permit work in some factories where there are ignorant Frenchmen.
The chairman: What about ignorant Irishmen?
Witness: Oh, they're all right. The oach could be done without any learned man. There should be no fishing in harbors; if fishing were allowed on the coast, it would be better and save the oach and spawning lobsters. Forty per cent. of the lobsters caught are under 9 inches; we boil them at 7 inches up wards. We go to 8 inch oach. I never saw a 5 inch lobster brought ashore. totally wrecked at 10 o'clock Sunday morning. The tugboat Light, with its crew and passengers perished within a short distance of land. A large quantity of wreck, including trunks and other material was driven ashore and at dark on Monday night thirty-four bodies had been recovered from the surf by the life-boat crew at High Head Station. One body was that of a woman.

From reports that came by wire, mail and messenger to the Associated Press from New England points up to 10 o'clock on Tuesday forenoon it was difficult even to estimate the total loss of life and shipping along that coast, as the result of the recent storm.

The list of disasters seems to grow every hour, and from despatches it appears that at least thirty schooners have been wrecked at different points from Eastport, Maine, to New Haven, Conn.

Eighty-six schooners have been driven ashore, fourteen barges loaded or empty are aground, beside a large number of smaller craft.

This list does not include thirty vessels either wholly or partially wrecked in Boston harbor, nor half a dozen or more craft which are reported missing, the big Wilson Line freighter, Erie, ashore on Spectacle Island in Boston harbor; the steamer John J. Hill, which was at Chatham with an oil cargo early in October and is now ashore at Atlantic City; the Merchants and Miners transportation steamer, Fairfax on Sow and Pig ledge, off Cuttyhunk, nor the small steamer George A. Chaffee, foundered at Rockport, Mass.

When these are added the aggregate list exceeds 170 craft.

It is known that about forty persons perished in and about Boston harbor. Reports from other places in some cases state that the crews of these or some vessels escaped. Many, however, state that the crews are unknown. Many survivors have turned up at life-saving stations and coming vessels have brought a few sailors from wrecks. Perhaps scores would cover those of whom nothing is known.

Latest advices indicate that the lives lost will aggregate more than two hundred.

Everything possible is being done in and about Boston to save the shipping that has met with disaster and to render as comfortable as possible all the survivors.

Tragic Notes.

Last week, the sisters of the Hotel Dieu entered their newly erected hospital. This building occupies the site of which it forms the north wing. The inside building is furnished with hot water and other conveniences.

One part of the hospital is occupied by the orphans, who find here an asylum, where they receive a good moral education.

The other part is reserved for patients who receive special medical treatment. There are about fifty rooms, and two spacious wards, one for men, the other for women.

Dr. Smith, the physician of the lazaretto, will visit the hospital every day. The chancellor of the convent will also give his services to those needing him.

The saw-mills are now closed on account of the season being so advanced. Hon. J. B. Snowball, the proprietor of one of those mills, has erected a large store, which can receive many tons of lumber.

Smelts abound in our rivers and a great quantity has already been taken. This is good news for the fishermen, because it is thought that smelts will be high this season.

The bi-monthly subscription given by Mr. Foster, are held regularly. A great number of our young folks attend those meetings and consider it a good pastime.

The Fisheries of Fish Depots, Marvell & Hervey's Business.

CHATHAM, Nov. 18.—(White Press) W. V. Booth, of the Chicago Fish Trust, will not admit that the company that he is at the head of, in any sense of the word a combination, yet he said to a Journal representative yesterday that he and his associates are buying up all the fishing and packing houses that they can. So far the trust has not made much headway in the state of Wisconsin.

How proceeding, negotiations are now proceeding to acquire all the packing houses and fish establishments in Milwaukee and other fishing centers of the state. Mr. Booth made no bones of stating this fact when he did there was a light in his eyes which seemed to say, "We are on the right side of the great already."

After a formal meeting the newspaper man asked Mr. Booth:

"Who are the fish merchants associated with the trust in the state of Wisconsin?"

"That is where you make a mistake," said the Chicago millionaire. "The A. Booth Co. has not formed a trust in Wisconsin, but the company of which I am president has been buying out a great many businesses in many parts of the country. It would be practically impossible to form a fish trust, however, because every man who is so disposed can go to the lakes or to the sea and fish and sell the product of his labors to the best advantage."

"Well, Mr. Booth," asked the reporter, "what object has the Booth Packing Company in gathering in all the great fish chases in the country and why is it still on the lookout for more?"

"For the last four years the A. Booth Company saw the necessity of reducing expenses in the cost of catching fish and placing them on the markets in the various parts of the country," said Mr. Booth, "and the only way this could be done was by controlling the output to a greater or less extent and applying the markets. Before the new company was formed four months ago the Booth Packing Company had thirty or forty branch houses in various parts of the country. At that time there was no talk as to a trust, yet we operated as many houses as I have indicated."

"The time was ripe just prior to four months ago to buy out other fish establishments and what we did then was merely to extend the ramifications of our business. In other words it became larger by the incorporation of new branch houses."

"Some inaccuracies have been published in reference to the A. Booth Packing Company which you can correct," said Mr. Booth. "First it was stated that $2,600,000 of the $5,000,000 of stock was in the treasury and was being held for foreign investors. This statement is absolutely false. Not a dollar of the company's stock will be held by any foreigner and I may say that no such amount as was stated by the Chicago papers would be held in reserve. The A. Booth Packing Company is capitalized at $5,000,000 and every cent of the amount has been subscribed and paid in. This is the long and short of the whole matter as far as it refers to the finances. What the Chicago papers meant to say, but didn't, was that $2,600,000 of the stock is preferred and the balance is common stock. It is not likely that A. Booth Packing Company would, under any circumstances, hold a large block of stock or that it would capitalize on a $5,000,000 basis and only pay a little more than half in. That proposition is absurd and is contrary to fact."

Mr. Booth was very emphatic all the way through his conversation that the company of which he is the head in no way to be regarded as a trust. He said, however, that the A. Booth Packing Company had already absorbed some fish and fisheries and that the house controlled some of the New York business places. While he was evasive and somewhat non-committal in relation to the question whether the company would endeavor to absolutely control the fish and fisheries business, yet it could be seen by the gentleman's manner, that he had his eyes open all the time to the good things which would be girt to the mill even if they were the masters or watered stock as fishermen.

When asked how many houses throughout the country the company controlled, Mr. Booth said that he didn't know.

"Do you control twice as many as you did before the new company was formed?" "Maybe so," he replied. There a laugh overtook his face.

Mr. Booth also said that one of the reasons why the A. Booth Packing Company bought up the fish houses in the country was to distribute the fish that all the markets would be adequately supplied. Heretofore this has not been the case. One market would receive twice as much as it would sell, while another would not get half enough.

The Corbett-Sharkey Fight.
New York, Nov. 23.—The big money bet on Corbett and Sharkey was on before the crowd that gathered on the streets for the fight on when Corbett and Sharkey stepped over the ropes, but it was light in volume, and except for a sudden spasm of enthusiasm, that for a moment caused the Sharkey partisans to grab at odds of 100 to 20 on Sharkey, which was reduced to 60 to 20 when Corbett's banker, Marcell Meyer, and before the boxers entered the ring bet $250 to $300 more. A bet of $1,000 to $300 was registered between "Dutch" Hansen and John Cahill, Hansen taking Corbett.

The fight was one of the most remarkable contests ever seen in New York. From the beginning Sharkey was the aggressor. He was rushing Corbett and trying to force matters. He landed the first blow struck in the right side of Corbett's head. The punch was very hard, but Corbett was not hurt. The fight was a close one, but Corbett was the winner.

agrees of salmon into rivers by traps or otherwise, is strictly forbidden. Heavy fines are to be inflicted equal to twice the amount of the tax or license fee, and confiscation of catch and fishing gear, for fishing without license. These new Russian regulations are more stringent than any enacted on the Pacific coast of Canada, but it is clear that Russia is wared by the example of the United States not to allow the destruction of her great Siberian salmon fisheries.

"Anti-Chair-Warming Society of Marriageable Maidens" Determined to Waste no more Winters.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Oct. 24.—It is quite certain that many more suggestions to marry, matchless maidens, married on meeting in this city this winter. Seven charming young women met at Miss Mabel Carver's home on Stamford avenue a few evenings ago, and formed an association which will be called "The Anti-Chair-Warming Society of Marriageable Maidens." This society was originated in a jocosely spirit, but it was soon realized that its objects are almost solemn, and marriageable maidens are throwing now to be members of it.

In Bridgeport, as elsewhere, are many young men, well bred and agreeable enough, who vainly think their attentions directed the young women to whom they are addressed. When the evenings grow long each of these young men chooses a girl whom he thinks most susceptible to his attentions, and to her he devotes himself during the winter. He takes supper at her house, he is polite to her sister as to herself, if he can play the piano he entertains her with the newest compositions, he regularly occupies the most comfortable chair in the parlor until 10.30 p.m., when, with the most frigid propriety, he takes his leave.

But he never so much as hints at love. The winter passes and at its wane no engagement is declared the fair hand of the young woman whom he thinks he has honored. To be sure, he has taken her sleighing and sent her a box or two of bonnets. But what is a cold sleigh ride or sugar-coated sweets to a young woman who is willing to marry a worthy man?

The young man just described here come to be known as "chair warmers." The society formed the other evening will protect its members against these "chair warmers."

Any young man who repeatedly visits one of these "matchless maidens" must declare his serious intentions to her mamma or keep away from her house. The members will no longer waste their time, they are to be put off with sleigh drives and sugar plums; only young men who have proposed and been accepted will be welcome at their supper tables; there is to be no more playing on pianos and their feelings.

Miss Martha Guinan is a charter member of the new society. Miss Guinan, a beautiful young woman, said as Miss Corbett's house, that for four winters she had entertained as many young men, who purposely, and yet without a purpose monopolized her evenings.

"Mamma warned me, soon after each one came to visit me that I was wasting my time," said Miss Guinan. "I thought mamma was too well to anxious. But now I know she was right."

If officers of the society have been elected no member will admit it. Indeed, the society's very existence is supposed to be a secret.

Your Rheumatism.
PAIN'S CELERY COMPOUND
The only Medicine That Works Complete and Permanent Cures.

The ablest and best men and women of our country—doctors, clergymen, lawyers, bankers, merchants and literary women—highly praise and recommend Paine's Celery Compound as a sure cure for rheumatism and eczema.

Remember well that disordered nerves, faint digestion, and a slow and incomplete nutrition of the body invite rheumatism, just as they do nervous debility and neuralgia.

There is no surer test for rheumatism than a run-down, nervous condition. You cannot cure rheumatism by outward applications. The disease is due to internal troubles and must be constitutionally attacked and got rid of.

Paine's Celery Compound gives a healthy tone to the stomach, increases the appetite, and regulates the bowels, liver and kidneys, so that they easily throw off poisonous matters that the sluggish system has allowed to lodge in the blood, causing rheumatism and like disorders.

Bear in mind that rheumatism neglected means increased sufferings and eventual death. Be wise while you have a fair measure of strength left. Use Paine's Celery Compound and banish an enemy that has no mercy when it obtains the mastery. It solely remains with you to determine whether you will be a danger or remain in misery and wretchedness.
