridegroom takes a job in the garage to pay for the gasoline.

They like the life so well that they live on in the little village quite happily for two years with no money except what Van Dorn earns. Then Wilkins unexpectedly appears and offers to return the forty millions of money, but they hesitate to take it. What would you have done?

Charles Ray in "The Law of the North," Appearing at the Majestic Theatre on Friday and Saturday. Charles Ray, a popular screen idol, will appear at the Majestic Theatre on Friday and Saturday next in "The Law of the North." The story runs as follows: In a trading post on the "top of the world," Alain de Montcalm, son of the Commandante, and known among the traders and trappers as "The English," lives with his father and sister, Virginia, a girl of 18 years. The second in command of the post is Chester Le Noir, a scoundrel who covets Virginia. When Alain goes to a neighboring post, Le Noir is accused by Theres, an Indian, of having wronged his daughter. Le Noir is accused by Theres, an Indian, of having wronged his daughter. Le Noir is accused by Theres, an Indian, of having wronged his daughter.
