GOV. GARCELON AND THE MAINE LAW.

BY HON. NEAL DOW.

Gov. Garcelon of Maine, has recently been interviewed in Atlanta, Georgia, on the effect of prohibition in that State, and the Constitution of Atlanta. contains more than a column of what purports to be a report of the Governor's opinions. The anti-prohibition press of the country catches up this new wide circulation. This circumstance only renders it important to notice it and correct its gross misstatements.

It would be difficult to conceive anything more false and foolish than this pretended statement is of the effect of the law in Maine. I assume that the governor is misrepresented, because there is not a single statement in the report true in the sense in which it is intended to be understood. To follow the article of the Constitution in detail would require three, or four pages of your paper, and I content myself, therefore, with noticing briefly each of its | meeting. The audience was also enter points.

The accuracy of the reporter may be fairly inferred from the first sentence which whe puts into the governor's which the puts into the governor's Warren County. The pleasant announcemonth: "The Main Law was framed ment was made by the Paster at the congovernor goes on:
