WELSFORD

Welsford, June 14—Private E. C. Armstrong writes happliy from England. At the time of writing he had just returned from six days holiday which he spent in Scotland, visiting amongst other places, Edinburgh, Glasgow, Lochs Katrine and Lomond. Whilst in London he writes of meeting many Canadians amongst whom were Miss Gertrude Harding, and Mr. and Mrs. George Harding. He writes interestingly of Kent which he calls the "Garden of England"; on Easter Sunday he attended Divine Service at Canterbury Cathedral, the service he says was such he should never forget, and the singing simply grand. He also had attended services at St. Paul's Cathedral and Westminster Abbey. He writes that he was well and wished to be remembered to all his old friends. Fred Godfrey of Welsford, whilst working at the McDonald Saw Mill, last Friday morning, was overcome by a slight seizure of paralysis. He was however able to walk the short distance home, one of his sides seemed quite numb and his speech was affected, but now he is as well as ever and able to get around again.

The semi-annual meeting of the local lodges of the L. O. L. Association, took place at Olinville on Wednesday twening last, Brother Gregg who is in the near future leaving the district, was presented by the members of the S. of T. Lodge, No. 426 at the parsonage with a fountain pen. The proceeds of the concert got up under the auspices of the Concert got up

The friends of Bandsman Frank Sentell of the 145th Battalion, who was seriously injured in an automobile accident near Riverside, will be glad to learn that he is slightly improved.

Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rice and family, who have been for a few weeks the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ebbin Calder, departed for their home at Bar Harbor, Me., on Wednesday.

The recent gift of Mrs. Cockeran, grand-daughter of the late Admiral Owen, England, to St. Timothy's church comprises a set of three pleces of cloth, each about three yards, beau tifully embroidered, (a communion as et), also a chalice cloth embroidered with gold and a ceborium.

1—To provide (leather)) windproof waistcoats for soldiers and sailors for a few pence.

2—To employ on useful work women distressed through the war, and unable to go into workrooms.

3—To cutilize for these purposes, in the interest of national economy, material hitherto thrown away.

One of the greatest hardships of a winter campaign is the suffering caused by ley winds on sea and land. Leather is the only effective protection; but generally beyond the means of those who need it so sorely.

The Glove and Waistcoat Fund of 75 Chancery Lane, London, W. C., England, has solved the difficulty of supplying leather coats by utilizing waste soft leather of every possible with the case of ladies' worn-out cloaks. The fur coats are in great demand by mine sweepers, as also the overall gloves made from the very small pleces of fur. These materials are appliqued by machine on to a brown linenette foundation, making an actually windproof becaute with the sale of the waist coats 2.6—5 (in bulk 16), and seamen's overall gloves 1.6 (in bulk 6d.), the work is now self-supporting. The small profit on those sold singly covers the cost of the necessary paid assistance, rent, printing, carriage, postage, etc.

The work has been carried on through two winter seasons. The waistcoats are in such demand by officers, and men allike, at the front or on the North Sea, that the committee beg most earnestly for supplies of gloves, &c., to enable them to "carry on."

Contributors of gloves &c., will know that their sitk man, work for a we that gloves, &c., to enable them to "carry on."

Contributors of gloves &c., will know that their gifts mean work for a woman and warmth for a man.

They would be glad to hear from any who are interested, and would indefine the collecting centres.

Gloves and leather and waste fur in endless quantities are needed. That the men appreciate the coats is proved by the fact that all are very willing to pay the small price asked.

As regards the waste from the waiscoats: The finger tips are converted into glue, &c. The glove buttons are sewn on to cards by children and sold. The washleather cuttings are strung in household rubbers. The large linette cuttings are sewn into dust sheets.
