Recruiting in Canada.

Washington, D.C., Aug. 28.—The War Department has called on Second-Lieut. Arthur W. Yates, Ninetieth Infantry, recruiting officer at Ogdenaburg, N.Y., for an explanation as to how a poster inviting recruits to join the United States infantry and cavalry came to be displayed in a store window at Ottawa, Onst. Canadian newspapers unfriendly to the annexation idea characterized the posting of the notice as a brazen piece of effrontery, and one Conservative journal contended that it was an indication that the United States army is so unpopular on the other side of the line that enough recruits cannot be obtained there. A newspaper clipping containing these comments was sent to the War Department and the adjutant-general of the army has called on Lieut. Yates to have the poster taken down and give information whether it was placed there with his knowledge, and if not, whether he knows how it came to be displayed in a Canadian city. No report has yet been received from the lieutenant and no complaint on the subject has reached the State Department from the Canadian Government.

the Helmick and wife were returning home from church at Pilot Chapel, about twolve of the robbers fired, the ball entering the back of Mr. Helmick's head. He died instantly, falling into his wife's lap. The highwaymen then sprang out of the buggy, but continued firing as the horses plunged forward on the road. One shot narrowly

At 2 o'clock hundreds of unemployed men gathered at the Lake Front-park to listen to addresses relative to the labor situation. At the close of the speech making they formed for a parade, proceded by a breas band, and marohed up Washington streat. They were formed in platoons resolting across the street from out to cuts. This style of marching completely stopped the progress of street cars and vehicles. A United States mail wayon stood at the corner of Washington and Clark streets. Inappetor Ross, calling a couple of policemen to him, ordered them to clear a passageway for it. This was done and angry abouts and threats from the crowd. Near the sidewalk atood the bingsy of J. H. Marindals. The marchers had spread out again and were filling the street from ourb to curb. The crowd directed Marindals to get out of the way, to which he replied, "I only whal I could." In an instant the crowd seized the buggy and threw it upon the sidewalk with a crash. Inspector Ross, followed by his three men, roahed into the crowd and ordered it back. Herovies picked up and hurled a piece of paving stone at Rosa, striking him on the head and felling him like a log. The mob made a rush for the officers: not the fight began. Ross, who is a powerful man, regained his footing, and knocked down several men in quick succession and his men stood by him pluckily. The crowd was too strong for them, however, and when Sergt, Swift went down with a broken head, inspector Ross dr. whis rovolver and, by threatening the crowd managed to hold them at bay for an instant. Inspector Shea hurled from the city hall at the head of a dozen men and charged upon the crowd, and Chief of Police Brennan came running from his office and began operations by knocking down two men. A few minutes later Inspector Lewis came from the west stide at the head of 70 men and dispersed the crowd. Berlin, Aug. 28.—The succession of the Duke of Edinburgh to the rulership of the duchies of Sarc-Coburg and Gotha dominates public interest in Germany, and widely divergent rumors in regard to the matter are recrywhere circulated. Puting all these saide, there is no doubt that the succession of an English duke has surprised and dissatisfied the nation, though the fact is quietly accepted by the duchies concerned. It is probable that Emporor William would have preferred that Prince Aifred, the only son of the Duke of Edinburgh, should have succeeded Duke Ernest. Indeed, it is believed that his Majesty hastened to the ducal castle of Reinhard with the hope that he might induce his uncle, the Duke of Edinburgh, the claim to the succession in favor of Prince Aifred. His Majesty is reported to have told the duke that under any directions and the succession in favor of Prince Aifred. Finding the duke resolute in his determination to forego none of his rights, and also inding that the duke's mother, Queen Victoris, was supporting him in his attitude, the Emperor put on the best face possible and acquiesced to the duke's succeeding. He attended the ceremony of administering the oath of allegiance to the the German constitution, being unwilling to again excite friction with the family of his mother, the Emperor had being unwilling to again excite friction with the family of his mother, the Empress Frederick. The Empress Frederick, it will be re-called, is the older sister of the Duke of Edinburg. All such danger is now allayed. The extremists press, Radicals and Conservative alike, are indulging in anglophobiac criticisms. They harp upon the inexpediency of admitting a relative of a foreign house in the secrets of the federation. Despite the absence of popular opposition, however, it is impossible to deny that there is an uneasy feeling that everything may not pass off quietily and smoothly. The changes that will be made in the Ministry are likely to be the first bother of his. Nothing is yet publicly known as to the disposition of the late Duke's property. It has always been supposed that be was immensely wealthy. Certainly his estates were extensive enough. Apart from the places, castles and shooting lodges owned by him in Germany, he was the proprieter of one of the sporting domains in Europe, situated in the Austrian Tyrol. All these properties are entailed and pass to his successor. Something more than coldiness existed between the late Duke and Emperor William, the former regarded the d'smissal periodic and the former regarded the d'smissal control of the sporting domains in Europe, situated in the Austrian Tyrol. Says There Will be Ne Fast Line.

MONTREAL, Aug. 28.—Mr. Fletcher of the Allan Steamship Line says regarding the proposition to establish a fast line of steamers between France and Canadas: "It is certain that a line of steamers going at twenty knots an hour will never exist between Havre and Canada. Even with a subsidy it would not pay. A line of freight steamers, with accommodation for passengers, might succeed, but it must be remembered that the French Government is absolutely opposed to immigration to Canada. The following figures may also be cited: Last year the value of French goods received in Canada was 11,500,000 francs, while that of French importations of Canadian goods was 1,245,000 francs. During the same period Canada imported 315,385,000 francs worth of British goods and exported 316,220,000 francs worth to Great Britain. Trade with England increased 30 per cent. last year." Mr. Fletcher-thinks that the French Government will never subsidize a Canadian line of steamers.

MONTREAL, Aug. 28.—The Haras National eshibles are a mass of smouldering embers. Early on Saturday morning fames broke out from the centre of the building. People passing jumped off their wagon and smahed in the centre door of the stables and then rushed in to rescue the horses. Luckily here their work was a far lighter one than it would have been ten days ago, as most of the blood stock had been sent to the World's Fair. They, however, saved seven stallions and twelve fine horses, besides the fancy cattle, but most of the swine and poultry were consumed. The swine and poultry were consume total loss will be $50,000.

OTTAWA, Aug. 28.—The Irish Committee of the Board of Separate School Trustees have notified the French Committee that in future no French pupils will be admitted in the English classes of the Separate Schools, as the presence of French-speaking children in the English schools interferes with the grading of the classes and retards their progress. The French Committee say they have no action to take in the matter, as it rests only with the parents, who can send their children to any school they please. There is, however, considerable angry feeling expressed.
