

THE ARC-LIGHT. FRIDAY, MARCH 22, 1889.

ECHOES FROM THE EAST.

No Country in the world can compare with Egypt in the antiquity, number and importance of her monuments and ruins. The principal cities of ancient Egypt were Memphis and Thebes. Museum have brought within the reach of the learned the libraries of the ancient Kings of Babylonia and Assyria. The British Museum is full of antiquities which have been brought to England by the instrumentality of the gentlemen I have named, and scholars have been at work deciphering the cuneiform writing on the tablets of baked brick on which the records of those days were kept.

One has relief represents one of the winged man bulls being brought from the quarry with the slaves dragging, ropes, rollers and levers in use and one cannot look at this piece of sculpture without being struck with the manual labor necessary in ancient times compared with that now required with labor saving apparatus.
